TUESDAY EVENING, JAN. 24, 1882. DEAD-ALIVE MAN.

A SINGULAR PSYCHOLOGICAL PHEN-OMENON IN HAGERSTOWN.

The Dead Arises, and Speaks, and Lives a Uny or Two Before Finally Dying.

Hagerstown Correspondence of Baltimore Gazette. An incident is related in the experience of a clergyman which suggests some of the weird sketches of Poe. The only difference is that this is true, a plain recital of what actually occurred. Amongst the flock of the minister referred to was a family of foreigners, and the father of the family was stricken with a fatal illness. One night the pastor received a message summoning him immediately to the bedside of the sick man, the messenger stating that "he was dying." Some time clapsed before the arrival at the scene, when the attending physician was found surrounded by the sobbing and shricking family. To his great regret the doctor informed the minister that he was too late that the sufferer had died 15 or 20 minutes previously. And, in fact, there on the bed lay the stark and rigid form of the departed, the lower jaw fallen, the ashy pallor of death on the face, and the body stiffened with the rigor mortis. With the demonstrativeness of their nation the family gave full sway to their feelings, making no effort at self-control. A son, in particular, was more demonstrative and inconsolable than any of the rest. He called on his father, begged him to come back, and with difficulty could be kept away from the body. Hoping to comfort the grief-stricken family by spiritual consolation and sympathetic conversation, the clergyman remained on the scene until near . 2 o'clock in the morning. At this time, when the pastor was thinking of leaving, the son, who seemed to take the death so much to heart, was seized with another paroxysm of grief more violent than any preceding it. He tore himself from those who sought to restrain him. threw himself on the body of his father, embraced him, called him, bathed the cold face with tears, shricking that he could not let him go; that he must say one word, look at him just once more; that he must not leave him without just one more word and one more look. As if the agonized voice had penetrated the silence of the other world and had reached the "dull, cold car of death," the lips of the father moved, the eyes opened and cast a sad, reproachful look on the weeping son, and in the well known voice came distinctly these words: "Oh! why did you bring me back?" As soon as the awe stricken group could re-gain their presence of mind, after this appalling scene, they immediately administered restoratives to the patient, when the minister left him, very weak but still alive. He was sent for by the father the next day, who gave him an account of his death (as he evidently believed it had been) and his exper ence to the time when he was ar parently recalled to life. He said: · When I died I first felt a sinking, going sensation, knew everything going on in the room, but I could not speak or move my lips-then all was a blank. The next thing I remember was being in a dense darkness, seemingly in a tunnel, through which I was being pushed; there seemed to be two forms, one on each side, pushing me along through the tunnel and I appeared to move as if I was floating, touching nothing above or below. At last it appeared to get lighter, as though we were nearing the end of the passage. It grew brighter every moment, and then I seemed to observe two shining, beau how much better I was they would never have wanted me back in this weak and suffering body." The man lived several days and then died, as his family sincerely believe, a second time, and, remembering his solemn words as to his first experience, did not call him back. Whether the man was in a syncope from which the piercing lamentations of the family aroused him, or whether he had indeed been premitted to return after a glance at the glories of the great unknown none can answer. But one thing is certain, that for the space of several hours, to all intents and purposes, so far as the doctor, the pastor and the family were concerned, and so far as all outward indications are a guide, the man was dead.

Wash-Rag Seeds.

The Wonderful Stories Told by Several Spruce Young Men in Newark.

One afternoon last week a spruce young man visited a cottage in the suburbs of Newark, and offered for sale seeds of the amaryllis, and what he called the wash-rag plant. He was good looking, and a fluent talker. The lady of the house was amused by his witticisms and gentlemanly impudence. He said that he had recom mendations from several well-known florists, all of whom had his wonderful wash rag seeds.

These seeds, he said, would develope a fine stalk after being platted two days in dry soil. If no water was thrown upon the soil the stalk would in several hours put forth a red, a white and a yellow flower of exquisite loveliness. As each of these three flowers burst into full bloom a wash-rag of the finest texture would appear. This wash-rag could be used, he said, in hot or cold water without injuring it, and grease or dirt would not adhere to it, the wonderful material of which it was composed being incapable of getting soiled. The lady knew that there was no such thing as a wash-rag plant, and, therefore, she was suspicious that the fellow was a swindler or sneak thief. She quietly bowed him out of the house. He then went to another house in the vicinity, where he induced a woman to pay one dollar for six seeds, after he had guaranteed that each one of the seeds would develop three wash-rags. Another lady whom the fellow attempted to swindle no-tified the police, and then it was discovered that several of the wash-rag swindlers were operating in the city. On Saturday afternoon detectives endeavored to entrap one of them, but they were not success ful.

"One of the swindlers called upon me on Saturday morning," said the wife of a prominent citizen, "and exhibited the wonderful wash-rag seeds. They resembled pumpkin seed, but they were black and not half so large. The swindler was about 25 years old, of medium height and was but they were black and said words and a charming the seed of medium height and was bout 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and was about 25 years old, of medium height and years of height and blest bidder, from April 2, to the laghest and best bidder, from April 2, to the laghest and best bidder, from April 2, to the term of five years, will be received at the office of the undersigned. He criticized the paintings in the room, praised two of Rogers's groups, and was as enthusiastic as an æsthete over some flowers in a vase. He was so gentlemanly and accomplished that I would have been deceived had he not represented that the seeds would produce plants on which flowers with wash rags in them would bloom. I inquired if he had seed that would grow silk or lace handkerchiefs and he replied that he know nothing about the property of the plant except that a pe culiar wash-rag was found in the flowers. I thought for a while that some of my friends had been playing a practical joke but a few hours afterward a lady friend related to me a similar experience. But my caller was evidently not the one who visited ther, although she said that her visitor was entertaining even in his impudence. We had a hearty laugh coming from church when we compared notes of our experience, and learned also that the seedmen had plied their trade in Roseville, Woodside and in the fashionable neigh-orhood at South Park." The swindlers varied their tactics in different parts of the city. On the Hill they represented that wash rags would appear in the blossoms, and on the Neck they said that the flowers would produce lace handkerchiefs. In the central part of the city they said that the seed was from a celebrated Indian plant, which filled a room with a pleasant aroma while grow ing, and the seeds of which sweetened the breath and were serviceable on clothing. They asked $2 for half a dozen seeds.

"The gentlemanly fellow who called here," said a lady, "asserted that he had charged one dollar for each seed in New York, and that he and his agents had sold several thousand seeds to the first families. I did not buy, but I believe quite a num-

BRANDY AS A MEDICINE.

This now much abused Alcoholic Stimulant was never intended as a beverage, but to be used as a medicine of great potency in the cure of some of the destructive diseases which sweep away their annual thousands of victims. With a purely philanthropic motive we present to the favorable notice of invalids—especially those afflicted with that miscrable disease Dyspepsia, a specific remedy, which is nothing more or less than Brandy.

The aged, with feeble appetite and more or less debility, will find this simple medicine, when used properly, A Sovereign Remedy or all their ills and aches. Be it, however strictly understood that we prescribe and use but one article, and that is

In his case, he looked up with astonishment but after hearing of its wonderful effects in the cases of some of his near acquaintances, he at last consented to follow our advice. He used the Brandy faithfully and steadily; the first bottle giving him an appetite, and before the second was taken he was a sound man, with a stomach capable of digesting anything which hechose to eat. He still keeps it and uses a little occasionally; and since he has this medicine he has been of very little pecuniary benefit to the doctor.—A Practising Physician.
