

The Lancaster Intelligencer.

Volume XVIII.—No. 159

LANCASTER, PA., WEDNESDAY MARCH 8, 1882.

Price Two Cents.

GRAND OPENING OF "THE GREAT NEW YORK BAZAAR."

GRAND OPENING OF THE GREAT NEW YORK BAZAAR.

GRAND OPENING OF THE GREAT NEW YORK BAZAAR!

GOTTSCHALK & LEDERMAN, Proprietors,

26 and 28 NORTH QUEEN STREET, - - - Lancaster, Penn'a.

ON OR ABOUT APRIL 1,

WITH A MOST SELECT STOCK OF

MILLINERY GOODS, NOTIONS,

Hosiery, Gents' Furnishing Goods,

LACES, RIBBONS, GLOVES,

IN FACT EVERYTHING IN FACT

APPERTAINING—TO A FIRST-CLASS—APPERTAINING

MILLINERY AND NOTION BAZAAR!

LOOK OUT FOR OUR GREAT OPENING ANNOUNCEMENT! LOOK OUT FOR OUR

THE GREAT

NEW YORK BAZAAR!

GOTTSCHALK & LEDERMAN, Proprietors,

26 & 28 NORTH QUEEN STREET,

LOEB'S OLD STAND.

Lancaster, Penn'a.

CLOTHING.

TALK:
Christmas has come and gone. The old year has kissed its "good bye" to '82 and dropped back into the past, taking its place among the most eventful years of history. The holidays are over. The gift givers have ceased their giving, and the time when any thing and everything would sell so readily has gone.

The "old foggy" merchants are preparing to wear out their cushions and trousers by sitting themselves down during the months of January, February and March, to await the coming of "SPRING TRADE."

The "WIDE AWAKE" MERCHANT, the "Man-Who-Never-I-as-a-Dull-Season," the man who has learned that trade can be made in the usually dull months by working for it is launching forth some new ideas, some attraction which will draw the people; and accordingly keep the trade "booming" and give his sleepy neighbors something to talk about and worry over.

Can any person be so obstinately blind as not to see that the "EVER-BUSY MERCHANT" is the one who REPLECES HIS GOODS TO COST IN the dull season rather than store them away for the next season, whether his neighbor likes it or not, and such a store is being sought after by the swarming thousands of Lancaster city's and county's purchasers.

AND NOW WE HAVE OUR STORE ILLUMINATED BY THE ELECTRIC LIGHT by which every thing and color can be seen as well by night as by day.

I therefore call your attention that every garment has been MARKED DOWN TO COST FOR THE NEXT THIRTY DAYS, whereby you will be enabled to buy an OVERCOAT OR SUIT OF CLOTHES AT A VERY LOW PRICE.

Having still a good assortment on hand to select from.

My "Custom Made Department" is filled with the choicest Woollens the market affords. A perfect fit always guaranteed.

AL ROSENSTEIN,
THE PIONEER OF MODERATE PRICES,
NO. 37 NORTH QUEEN STREET. Next door to Shultz & Bro's Hat Store.

HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS.

FLINN & WILLSON.
HAVE JUST RECEIVED ANOTHER INVOICE OF
AUCTION GOODS.
WHICH THEY ARE SELLING MUCH BELOW THEIR VALUE.
Tinware, Wood and Willow-ware, Table Cutlery,
Spoons, Buckets 10 cts., Brooms,
Floor Oil Cloth 25 cts.

DON'T FAIL TO CALL AND GET BARGAINS.

FLINN & WILLSON,
Lancaster, Pa.

PLUMBER'S SUPPLIES.

JOHN L. ARNOLD.
PATENT COLD-CASE HEATERS.
BEST PORTABLE IN USE.
SLATE ROOFER AND ROOFS REPAIRED
PLUMBING AND GAS FITTING,
Stop and Valves for Water, Gas and Steam.

JOHN L. ARNOLD,

No. 11, 12 & 15 EAST ORANGE STREET, LANCASTER, PA.

BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

VALENTINES.
Valentines and Valentine
Cards.
In Great Variety at
L. M. FLYNN'S,
BOOK AND STATIONERY STORE,
No. 42 WEST KING STREET.

VALENTINE SEASON.
Valentines!
IN GREAT VARIETY.
VALENTINE CARDS

—AND—
NOVELTIES,
At the Bookstore of
John Baer's Sons,
Nos. 15 & 17 North Queen Street.

SIGN OF THE BOOK.
LIQUORS, &C.
RINGWALT'S
WINE, LIQUOR, ALCOHOL AND GROCERY STORE,
No. 205 West King Street.

HOUSEAL & CO'S
NEW LIQUOR STORE,
No. 43 North Queen Street, Lancaster, Pa.
The very best and finest qualities of Foreign and Domestic WINES and LIQUORS, constantly for sale at wholesale and retail.

MALT WINE.
HERCULES MALT WINE.
The Best and Cheapest
MALT EXTRACT
EVER PREPARED
An invigorating HEALTH AND TABLE BEVERAGE. A reliable remedy for INDIGESTION, DEBILITY and MALNUTRITION. Highly recommended for INFANTS, DELICATE, CONVALESCENTS and NURSING MOTHERS.

MINNIG'S LATEST IMPROVED PATENT TOBACCO PRESSES,
For Casing and Baling Tobacco. Minnie's MANURE DREG, for cleaning stables. All sold on trial on their merits. Warranted to give better satisfaction in every particular than any now in use. If not satisfactory can be returned at my expense. Send for illustrated Circular.
S. B. MINNIG,
Lancaster, Lancaster County, Pa.

Lancaster Intelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MARCH 8, 1882.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

NEWS FROM EAST AND WEST.

LATE INTELLIGENCE FROM MANHEIM.

Matters and Things in General About Manheim.

Miss Sallie Stonorod, of Harrisburg, is spending a few days here with her parents.

Harry Martin, night operator at Landisville, was visiting friends here on Sunday.

C. W. Miller, jr., will leave next week for Lafayette, Indiana, where he intends to engage in farming.

The schools here will close next week, and Superintendent Shaub has not made his appearance yet.

Will McCauley, of this place, will open a cigar factory at Anuville, Lebanon county, this spring.

This town presented a decided business appearance on Saturday afternoon. Market Square and South Prussian streets were lined on both sides with vehicles, and business men were wreathed in smiles.

Rumor has it that the Pine Grove railroad, which was commenced some time ago, will now be finished. The road will make connections with the Colebrook Valley at Mt. Hope, and the Reading & Columbia railroad at Manheim.

Mr. J. J. Rothrock, of the theological seminary, Lancaster, preached an able and elaborate discourse in the Reformed church on Sunday evening. He handled the text with a nicety commanding the attention of the vast audience.

A sociable complimentary to Miss Sarah Burns was given at the residence of Mr. J. L. Sharp, on Saturday evening, upon her return home from Wellesley college, Mass. Vocal and instrumental music formed a delightful programme for the evening's entertainment.

A free lecture will be held in Arnold's hall on Wednesday evening. Past Grand Master George F. Boie, of Philadelphia, will lecture on "American Old Fellowship—Its Origin and Mission."

Mr. Chas. D. Emstinger has shown us some fine aboriginal curiosities in the shape of arrow heads. One of them is nearly six inches long and is perfect in every respect.

Miss Sarah Burns and Mr. J. B. Keylor will open select schools next month. Those wishing to prepare themselves for examination would do well to obtain terms.

Dr. W. F. Roth delivered a free lecture in the school building on penmanship. The doctor a fine penman and if his re- ceives encouragement will start a writing class. Those wishing to learn the art of graceful penmanship would do well to join.

Mr. J. M. Hahn, one of the largest cigar manufacturers in Eastern Pennsylvania, will permanently close his factory by the first of April. Mr. E. P. Pritz, his foreman, will open a factory on Wolfe street.

Mr. E. S. Brenner, clerk at Dauner's store, has resigned and accepted a situation offered him at William & Foster's, Lancaster, Pa. Edith's companion and has won hosts of friends the short time he was at Manheim.

The Manheim literary society, organized under such favorable circumstances last fall, adjourned sine die on Friday evening—the officers taking off the cares and responsibilities of their office and departed in peace. Local orators who took occasion to "spread" themselves will be heard no more, but the impressions they made will forever remain green in memory.

Who that has ever lived any time in the country but must have heard of the virtues of Burdock as a blood purifier. Burdock Blood Bitters cure dyspepsia, biliousness and all disorders arising from impure blood or deranged liver or kidneys. Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

Visible Improvement. Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened, and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. will cure dyspepsia, heartburn, malaria, kidney disease, liver complaint and other wasting diseases.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. enriches the blood and purifies the system—cures weakness, lack of energy, etc. Try a bottle.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Ladies and all sufferers from neuralgia, hysteria and kindred complaints, will find it without an equal.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. For sale at COCHRAN'S DRUG STORE, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

How John Bull Lost London. A Pamphlet Published in London in the year 1794, under the title of "The History of a Little Brochure, significantly bound in a tricolor cover, has just been published in London. It is called "How John Bull Lost London; or, The Capture of the Channel Tunnel." After some introduction it says:

"On the evening of a bright day in May there arrived by the Channel tunnel at Dover, a large number of French holiday makers. The "Allied Brothers of the Amity Lodges of the Freemasons," so the newspapers of Paris stated, had determined to hold a fete in England, and three special trains had brought the holiday makers through. They had engaged beds everywhere, the Lord Warden and all the other hotels were crowded to excess; but nobody thought anything of that, for there had been several such fetes on a somewhat smaller scale, it is true, but still fetes of a similar kind before. It was known, though not specially noted at the time, however, that just at that precise date a couple of French army corps were carrying out a series of peace manoeuvres in the neighborhood of Amiens. Nobody thought about what the French did, they were England's firm allies. It is true there had been a little misunderstanding about the right of France to menace the Egyptians with an armed force should they not hasten to confer certain concessions upon various great French financial companies, and true, moreover, that Tripoli, having some time since been annexed to Tunis, had been a matter of some contention between the governments of London and Paris; but these were small matters which diplomacy would certainly smooth over; nobody gave them more than a passing thought. When, then, on that fine May evening the tourists arrived, nobody thought anything of their visit, nor was it considered at all suspicious; nor when, later on, by an hour or two, two French steamers, which might have been loaded with apples or arms, drew up near the Admiralty pier, and sent word ashore that they would be examined by the customs officer in the morning. It was all so natural, Dover that night slept tranquilly. It had not a large garrison for troubles in Ireland and a reduced army system had not left many men in the lines about town. But it knew it was secure; none but the good and friendly French were near, and they were only tourists. Only tourists!

The clock had only just struck midnight when all on a sudden these tourists might have been seen hurrying toward the tunnel station, while coming from the French steamers were many men bearing in their arms bundles of rifles. There was a shout as of a scuffle and a shot or two fired, but it only drew the attention of a very few. The tourists had all disappeared. But an alarm had been given, and the police had been sent down to the tunnel mouth; and then, the alarm continuing, a party of soldiers had been sent. What could it all mean? Only this, that the tourists were rapidly encircling themselves behind the railway material and the mouth of the tunnel, were throwing up earthworks and cutting trenches and quickly converting the position they had taken up into a military intrenchment. Alarm clock. What troops there were in Dover were sent in good earnest now to attack the strangers, for it was clear that they had got the tunnel in their hands and if they could hold it for six hours or more they would be able to dislodge them. But the attack was not by any means the easy job it had looked. It was night time and the men, hidden behind earth and railway trucks, could not be seen. In vain the musketry rattled in the direction of the tunnel, and the apparatus of the frontiers were safely under shelter and in impenetrable position. Artillery must be brought up and the tunnel destroyed, that was clear; the order was given. But the artillery was ineffective, and it was now found that the electric wire provided for blowing up the tunnel, and the apparatus for slitting it had all been seized and cut; the tunnel mouth must be retaken by hand-to-hand fighting. Telegrams were forthwith despatched to London and the Dover garrison led up to the fight. It rumbled, however, not many more than the invaders, and these had the immense advantage of being under cover. There was many an English soldier who bit the dust that night.

Let it not be supposed that in London the government on getting information of what was transpiring at Dover was supine; on the contrary it acted with praiseworthy energy. The secretary for war was at a reception of the wife of the Foreign Minister when the startling news arrived, and his first impulse was to rush up to his colleague to demand what it all meant. "I am wholly at a loss to know," was the reply, "except that this evening the French ambassador did certainly say to me that his government viewed our protest with regard to Egypt more seriously than he wished, and that he trusted the situation might not become strained. But I took him to be joking," "joking!" roared the war minister. "Do you know that the French have come through the tunnel and taken Dover since midnight, three hours ago?" To say how the ministers were thunderstruck hardly describes their condition. But they acted—the one leaving the company immediately, and driving round to seek for explanation from the French ambassador, whom he, curiously enough, did not find at home; the other to the war office, whether he summoned everybody attached to the staff. * * * News from Dover announced that the French force there had increased to an army corps and was being augmented every hour. While it was as plain that the various detachments coming from different parts of the country essayed to attack Dover they would be cut off in detail, there must be an order given for a concentration upon various points. Dover had gone and could not be retaken for the present, and the whole available army must be concentrated upon the Surrey Hills till it was ready to march."

It is certainly a blessing to have a safe, reliable and cheap remedy for coughs and colds near at hand at this season of the year. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has eminently proved itself to be such a remedy. Price 25 cts.

Frightful Misery. Mr. Wm. Pomeroy, Bangor, Me., writes: "I have for a long time suffered from continuing constipation, making my life miserable and causing headache and trifling cramps. Mr. Thomson (who has been lately visiting in Buffalo) induced me to try the Spring Bitters. It has perfectly cured me." Price 50 cts. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

News From Over the River. On last Thursday, while performing gymnastic exercises in the Collegiate Institute, Mr. Alex. Stewart, son of Rev. Dr. Stewart, of Colerain, fell and broke his left arm below the elbow. In consequence of this Mr. S. will not attend the institute for two months. This is one of the many accidents that has lately occurred in the Gymnasium.

Prof. Lotner has again returned to the college and will give a six weeks' course in calisthenics. This is free to the students and alumni, being the gift of Mr. S. Stewart.

On Wednesday evening Rev. Mr. McMillan, of Salt Lake City Utah, will lecture in the Presbyterian church on Mormonism.

On last Friday night the Franklin literary society held its third anniversary, exercising in the opera house. The exercises were good and the house crowded.

How John Bull Lost London.

Who that has ever lived any time in the country but must have heard of the virtues of Burdock as a blood purifier. Burdock Blood Bitters cure dyspepsia, biliousness and all disorders arising from impure blood or deranged liver or kidneys. Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

Visible Improvement. Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened, and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. will cure dyspepsia, heartburn, malaria, kidney disease, liver complaint and other wasting diseases.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. enriches the blood and purifies the system—cures weakness, lack of energy, etc. Try a bottle.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Ladies and all sufferers from neuralgia, hysteria and kindred complaints, will find it without an equal.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. For sale at COCHRAN'S DRUG STORE, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

How John Bull Lost London. A Pamphlet Published in London in the year 1794, under the title of "The History of a Little Brochure, significantly bound in a tricolor cover, has just been published in London. It is called "How John Bull Lost London; or, The Capture of the Channel Tunnel." After some introduction it says:

"On the evening of a bright day in May there arrived by the Channel tunnel at Dover, a large number of French holiday makers. The "Allied Brothers of the Amity Lodges of the Freemasons," so the newspapers of Paris stated, had determined to hold a fete in England, and three special trains had brought the holiday makers through. They had engaged beds everywhere, the Lord Warden and all the other hotels were crowded to excess; but nobody thought anything of that, for there had been several such fetes on a somewhat smaller scale, it is true, but still fetes of a similar kind before. It was known, though not specially noted at the time, however, that just at that precise date a couple of French army corps were carrying out a series of peace manoeuvres in the neighborhood of Amiens. Nobody thought about what the French did, they were England's firm allies. It is true there had been a little misunderstanding about the right of France to menace the Egyptians with an armed force should they not hasten to confer certain concessions upon various great French financial companies, and true, moreover, that Tripoli, having some time since been annexed to Tunis, had been a matter of some contention between the governments of London and Paris; but these were small matters which diplomacy would certainly smooth over; nobody gave them more than a passing thought. When, then, on that fine May evening the tourists arrived, nobody thought anything of their visit, nor was it considered at all suspicious; nor when, later on, by an hour or two, two French steamers, which might have been loaded with apples or arms, drew up near the Admiralty pier, and sent word ashore that they would be examined by the customs officer in the morning. It was all so natural, Dover that night slept tranquilly. It had not a large garrison for troubles in Ireland and a reduced army system had not left many men in the lines about town. But it knew it was secure; none but the good and friendly French were near, and they were only tourists. Only tourists!

The clock had only just struck midnight when all on a sudden these tourists might have been seen hurrying toward the tunnel station, while coming from the French steamers were many men bearing in their arms bundles of rifles. There was a shout as of a scuffle and a shot or two fired, but it only drew the attention of a very few. The tourists had all disappeared. But an alarm had been given, and the police had been sent down to the tunnel mouth; and then, the alarm continuing, a party of soldiers had been sent. What could it all mean? Only this, that the tourists were rapidly encircling themselves behind the railway material and the mouth of the tunnel, were throwing up earthworks and cutting trenches and quickly converting the position they had taken up into a military intrenchment. Alarm clock. What troops there were in Dover were sent in good earnest now to attack the strangers, for it was clear that they had got the tunnel in their hands and if they could hold it for six hours or more they would be able to dislodge them. But the attack was not by any means the easy job it had looked. It was night time and the men, hidden behind earth and railway trucks, could not be seen. In vain the musketry rattled in the direction of the tunnel, and the apparatus of the frontiers were safely under shelter and in impenetrable position. Artillery must be brought up and the tunnel destroyed, that was clear; the order was given. But the artillery was ineffective, and it was now found that the electric wire provided for blowing up the tunnel, and the apparatus for slitting it had all been seized and cut; the tunnel mouth must be retaken by hand-to-hand fighting. Telegrams were forthwith despatched to London and the Dover garrison led up to the fight. It rumbled, however, not many more than the invaders, and these had the immense advantage of being under cover. There was many an English soldier who bit the dust that night.

Let it not be supposed that in London the government on getting information of what was transpiring at Dover was supine; on the contrary it acted with praiseworthy energy. The secretary for war was at a reception of the wife of the Foreign Minister when the startling news arrived, and his first impulse was to rush up to his colleague to demand what it all meant. "I am wholly at a loss to know," was the reply, "except that this evening the French ambassador did certainly say to me that his government viewed our protest with regard to Egypt more seriously than he wished, and that he trusted the situation might not become strained. But I took him to be joking," "joking!" roared the war minister. "Do you know that the French have come through the tunnel and taken Dover since midnight, three hours ago?" To say how the ministers were thunderstruck hardly describes their condition. But they acted—the one leaving the company immediately, and driving round to seek for explanation from the French ambassador, whom he, curiously enough, did not find at home; the other to the war office, whether he summoned everybody attached to the staff. * * * News from Dover announced that the French force there had increased to an army corps and was being augmented every hour. While it was as plain that the various detachments coming from different parts of the country essayed to attack Dover they would be cut off in detail, there must be an order given for a concentration upon various points. Dover had gone and could not be retaken for the present, and the whole available army must be concentrated upon the Surrey Hills till it was ready to march."

It is certainly a blessing to have a safe, reliable and cheap remedy for coughs and colds near at hand at this season of the year. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has eminently proved itself to be such a remedy. Price 25 cts.

Frightful Misery. Mr. Wm. Pomeroy, Bangor, Me., writes: "I have for a long time suffered from continuing constipation, making my life miserable and causing headache and trifling cramps. Mr. Thomson (who has been lately visiting in Buffalo) induced me to try the Spring Bitters. It has perfectly cured me." Price 50 cts. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

News From Over the River. On last Thursday, while performing gymnastic exercises in the Collegiate Institute, Mr. Alex. Stewart, son of Rev. Dr. Stewart, of Colerain, fell and broke his left arm below the elbow. In consequence of this Mr. S. will not attend the institute for two months. This is one of the many accidents that has lately occurred in the Gymnasium.

Prof. Lotner has again returned to the college and will give a six weeks' course in calisthenics. This is free to the students and alumni, being the gift of Mr. S. Stewart.

On Wednesday evening Rev. Mr. McMillan, of Salt Lake City Utah, will lecture in the Presbyterian church on Mormonism.

On last Friday night the Franklin literary society held its third anniversary, exercising in the opera house. The exercises were good and the house crowded.

How John Bull Lost London.

Who that has ever lived any time in the country but must have heard of the virtues of Burdock as a blood purifier. Burdock Blood Bitters cure dyspepsia, biliousness and all disorders arising from impure blood or deranged liver or kidneys. Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

Visible Improvement. Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened, and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. will cure dyspepsia, heartburn, malaria, kidney disease, liver complaint and other wasting diseases.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. enriches the blood and purifies the system—cures weakness, lack of energy, etc. Try a bottle.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Ladies and all sufferers from neuralgia, hysteria and kindred complaints, will find it without an equal.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. For sale at COCHRAN'S DRUG STORE, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

How John Bull Lost London. A Pamphlet Published in London in the year 1794, under the title of "The History of a Little Brochure, significantly bound in a tricolor cover, has just been published in London. It is called "How John Bull Lost London; or, The Capture of the Channel Tunnel." After some introduction it says:

"On the evening of a bright day in May there arrived by the Channel tunnel at Dover, a large number of French holiday makers. The "Allied Brothers of the Amity Lodges of the Freemasons," so the newspapers of Paris stated, had determined to hold a fete in England, and three special trains had brought the holiday makers through. They had engaged beds everywhere, the Lord Warden and all the other hotels were crowded to excess; but nobody thought anything of that, for there had been several such fetes on a somewhat smaller scale, it is true, but still fetes of a similar kind before. It was known, though not specially noted at the time, however, that just at that precise date a couple of French army corps were carrying out a series of peace manoeuvres in the neighborhood of Amiens. Nobody thought about what the French did, they were England's firm allies. It is true there had been a little misunderstanding about the right of France to menace the Egyptians with an armed force should they not hasten to confer certain concessions upon various great French financial companies, and true, moreover, that Tripoli, having some time since been annexed to Tunis, had been a matter of some contention between the governments of London and Paris; but these were small matters which diplomacy would certainly smooth over; nobody gave them more than a passing thought. When, then, on that fine May evening the tourists arrived, nobody thought anything of their visit, nor was it considered at all suspicious; nor when, later on, by an hour or two, two French steamers, which might have been loaded with apples or arms, drew up near the Admiralty pier, and sent word ashore that they would be examined by the customs officer in the morning. It was all so natural, Dover that night slept tranquilly. It had not a large garrison for troubles in Ireland and a reduced army system had not left many men in the lines about town. But it knew it was secure; none but the good and friendly French were near, and they were only tourists. Only tourists!

The clock had only just struck midnight when all on a sudden these tourists might have been seen hurrying toward the tunnel station, while coming from the French steamers were many men bearing in their arms bundles of rifles. There was a shout as of a scuffle and a shot or two fired, but it only drew the attention of a very few. The tourists had all disappeared. But an alarm had been given, and the police had been sent down to the tunnel mouth; and then, the alarm continuing, a party of soldiers had been sent. What could it all mean? Only this, that the tourists were rapidly encircling themselves behind the railway material and the mouth of the tunnel, were throwing up earthworks and cutting trenches and quickly converting the position they had taken up into a military intrenchment. Alarm clock. What troops there were in Dover were sent in good earnest now to attack the strangers, for it was clear that they had got the tunnel in their hands and if they could hold it for six hours or more they would be able to dislodge them. But the attack was not by any means the easy job it had looked. It was night time and the men, hidden behind earth and railway trucks, could not be seen. In vain the musketry rattled in the direction of the tunnel, and the apparatus of the frontiers were safely under shelter and in impenetrable position. Artillery must be brought up and the tunnel destroyed, that was clear; the order was given. But the artillery was ineffective, and it was now found that the electric wire provided for blowing up the tunnel, and the apparatus for slitting it had all been seized and cut; the tunnel mouth must be retaken by hand-to-hand fighting. Telegrams were forthwith despatched to London and the Dover garrison led up to the fight. It rumbled, however, not many more than the invaders, and these had the immense advantage of being under cover. There was many an English soldier who bit the dust that night.

Let it not be supposed that in London the government on getting information of what was transpiring at Dover was supine; on the contrary it acted with praiseworthy energy. The secretary for war was at a reception of the wife of the Foreign Minister when the startling news arrived, and his first impulse was to rush up to his colleague to demand what it all meant. "I am wholly at a loss to know," was the reply, "except that this evening the French ambassador did certainly say to me that his government viewed our protest with regard to Egypt more seriously than he wished, and that he trusted the situation might not become strained. But I took him to be joking," "joking!" roared the war minister. "Do you know that the French have come through the tunnel and taken Dover since midnight, three hours ago?" To say how the ministers were thunderstruck hardly describes their condition. But they acted—the one leaving the company immediately, and driving round to seek for explanation from the French ambassador, whom he, curiously enough, did not find at home; the other to the war office, whether he summoned everybody attached to the staff. * * * News from Dover announced that the French force there had increased to an army corps and was being augmented every hour. While it was as plain that the various detachments coming from different parts of the country essayed to attack Dover they would be cut off in detail, there must be an order given for a concentration upon various points. Dover had gone and could not be retaken for the present, and the whole available army must be concentrated upon the Surrey Hills till it was ready to march."

It is certainly a blessing to have a safe, reliable and cheap remedy for coughs and colds near at hand at this season of the year. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has eminently proved itself to be such a remedy. Price 25 cts.

Frightful Misery. Mr. Wm. Pomeroy, Bangor, Me., writes: "I have for a long time suffered from continuing constipation, making my life miserable and causing headache and trifling cramps. Mr. Thomson (who has been lately visiting in Buffalo) induced me to try the Spring Bitters. It has perfectly cured me." Price 50 cts. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

News From Over the River. On last Thursday, while performing gymnastic exercises in the Collegiate Institute, Mr. Alex. Stewart, son of Rev. Dr. Stewart, of Colerain, fell and broke his left arm below the elbow. In consequence of this Mr. S. will not attend the institute for two months. This is one of the many accidents that has lately occurred in the Gymnasium.

Prof. Lotner has again returned to the college and will give a six weeks' course in calisthenics. This is free to the students and alumni, being the gift of Mr. S. Stewart.

On Wednesday evening Rev. Mr. McMillan, of Salt Lake City Utah, will lecture in the Presbyterian church on Mormonism.

On last Friday night the Franklin literary society held its third anniversary, exercising in the opera house. The exercises were good and the house crowded.

How John Bull Lost London.

Who that has ever lived any time in the country but must have heard of the virtues of Burdock as a blood purifier. Burdock Blood Bitters cure dyspepsia, biliousness and all disorders arising from impure blood or deranged liver or kidneys. Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

Visible Improvement. Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened, and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work." Price 25¢. For sale at H. B. Cochran's drug store, 137 North Queen street, Lancaster.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. will cure dyspepsia, heartburn, malaria, kidney disease, liver complaint and other wasting diseases.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. enriches the blood and purifies the system—cures weakness, lack of energy, etc. Try a bottle.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Ladies and all sufferers from neuralgia, hysteria and kindred complaints, will find it without an equal.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. For sale at COCHRAN'S DRUG STORE, 137 and 139 North Queen street, Lancaster.

How John Bull Lost London. A Pamphlet Published in London in the year 1794, under the title of "The History of a Little Brochure, significantly bound in a tricolor cover, has just been published in London. It is called "How John Bull Lost London; or, The Capture of the Channel Tunnel." After some introduction it says: