No. 6 East King Street,

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

The season of 1881 closed one of the most brilliant and successful campaigns in the history of our trade. We congratulate our patrons and ourselves in anticipation of a lively and increased Spring Trade.

In order to meet the demand we have made extensive improvements in our room and otherwise extended our facilities to present our spring offering of Select and Choice FOREIGN NOVELTIES to arrive about the First of Fernander, we will be able to please the most ashetic as well as the general class of trade. A great desideratum among our people seems to be a cheap article in Clothing. There is no good in it we have tried it and found it don't pay. We will wager one of our $30 Overcoats will last three seasons' hard wear and look genteel, while a $50 Overcoat will hardly be recognized after one season's wear. Where is the economy in buying trash? Few persons are competent judges of fine articles of Clothing done up in first-class style; therefore, we invite special attention to our establishment, where can be found at all times the very best in the market, at prices as reasonable as can be expected. We are selling a in the market, at prices as reasonable as can be expected. We are selling a few HEAVY-WEIGHT

Thankful for the very liberal patronage, we hope to continue our motto of Square Dealing in all our transactions, and show a practical and happy result during our Spring Campaign.

Comic Opera.

Solid Sense on a Seasonable Subject. Wilkesbarre Union-Leader. The rage for comic opera is dying out, and all because the traveling combinations which strike interior town like our own, are generally made up of inferior people, led off possibly by one well known artist whose name is relied upon to draw full houses. Unfortunately for these artists as well as the people, they are both made miserable and from the same cause. A gem always looks richer the handsomer it is set. So the operatic singer can't possibly shine when he or she is surrounded by an unhappy and cheap lot of assistants. The managers of these traveling companies always speculate upon the notoriety gained by first class companies in the large citics. The flattering notices they receive are made to do duty for the cheaper concerns, and patrons are thereby feoled into paying a dollar or so to see and hear what they discover too late to be anything like what they expected. Magnificent paper on the wall, rich lithographs and all the seductive methods of the printer's art are called into play to aid in the deception. When big houses are se cured the managers are satisfied and care very little for public disappointment. The reaction is already setting in and people are beginning to demand artists instead of amateurs, and to know that they are with worthy operatic companies before they patronize them. And this is as it should

Gilbert & Sattivan's Forthcoming Produc

The reader knows that Arthur Sullivan left for Cairo. His "Patience" is filling the house nightly and is expected to do so for another twelve months. En hommes prudents, however, Messrs. Gilbert & Sul livan prepare the operetta to follow "Patience," and while the former is writing the words he sends them post by post to Egypt, so that by March and April, when Sullivan returns, what keeps the pot boiling will be provided for, and he will then use his time for-hush! something else. Now you would like to know what that new piece turns about, since the sailors in "Finafore," the pirates and policemen in "Penzance," the soldiers and pretty esthetic girls have been shown in "Pa-What will now the toilet

They will be fairies! Twenty-tive years before the piece commences a fairy has committed the indiscretion of marrying a mortal. This by fairy law is death, but committed the indiscretion of marrying a mortal. This by fairy law is death, but the queen of the fairies has commuted the sentence to banishment for life among the mortals, on condition that she leave her husband and never reveal herself to him. Soon after a son is born unto her. This son is half fairy, half mortal, being fairy down to the waist-a real idol with rank of attorney general. True to her promise the mother, although she sees the father, never allows herself to be seen by him until an incident which shows that a mother's love to her child is stronger than the love of her own life, makes her break her vow. She reveals herself to him, although the penalty for the act is death. The fact is that the father and son love the same girl, and the father, fancying his wife to be dead, contemplates marrying the girl. The mother, after having in vain tried in disguise to persuade the father to give in for the sake of his son, as a last resource, unveils her face and tells him, "Behold, you cannot marry, I am your The skill and the distinguished taste with which the fairy, represent-ing the noblest sentiments, is led through Love's Very Young Dream. The Elopement of Two Children in Connecticut. "The town of Montville, half a dozen miles below Norwich, Conn., was in great commotion over the elopement, on Sunday last, of Miss Addie Staplins, aged S or 9, with Master Freddie Spenser, of about the CARPETS, &c. same age. The children are cousins. Early on Saturday morning Addie told her mother that she was going to spend the Sunday with her aunt Spenser, who lives half a mile away. The truth was, she wished to see her cousin, who is a dashing beau. On Sunday morning they were seated in the sitting-room in must loverlike relations. Mrs. Spdnser, peeping over her spectacles, saw Freddie kiss and then saw Addie kiss This want on for several moments, Mrs. Spenser laughing slyly to herself at the juvenile courtship. A little later Fred said that he was going to accompany his fair cousin home. Addie kissed her aunt, said good-bye, and the two went down down the road hand in hand. They had gone only about half the distance when they espied a neighbor's horse and buggy by the roadside. Free unhitched the horse, pursuaded and assisted his cousin to enter the buggy, and they set out at full speed toward Norwich. It was not until near nightfall that they were missed. The parents of Addie, having vainly sought her at the home of the Spensers, speedily aroused the whole town of Montville, and searching parties were sent out in every direction. One party came to this city, and, with the aid of the police, soon found the children driving about in one of the back streets They were taken home to Montville, and there was great rejoicing in that village. PAREWELL NOTICE.

Poll. GREENE takes this opportunity to let his namerous friends and patrons know that in a few months he will establish offices in Washington, D. C., and hence would suggest to the afflicted, the chronic cases of disease, to test OMNIPATHY before it is too late. Dr. Greene has treated over 3,000 patients since January ist, 1880, made up largely from those turned away as incurable by other M. D.s. Over 1,00 deaths have occurred under others' practices, and not a half-dozen using his remedies. Most of the 1,500 have died prematurely. Physicians have lost their wives, brothers and sons, and drnggists their wives, brothers and during this time. Over 1,000 persons have been cured, and all benefited, by his methods, with a few exceptions. His claim is simply to cure all the various ills of mankind by external applications of remedials, and that he does not make a drug shop of the stomach, and he will before leaving publish a large pamphlet containing tions of remedials, and that he does not make a drug shop of the stomach, and he will before leaving publish a large pamphlet containing hundreds of names of persons cured in this city and county, many of them very extraordinary.
