DE MOTT, THE BEAT.

He Receives His First Smack in the Eye Last evening L. M. DeMott, the deadbroke and dead-beat book agent, a few of whose rascalities we have heretofore had occasion to expose, put in an appearance at Frank Ricker's saloen, and by aid check, soon ingratiated himself into the good graces of a party of gentlemen who were having a good social time. Numerous "beers" were drank, and when himself in the yard, the buil dog showed his teeth and growled ominously. Mr. Riein time to save DeMott. The "beat' was led back into the barroom where he

of an oily tougue, a shiny hat and brassy "settling up" time arrived Mr. De-Mott took occasion to slip into the back part of the building and thence into the yard, his purpose being, no doubt, to make his exit from the premises in that direction; but Ricker, who has suffered not a little from thieves and incendiaries, keeps a fierce bull dog to protect the rear of his property. As soon as DeMott showed ker, hearing the dog bark, hastened out to learn what was the matter, arriving just made a pretense of paying his bill, but after fumbling in his pockets for some time could only find twenty-one cents, a brass watch key, a few other keys and a baggage check. Assuming a lotty air he said he was short of funds, but would have plenty in a day or two; that Father Grotemyer, of St. Joseph's church, owed him $36 for books; that he had been out to see Father Ignatius, of St. Joseph's hospital, from whom also be expected a remittance and that he would drop in in a day or two or two and settle up. Just then the bartender began to "smell a mice," and addressing De Mott, said: "Why you said you were a tobacco dealer and that your name was McShanny, now you say you are a book agent?" "I was a book agent but I am a tobacco dealer and I have my baggage at the Cooper bouse, where I After some further chaffing among the party present, during which DeMott forgot his aleas of McShanny and said his name was DeMott, he was finally cornered and acknowledged that his name was DeMott. Then Ricker took him by the map of the neck and the seat of the pantaloons and was bustling him out of the bar-room when DeMott turned suddenly around and showed tight. Rieker met him half way and planted a "stinger" on his cheek. De-Mott recked backwards, covered his face with his hands, and exclaimed, "For beaven's sake save my face for Christmas !" Giving him another hearty kick, Ricker shoved him into the street, saying, "You may beat the down town hotels and get off clear, but you mus'n't try it

Of course there is not a word of truth in DeMott's yarn concorning Fathers Grotemyer and Ignatius, or that he (Do Mott) is a tobacco dcaler and boards at the Cooper house. As our readers have already been informed, he was turned away from the Cooper house and several other hotels after cheating the landlords, but with the most surpassing assurance he continues to ply his rascalities in this on up here on the hill.

DeMott said some time ago that he could live here for three months by beating people and he seems to be determined last evening about 8 o'clock, in the sevento do so. He is now pretty well known teenth year of her age. She suffered from and at nearly every botel and almost pulmonary consumption, but it was only every place else a reception awaits him. within the past few weeks her disease asthe other night he went into hotel and said to the bartender "Now you take me for this DeMott don't you?" The bartender told him that he did and DeMott mourn her untimely death. said: "Now ain't that strange? Everywhere I go I am taken for him because look like him," The bartender "Tumbled" then and thought about thumping Mr. DeMott but allowed him to go.

This gentleman should leave the city, as the thermometer is entirely too high for No. 14 West Orange street. Rev. Heiss him here, and the living is too ich for his came tol the residence of Mr. Rudy on blood. He says he is taken for DeMott, Monday last, saying be did not feel well.

A thoroughly delightful entertainment rewarded the limited number of people who were present at Fulton opera house last evening to listen to the rendition of Audran's sparkling composition "La Mascotte," by H. B. Mahn's English comic opera company, whose successful production of "Boccaccio," a few even ings previous, bespoke a much warmer reception than was accorded them on the return visit. The bright car-taking tunes of the "Mascotte" were rendered with a gusto that quite took their hearers by storm, and the merry humor of the piece also found ample development. In fact, fun seemed to have run old prince down to the young men and maidens in the chorus. The representation was much fuller and more complete than that given earlier in the season, by another company, the score being adhered to with conscientious fidelity. Miss Rose Leighton made a charming Bettina, her sympathetic, highly strung sofinding or portunities in the score that she did not fail to avail herself of, and she became a prime a favorite from the outset. Mr. Ellis Ryse as Prince Lorenzo was exeruciatingly funny, his make-up was a study, his man-ner indescribable, and his voice magnificent. Mr. Percy Cooper shone to signal advantage in the part of Frederick, singing with exquisite taste, his clear, sweet voice sounding all the better from the unaccountable thinness of the tenor in the sustained. Miss Reynolds' voice lacks the timbre necessary for a satisfactory rendition of the latter role, and from his fine chorus Manager Mahn would select a dozen | charged. others who can sing it better.

Frankford Illustrated. in the l'olice Gazette of this week there is a picture which is intended to represent John Frankford attempting to escape ties belonging to the estate of the late Henry from our prison. The principal part of the cut is a stone wall which looks exactly like the one around our prison (which is not the fault of the artist, however). but the fault of the artist, however). but the fault of the artist, however). Frankford's head can just be seen above the top of the chimney out of which he is coming. Three men are standing outside, and one of them is just firing the gun at Frankford.

COL. PEIPER'S SUDDEN DEATH.

ANOTHER PROMINENT CITIZEN GONE.

His Unexpected Taking-off this Atternoon Wm. L. Peiper, cashier of the Lancaster county bank, died at his country residence, near Rohrerstown, this afternoon at 3 o'clock after a brief illness. On Monday Mr. Peiper was taken with a severe chill while in the directors' room at the bank. Medical assistance was at once summoned and in the course of an hour he rallied sufficiently to be taken to his home at the farm ; yesterday his condition was much improved, and to day he appeared to be better and quite cheerful, up to the time almost of his death. A messenger was sent to the bank announcing Mr. Peiper's improved condition, but he had scarcely announced it before another messenger brought the news of his death.

Col. Peiper was one of the best known citizens in Lancaster, and has been associated with the Lancaster county national bank for years. He stead-ily rose through the different positions connected with its management until he became cashier, which position he has held being a heavy stockholder in it. Col. at 75 cents a bottle, six bottles for $1. Peiper was largely interested in various turnpikes and other corporations and publie institutions and held many offices of trust, his chief service in a political capacity being some years ago in one term as poor director, during which the present new and elegant almshouse was erected in which he took great pride. He was for many years a member and for a long time a vestryman in Trinity Lutheran church. Col. Peiper was first married to a daughter of the late James Smith, druggist; and his last wife, whom he married only a few years ago, was a lady from York. Deceased owned one of the finest farms in the county, about two miles west of this city, in the handsome and elaborate improvement of which, and in the raising of fine stock he took great interest and pride. He had just about finished and was nearly ready to move into a very handsome and elegantly finished mansion on East King street, near Shippen, on the site of the old Jordan property. He had formerly resided in the winter in the old bank property which has been torn down to be replaced by the new building now in course of erection in the plans and progress of which he took a deep interest. Col. Peiper was a warm-hearted, charitable and generous man, and the who had occasion to often his hospitality will learn deep grief of his death the suddenness of which and the late hour at which the news reached this city, compolling the brevity of this notice of it put into print just ere we go to press. In early life Col. Peiper learned the

The Popular Demand. So great has been the popular demand for he celebrated remedy Kidney-Wort, that it is having an immense sale from Maine to Caliform: Some have found it inconvenient to prepare it from the dry compound. For such the proprietors now prepare it in liquid form. This can be procured at the druggists. It has precisely the same effect as the dry, but i very concentrated so that the dose is much smaller. - Lowell Mail.

"What we all admire" and how to secure it: A fine head of hair in its natural color is such an adjunct to beauty that no one who prizes good looks should neglect to use "London Hair Color Restorer," the most cleanly and delightful article ever introduced to the American people. It is totally different from all others-not sticky or gumay, and free from all impure ingredients that render many other preparation; obnoxious. It thickens thin hair, restores gray hair, gives it new life, keeps the scalp clean and healthy, causing the hair to grow where it had fallen off or become thin, does not soil or stale anything, and is so perfeetly and elegantly prepared as to make it a lasting hair dressing and toilet luxury. THE GUITEAU TRIAL.

Testimony Against the Prisoner. Washington, Dec. 14.—There was a great crush at the court room this morning, and much difficulty in preserving order. Dr. John L. Withrow, pastor of a church in Boston, was the first witness called and Guiteau immediately proclaimed him a very fine gentleman. Witness knew Guiteau and considered him perfectly sane, his conduct showing much "cuteness." Charles A. Bryan, of the New York Equitable life insurance company, knew the prisoner in New York and related circumstances of his (Guiteau's) connection with that company.

Henry M. Collier, attorney, of New York, sworn : Knew Guiteau, thought him a pretty sbrewd fellow, but never noticed the slightest indication of insanity. The evidence of this witness proved exceedingly damaging to the prisoner's claim of having lived an upright, Christian life, and Guiteau wriggled and expostulated and vainly attempted to explain the matter. Witness at one time said, "I informed Judge Doneghue that I considered Guiteau a thief and a scoundrel." Guiteau (excitedly)-"You did not
