A HAPPY NEW YEAR!
The season of 1881 closed one of the most brilliant and successful campaigns in the history of our trade. We congratulate our patrons and ourselves in anticipation of a lively and increased Spring Trade.
In order to meet the demand we have made extensive improvements in our rooms and otherwise extended our facilities to present our spring offering of select and choice FOREIGN NOVELTIES to arrive about the First of February. We will be able to please the most exacting as well as the general class of trade. A great desideratum among our people seems to be a cheap article in clothing. There is no good in it. We have tried it and found it doesn't pay. We will wear one of our overcoats will last three seasons' hard wear and look genteel, while a $20 overcoat will hardly be recognized after one season's wear. Where is the economy in buying this? Few persons are competent judges of fine articles of clothing done up in first-class style; therefore, we in the special attention to our establishment, where can be found at all times the very best in the market, at prices as reasonable as can be expected. We are selling a few HEAVY-WEIGHT

OVERCOATINGS

at very low prices in order to close them out to make room for our new Spring Stock.
Thankful for the very liberal patronage we hope to continue our motto of Square Dealing in all our transactions, and show a practical and happy result during our Spring Campaign.
All are cordially invited to call at

FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 27, 1882.
OMAHA.
A WESTERN TOWN OF 36,000.
Its Railroad Connections and Commercial Advantages.
OMAHA, January 24, 1882.
This town, though comparatively new, numbers about 36,000 people, a live, enterprising, wide-awake set of people, making rapid strides in commerce, manufacturing, improvement and in all things that go to make up a large commercial centre. We much doubt if there is a city west of the Mississippi that has a brighter outlook for the future than Omaha, situated on a navigable river and commanding the commerce from the Missouri river westward throughout the state; of Nebraska, through Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Montana, Nevada, to the Pacific coast as far north as Oregon. Its railroad facilities are unsurpassed by any city west of Chicago and north of St. Louis. It is the gateway of the great transcontinental railway. It has direct communication with the three great trunk lines to Chicago, two trunk lines to St. Louis and the south. A third line, the Missouri Pacific, now under construction between Atchison, Kansas City and Omaha, which is nearly completed, will give Omaha a direct line to St. Louis and the Gulf states west of the Mississippi river. The Chicago, St. Paul & Omaha R. R. has placed Omaha within reach of the Minnesota and Wisconsin lumber regions, the Burlington & Missouri River R. R. and its various branches connect Omaha with southern, south-western and Central Nebraska. The rapid extension of this line to Denver Colorado and New Mexico insures Omaha a second trunk line to Colorado and New Mexico. The Omaha & Republican Valley road has given Omaha a monopoly of the traffic with central Nebraska. The Omaha, Niobrara & Black Hills branch of the Union Pacific running through north-western Nebraska and to the mining regions of the Black Hills. The Union Pacific, the greatest trunk line on the American continent, gives Omaha direct communication with the coal, iron, silver and gold regions of Wyoming and Colorado, the silver belt of Utah, Idaho and Montana, and the bullion and fruit exporting region of California and the Pacific coast. The Chicago & Northwestern and the Rock Island lines have under consideration the project of building a bridge across the Missouri about a mile and a half north of the Union Pacific bridge, and extending their road into Nebraska and the northwest. The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy have purchased a tract of land near the river; they intend erecting freight depots for handling their western freight. The Union Pacific has at present 3,663 miles of road in running order and 1,560 miles under construction. Thus Omaha commands a large territory, opened by the many lines of road to which she is the gateway, and her business men are taking advantage of the means offered, which is apparent from her wholesome trade, which, during 1881, amounted to over fifteen and a-half million dollars. We are informed by wholesale merchants that the prospects for business for the present year are far more favorable than last year, and that the wholesale trade will, in all probability, treble what it was in 1881.

The industries of Omaha are numerous, the Union Pacific shops employing about 1,800 men, the smelting works, the third largest in the world, employing about 250 men; a distillery the fourth in size in the United States, shipping alcoholic spirits to France and Russia; the internal revenue of this distillery amounted to $1,138,806.90; for 1881; eighteen hundred head of cattle were fed at this distillery during the past year. Omaha foundry and machine shops, linseed oil works, white lead works, Omaha iron and nail company, carriage and wagon factories; one of the factories turned out work to the amount of $25,000 in 1881. Shot tower, cracker factory, doing a business of $10,000 per month. Cornice works, iron and boiler works, six in number; safe works, foundries, sash and door and artificial building material; wire fence works, artificial stone manufacturing, bone dust and fertilizing material manufactory, reining and drying company, three grain elevators, pork and beef packing houses, six in number, eleven brick yards, broom manufactories, newspapers, any amount of them and in almost any language desired. There are some other industries, but we must drop this subject for the present and give you some of the happenings about town.

The Stocum license law went into effect in this state on the 1st of January. It provides that cities of the first class must issue licenses for the selling of liquors, &c., for less than $1,000 and give bonds in $5,000; this closed quite a number of saloons in this city. Out of 160 only 45 have taken out license. It has closed quite a number of disreputable places and may prove some good, judging from the police reports, it would seem as though some power kept "drunks" more scarce. Whisky selling is in the hands of more responsible parties, at least. The $5,000 bond makes them responsible, as all damage done by the drinker must be made good by the seller. Its repeal was loudly called for, but it is gradually getting weaker, and it is quite doubtful whether the law will be repealed. It may possibly be modified, though even this is doubtful. Omaha had too many saloons and too much rowdiness, which this law seeks to remedy. Social parties are all the rage just now, and there are strong evidences that the interval between this week and Lent will be filled with social parties. Several private mask parties are on the tapis, all of the clubs are doubtless preparing their members for a forty-day fast by making the coming parties particularly interesting before Ash Wednesday casts a pall over society matters. "Commerce parties" have taken firm root in Omaha during the past winter, and have proved a popular form of entertainment. Small social parties are the rage just now, and certainly they have more of pleasure and comfort than the larger ones commonly called receptions, which partake more of the nature of a general rush.

The state agricultural society held its regular session at Lincoln last week, and elected the board of officers for the present year. Omaha was selected as the place for holding the state fair in September next. This makes the third time the state fair has been held here and certainly no better location could be selected. The fair will be held on the grounds of the Omaha driving park association; all the necessary buildings, sheds, eating houses are on the grounds; a splendid mile track, level as a floor, and every thing that constitutes a first-class fair ground. Then Omaha, too, has the very best of accommodations for holding the immense crowd usually in attendance upon a state fair.
This city bids fair to come to the front rank of Western cities in hotel accommodations. Since the loss by fire of the Grand Central the city was rather poorly supplied with first-class hotels. At present there are in course of erection three magnificent buildings, the "Millard," a large five story brick building, the "Grand Central" on the ground where the old Grand Central formerly stood, corner 14th and Farnham, and the "Cuzzens." Three more are to be erected next summer which with those already here, will give good accommodations. As it is at present all hotels and boarding houses are crowded to overflowing.
The winter has been very mild; last week we had some cold weather, but only for a few days, the mercury not falling to zero. Ice men are busy gathering their crop, though it is rather a thin one, the ice on the river not being over twelve inches thick and not of the best quality, as it must be taken near shore or off standing water. All kinds of work has been going on, even bricklaying was stopped but a few days, and that more on account of a want of brick than on account of the weather.
From present indications there will be more buildings and improvements during the coming summer than was ever known before; over 700 buildings were put up last summer, and we should not doubt but what double that number will be erected this summer. The only drawback is the want of material, the yards here could not furnish near enough; Council Bluffs, Plattsmouth, St. Joe and Kansas City furnished large quantities; even now brick are shipped in from St. Joe. The eleven yards here were run to their utmost capacity but could not furnish near enough.
The street paving question is the all-absorbing topic of the day, and how to put the streets of Omaha into a better condition seems to be the query, various ideas are put forth. McAdam, Belgian blocks and all other devices, are proposed; the fact of the matter is Omaha has grown so much faster than was anticipated by the city fathers, so much is to be done, opening streets and grading, water works put in, etc., that the streets were partly left out in the cold (though Farnham street is McAdamed) that now there are quite a number of business streets needing attention.

The real estate market is not very brisk, the greater part selling in city lots, in this there is considerable doing and at fair prices, ranging from $200 to $5,000. Farm property can be purchased at all sorts of prices; good land near town sells for $100 per acre; three to four towns from town near land may be had from $25 to $50 per acre. I understand that there is land in the county that can be purchased for $10 per acre. The land in this county (Douglas) is rolling prairie, though bordering the river, there is some timber. The county is well watered, and as fine a farming county as any one could wish for. It would be a profitable investment for some of our capitalists to invest in farming lands in this county, as in course of five years land will be worth four times what it is now. Ye moneyed men stick a pin there!
The health of the city is excellent. There is no sickness of any account. There was a smallpox scare here last week; there was one case and he has recovered; precautionary measures were at once taken to prevent the spread of the disease. All pupils in schools not vaccinated were attended to. The U. P. and B. M. railroad had all their employees vaccinated. Every thing was done by the board of health to keep off the disease. Everybody's left arm is sore and no more smallpox heard of.
BUCATER.
An Episode of the Battle of Gettysburg.
New York Star.
Midway between the contending lines was a solitary tree that in peaceful times had given shade to the harvest hands at their nooning. Early in the morning some Confederate sharpshooters had crawled to this tree, and were able to reckon their game at every shot. So destructive, in fact, did their fire become that the widest imprecations were shouted at them by the Federals, and threats were made that if taken they would get no quarter. All at once there came a lull in the firing from that part of the line. A Confederate was seen to rise up from the base of the tree and to advance toward the Federals with his hand raised. Shots were fired at him, but there was curiosity at his approach, and the word was: "Wait till we see what he wants to do." Some thought he had a mind to desert, and encouraged him with shouts of "Come over, Johnny! we won't fire." But, if the Confederate spoke, what he said could not be heard in the din of the cannonading and musketry, then growing heavy and continuous as the day wore on. Forward still he came, and all eyes were strained to see what it could be that he meant to do. There can be no trace on the battle field till the battle is lost or won. The man who raises the white flag there, or gives any signal of that kind, has no right to look for its recognition on the other side. He may only trust to their shrewdness to understand an emergency. It might be merely a trick to deceive. Suddenly the Confederate dropped upon the grass, and for an instant was lost to sight. It was thought he had been hit. But only for an instant, for a thrill of enthusiasm passed through the Federals, murmurs of admiration were heard, and then a cheer as hearty as if given in a charge burst forth from their throats, and their cheers repeated increased in volume, proved that unselfish actions are possible, and there are noble hearts to appreciate and respond.

The Confederate sharpshooter, who had been doing his best to destroy his antagonist, had observed in front of him a wounded Federal, lying helplessly on the ground between the two lines, and begging in his agonizing thirst for a drink, and at the almost certain risk of losing his own life had gone forward to give comfort to the distressed enemy. This it was that caused the Federal cheer, and for a few minutes stopped the work of death in that neighborhood. When the sharpshooter had performed his act of mercy he hastened back to the tree, and with the warning cry: "Down Yanks, we're going to fire!" the little, unperceived truce, was ended and was soon followed almost immediately after.
The next day, the Fourth of July, a heap of Confederates was found under that tree. Whether the hero of the day before was one of the ghastly dead will probably never be known.
