the trying ordeal which she was forced to face betrayed itself in the tremor of her voice only slightly perceptible at first, and which augmented confidence succeeded in banishing almost entirely before the evening had passed. She sang Proch's air and variations, a masterly production of the great composer, and her inter-pretation carried her hearers by storm. Her voice is rich, clear and of strikingly pure texture; she swept through the three octaves with an ease and precision that were truly astonishing, while her modulation and sympathetic expreswere admirable to a She uses her head-notes with more than ordinary effect, trills nicely, and her performance as a whole was so evenly balanced as to almost disarm criticism. To the enthusiastic encore tendered her she responded with the always pleasing Scotch song. "Within a mile of Edinbor town." Miss Howe on her second appearance saug the piece given on the programme, "Good-by" (Tosti), one of Miss Kellogg's own favorites, and in its endition Miss Howe exhibited the same admirable qualities notable in her previous performance. When it is known that the young lady had not even seen the song before yesterday afternoon her success will appear all the more pronounced. She was imperatively encored, sang a dashing polka, and when the audience re demanded her appearance, the little lady just came out, sat down to the piano, and played and sang "The Brook" (Dolores) in the most charming manner. The completeness of Miss Howe's triumph did not dim the brilliancy of the decades ago of the great tenor's electrifying performances when in the neydey of his popularity. Brignoli's voice is a wonder in its way, poetic in its sweetness, and its compass, volume and "staying" quality are apparently unbounded. Tagliapietra's magnificent baritone was heard to the best advantage in Faure's noble composition, "Palm Branches." For an encore he sang the "Roman Ser enade," two of the most perfect musical performances that have ever been heard upon the stage of Fulton opera house. The qualities of this superb vocal organ have been the theme of admiration by the best critical judgment of both hemispheres, and it may be truthfully said that the handsome and gifted Italian fairly surpassed himself last night Miss Clara Pools scored a pronounced hit. Gifted with a contralto voice of remarkable natural qualities her use of it evinced the most complete and careful culture. Her lower tones are accurate and perfect; from the middle register the notes swell forth round and resonant, and they posse a a sweetness and sympathy that are all the more admirable, because they are so rarely met with in a voice of such power. Miss Poole won the favor of the audience from the outset in her duct with Sig. Tagliapietra when an air from "Favorita" was sang "'Tis I" (Pinguti), where the ele most ample scope, and in response to a

Mr. Deyo, who of the plaintiff for $212.11. takes great interest in all matters relating to the early history of New York, prizes the picture highly, and has shown it to some of his friends—among others to Abram Hosier a member of the New York Historical society, who being well acquainted with eld New York, is able to point out many interesting features in the picture, which was painted by J. Eichholtz, a famous Lancaster artist during the early part of the present century. The date of the painting is 1806, and the view is one locking down Broadway from Park Row near the locality of the recent terrible fire. On the right hand side of the picture is a perspective of Fulton street on which then stood a row of frame buildings. To the north is old St. Paul, looking much like its present self, with the exception that a side door, long since closed, is plainly shown. Many persons have pooh-poohed the idea that St. Paul's ever had a side door, though Rev. Morgan Dix taid in a lecture a short time ago that at time there were doors on the sides of the church. The Eichholtz painting confirms the correctness of the statement. It also shows the steeple which St. Paul boasted before the clock was put ir. Among the buildings shown on the picture are some others having historical The building to the north of St. Paul's, just across Vesey street was, before the Revolutionary war, two houses with a common roof. One of them was occupied by Major Rutherford, and the other by Col. Axtell, of the British navy. Col. Axtell's house was confiscated after the Revolution, and became the official residence of Lewis A. Scott, secretary of state. Next to Col. Axtell's there was a garden. After the Revolution Rufus King, our minister to England, built upon it the house shown in the picture. He sold it to John Jacob Astor, who rented it to Edward Livingston, mayor of the city. Astor lived in it, then bought in all the buildings. The most prominent building on the other side of the street is the old Park theatre, which stood about the middle of the block between Beekman and Ann streets, and just beyond this in the picture is Andrew Hopper's house, the of the "Newsboys' Address of the Lanpresent site of the Herald building. Mr. Hogier states that'the Eichholtz picture is the only view of this part of New York over one hundred lines, enclosed in neat that he has seen; that it is remarkably accurate and the buildings are reproduced n commonly well. The peculiar chimneys and street lamps then in use are clearly shown. The streets were then lighted with oil. The Herald, in connection with a long notice of the painting, prints a map of the scene as it then existed

COLUMBIA NEWS.

The Spelling Bee.

OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE.

The spelling bee held last evening in Sterline's school house was a success. The room was packed to its utmost capacity. Persons from Columbia, Lancaster, Ma rietta and Newtown, being present. The exercises consisted of a "sleighing song with violin, organ and sleigh bell accompaniment;" a vocal duet by Miss Mollie Villee, of Lancaster, and Barsina down with catarrh or pneumonia. No; H. Roath, of Marietta; violin solo, he went straight to his hole, and curled "Sounds from the Old Home," by himself all up in a little heap for another Prof. J. B. Kevinski, of Lancaster. The six weeks' nap. No matter what first bee, only open to pupils, was next in self-important two-legged meteorologists order. The participants were somewhat may say or think about it, there is going nervous at first and this reason alone made to be six weeks more of wintry weather; a number miss the easiest words. Follow- there will be a full ice crop; plenty of prizes : 1st prize, "Life of Garfield," Miss | come down ; overcoats and underwear will lie Fryberger, of Marietta; 3d prize, por-tinue to reign until St. Patrick's day, on songs, the second "bee" opened, the following persons winning: 1st prize, set of napkin rings, Harry Villee, who donated the prize to the school. 2nd, a book of poems, to Miss B. Oberlin ; 3d prize, a cake dish to Miss Sadie Wisler and the fourth prize, a bread plate, to J. R. Henry, who also donated the article to the school. This ended the performance.

Meighing Mishap. Captain Case, of Marietta, had another mishap yesterday. He and his wife were out sleghing when their horse made several other portions of the bill. Brignoli ineffectual attempts to run off. The cap- used with a plow, instead of a single bow was warmly welcomed, and his rendition | tain and wife ungracefully rolled out of of Verdi's "Quando le Sere" reminded the sleigh. The horse kept kicking, but many of his hearers who knew him several was caught. The front of the sleigh was completely demolished.

Happy. Last evening, at the residence of Mr John Kepner, No. 124 North Water street, were celebrated the nuptials of his daughter, Ella E., and John J. Newpher, M. D., of Mount Joy, son of A. O. Newpher, esq., of Millersville. Quite a concourse of invited guests were present, including a number from both the towns named above. Prof. Harry A. Decker presided at the organ, and at nine o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bridal party presented themselves before the Rev. J. A. this city, who performed the very impressive "ring" ceremony of that church, after which, of course, came the usual congratulations. The bride was attended by her younger sister, Sue E. Kepner, while the groom was supported on his right by Mr. H. K. Myers, of Millersville. The bride was very becomingly attired in bronze silk, as was also the bridesmaid, while the groom and his best man wore the regulation black.

The bridal gifts consisted of numerous handsome and useful articles, and an elegant table of refreshments was spread, to which due attention was given, and after which the newly-made man and wife were escorted to the Pennsylvania railroad depot, from whence they embarked on the 11 p. m. train for Harrisburg, many being the wishes, warm and true, sped after the departing twain. From the capital they will make a short trip, which will include Danville and probably other towns in the interior of the state.

The Newsboys Address.

A Lancaster lady has shown us a copy caster Journal on the commencement of the New Year, 1821." It is a poem of composition border, representing a broad base and two columns supporting an arch at the apex of which floats a figure of Fame blowing her trumpet. The poem, which is printed on heavy white silk, recites the principal events of the year, both foreign and domestic, and winds up with the usual appeal in behalf of the newsboy. The address is an interesting relic of ye olden time.

SPUYTEN DEVVIL

Finding of the Grand Jury in the Railroad

New York, Feb. 2.—The grand jury of the court of general sessions who have had Missouri, Kansas & Texas..... before them the Spuyten Duyvil disaster N. Y., Lake Eric & Western.... returned an indictment against Geo. W. Hannaford, conductor, and Geo. Melius, brakeman of the wrecked Albany train, charging them with manslaughter in the fourth degree.

The grand jury say that they find that the direct cause of the accident was crim inal negligence and carelessness on the part of Hanceford, the conductor, and Melius, the brakeman. They find that Edward Stanford, engineer of the leading locomotive, A. Buchanan, engineer of the second one, and the engineer of the Tarrytown train were not responsible. They censure Superintendent Toucey and the managers of the New York Central railroad for not having the cut better guarded, and for allowing a too high rate of speed through it.

A patent has just been granted to Simon B. Minnich, of Landisville, this county, for an improvement in manure hooks. The novelty in this invention consists in ar? ranging the tines so that they prevent a scoop-shaped or concave front, enabling the hook to take and carry a larger load than when otherwise arranged. Another improvement is the arrangement of the lever which works the hook in combination with ordinary handles, such as are handle as now in use. This patent was secured through Wm. R.
