HER ANSWER.

For the INTELLIGENCER. I'm going to write you, dear Harry, A secret you never must tell ; That beauty-Miss Lily Maguire-Of course you remember her well-Has numbered my heart with her conquests My devotions I've paid at her shrine; I have thought I'd feel better a husband. And I've asked Miss Lil to be mine.

You remember the first time that I went there You were one of us country boys then : When Bud was the only name I had, And you were called nothing but Hen : And you were in love with her sister, The dark eyed beautiful Rose, A flower transplanted in heaven,

Where never a cold wind blow-'Iwas a sad, sad grave that we made her, Down there where the violets were spread, And her face, as she lay in her coffin, Made me think that an angel was dead. And her grave, I wander there often.

I think it a duty I owe-I could see the spot now in the moonlight. But it's covered all over with snow.

And you went to the city soon after, You" couldn't live here without Rose.' And down there in business and pleasure. You've forgot her almost, I suppose. Well now in this sad retrospective. I have strayed quite away from my theme But I'll never lorget those old days, Hal, They're to me like a beautiful dream,

I am living here now on the homestead-It was mine with my twenty-first year It is joined by Maguire's, you know, Hal. And like his of encombrances clear. Here I do just whatever will please me, Though I hope I ne'er please to be mean. And when showing my power, would oppres-Hal.

I take care that my power's not seen. And I've often telt so lonely here. With a great vacant place in my life; And the only thing that would fill it I've thought. In the whole wide world, was a wife Sout last, to my own satisfaction, Having settled that I married would be I paid court to the beautiful Lily-

I was very methodic, you see. Aud Miss Lily, like Barkls, was " willin', And her dad was askind as could be, And while I was a courting his daughter He was paying his homage to me.

He retired nightly early whenever (And 'twas oft) I went over to woo, And would leave Lil and me there together → Which of course was the right thing to do. When the first blue bird chirped in the spring time, That awakened old nature to life We together would stray to the wild wood, Where the trailing arbutus grew rife. Then the apple blooms came on the orchard. With a treasure of beauty untold, through them, Made Lil's tresses a crowning of gold. Then the berries grew ripe in the clearing,

And the mocalight, when glinting down

Where we two their green hiding place And Lil's lips tooked sweeter, far sweeter, Than the brightest of berries, me thought.

And dogether we drove in the evenings. Slowly down by the river's green shore, and the burden the waters would sing us Seemed to be "evermore, evermore!" Ah! I thought she was learning to love me With the innocent trust of a child, And it loving a Lily's withetic I was more an aesthetic than Wilde.

So, last Saturday night I went over With the notion full grown in my head That I'd tell her how dearly I loved her, And would beg her so warmly to west. She was sitting alone by the fire, With her face golder-framed by her hair,

And I thought I would give her a scepter of gold. If she'd come to my hearth and sit there

When I asked for her father, she answered-" He's away on some business to day, But he promised to be home by nine o'clock

If he met no vexatious delay." Then she sat at the sweet-toned organ And trillied a weird old tune. Till slowly her voice grew softer. And she sang me " Banks o'Doon."

Eight, nine, ten, the old clock struck.

And the wind went whistling by ; And she wondered how soon her tather would (" May be be a week," hoped 1)

Then she walked to the window to look for him,

When her sweet red lips cried, "Oh-Just look here at the great big drift-He will never come through such snow.

And she chapped her hands and danced around Like a child transported with glee, "We will sleigh just lots!" she archly said "In this fine moonlight, won't we ?" By heavens! Hal, I could have worshipped her.

As she stood in her witchery there, With her great deep eyes as the ether 15 blue And her cheek as her namesake fair But her prattle ran on- "And you're "snow bound,'

And you can't go home to-night, And there's not a man in all the bouse. And I'm sure I'd die of fright. ' Her small white hand was on my arm, And a soft pleading light in her eyes-Where your sweetest pleasure lies.

It is wise to be coaxed along the path. So, I stayed all night to protect Miss Lil But my love I didn't tell. To anticipate was bliss enough, And the morrow would do as well,

Of course it came, and breakfast o'er The hours flew swiftly away : And I took her hand so dainty in mine And said I had something to say.

Then I told of my love so burning and pure Of the yearnings that filled my life, And my words fiew out like an anvil's sparks Till I'd asked her to be my wife. While the roses and lilies were at play on he check, For her answer my head drooped low. For I thought she was likely to whisper it Hat.

And I'll be darned it she didn't say No. Then I rushed from the house at a madman'.

pace-What was the cold and snow to me For oh! my life must ever be cold. And its crater with snow full be !

HAL'S ANSWER. Your long-winded epistle came duly to land Laden down with the secret it bore, Which my duty unwavering shall sacrestly keep. Till the river stops singing "Evermore:" For I asked Miss Lil that self-same thing. The last time she was here in the city.

And she didn't say no -we will marry quite I suppose you'll not thank me for pity ?

I sipped the Rose contentedly, of all its fine quintessence. And now the Lify I shall plack, rich in its ado-

Violations of Election Laws.

Judge Barrett yesterday at New York decided in the cases of Washington E. Hall and Thomas Boland, convicted October, 1879, of violating the election laws, that the prisoners should be taken to state prison to serve out their sentences of two years each. The court also granted a writ of certiorari in their cases, but denied a stay of proceedings.

HOSTETTER'S

CELEBRATED

A remedy with such a reputation as Hotetter's Stomach Bitters deserves a fair trial. If you are dyspeptic, your malady will eventually yield to it; it you are feeble, lack flesh and feel despondent, it will both build and cheer you up: if you are constipated, it will relieve, and it bilious, healthfully stimulate your liver. Don't despond, but make this effort in the right direction.

In saying that we know a Positive Cure for Sick Headache, Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Nervousness, Paralysis, Sleeplessness and Dys pepsia, we refer, of course, to Dr. Lenson' Celery and Chamomile Pills, which are all they are recommended to be, and will care the above named diseases without any doubt, athey have permanently cured thou-ands.

The greatest discovery and the best remedy now extant is found in these pills. The properties of Celery and Chamomile are peculiarly adapted to cure headache, and it remained for Dr. Benson to formulate and compound the properties so as to make them available. The Herald says: Dr. Benson is recognized as one at the most eminent and successful physicians in Baltimore, and his reputation is of itself a sufficient guarantee of the value of his medi-

THE KIDNEYCERA MP'G COMPANY.

Gents—It gives me much pleasure to say that after using one pack of KIDNEYCURA I have been entirely cured of a severe pain in my back and side, of long-standing, and that, too, after trying various known remedies. I have every confidence in your medicine, cheerfully recommend it and know that many of my friends who have used it have been benefited. PETER BAKER, m25lyd Foreman Examiner and Express.
