The Hatchet's Terrible Work. After Mrs. Masch and the children had been removed from the house, Drs. Compton and Welchans proceeded to make an autopsy of the remains of the elder Mrs. Masch. It was found that she had bled very profusely, the rag carpet upon which she had fallen under the blows of her daughter-in-law being actually saturated with blood-perhaps a gallon or more. There was a severe contusion over the right cheek bone, which was swollen and discolored, the right eye was much blackened, and there was another contusion on the left side of the nose. There was a small, curved incised scalp wound on the top of the forchead, about three-fourths sized audience greets them here, but if to of an inch in length. David Brubaker was a resident of East Hempfield township, and Mrs. Haverstick was one of his daughters. She claims that in August, 1874, six years before her father's death, he gave her this bond which she handed back to him to keep for her, as she was not of age. She has not seen it since and now sues to recover. It was shown by the plaintiff and her sister that the bond was given her at given to the latter, and witnesses tes- this city. tified that deceased had said he had given these bonds to his daughters.

The defense was that after the death of Mr. Brubaker an examination was made of all his papers, but no bond of the kind alleged to have been given was found. No demand was ever made by the plaintiff for the bond until her sister had recovered on one which she held. On trial.

ANOTHER DARING BURGLASST.

House Entered by Thieves and Robbed Last night.

Some time during last night the house of Wm. T. Youart, jr., who resides at Graeff's landing, a short distance below the railroad bridge, was broken into by burglars. They effected an entrance by forcing open the back door, which open into the sitting room. They stole the following articles : Two sets of gold jewelry. consisting of breast-pin and ear times : a silver watch valued at thirty-five dollars : two coats and a vest and $15.75 in money. The money was taken from a pocket-book in a bureau in the sitting room. The other bathe things were taken from the room in which Mr. Youart and family were sleeping. This room is next to the sitting room and the door of it was open this morning. Mr. Mary Culp. Youart's family consists of himself, wife and child, and they heard nothing of the thieves. It is believed that chloroform was used, as both Mr. Youart and his family felt the effects of it to-day. The only trace to the thieves are a number of foot prints o'two men around the house. They show that one of the party had shoes on and the other was bare-footed. It is believed however that there were three in the gang. One

There were about fifty people injured, ranging from slight cuts to frightful mangling of the head and limbs. Several had part of their faces torn off, but are still living. How it Happened. Professor Jackson has arrived. He says he thinks gas from the stove ignited some untinished rockets which were stored in the place. This caused the first explosion according to his theory, and the second explosion, the fatal one, was caused by the detonation of some colored stars used for filling up burnt shells About an hour intervened between the two explosions, and in this time much of the effects were removed by Charles Van Hore, an attache, and Lem Bagshaw, both of whom made a narrow escape. The pro prietor estimates his loss at $15,000, oa which there is no insurance. Pennsylvania R.
