LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE

THE NEWS FROM THE COUNTY.

Regular Mt. Nebo Correspondence.

The members of the Mt. Nebo Yecum have resolved that their last meeting for the season be held on Tuesday evening, 12th inst. A remarkably good programme has been arranged for the evening. This Yecum has been a decided success, and has greatly benefited all who have taken an active part in the exercises. The Yecum has arranged for an entertainment to take place in the Mt. Nebo school house on the night of the 18th inst., the exercises to consist of dialogues, recitations and music. The proceeds are to be invested in a Webster's Unabridged for the use of the school.

The schools of Martic, which have been open for nearly six months, are about closing for the term. The teachers and scholars are looking forward to a long vacation with pleasure, and perhaps with regret by some who have been for the first time endeavoring during the past winter to teach the young ideas of Martic to shoot.

Two young misses, Annie McClure and Gertrude Alexander, aged respectively five and six years, who have during the past winter attended Bridgo Valley school, have made progress in their studies, which in the opinion of their teacher, is hard to beat. September 13, 1881, they started to school, at that time not knowing one letter in the alphabet. In the beginning of February, 1882, they were promoted to the second reader, and at the present date they have learned perfectly over half that book. In addition to this, they can both write legibly and are capable of reading any writing.

NOTES FROM OLD BART.

Our Regular Correspondence from Georgetown.

Tobacco still quiet and no sales to report.

Mr. John Hellem, of Mount Pleasant, this township, found and bottled a few days ago, a full grown rat in a potato bag. He advises the farmers that they may look out for early ravages from the bugs.

Mrs. Powell, (aged 27 years), wife of Fred. Powell, of Georgetown, died on Monday evening, 6th inst., after a long illness. Mr. Powell is left with two small children, which he will take to his father's in Strasburg.

Mr. Howard Rea is again in Bart after a term of study at Millersville. He looks well and is entirely clear of the country "flu" that is common at this season. He is the son of Mr. Rea, who was a step-mother, his father, Mr. Robert Rea, having united his fortunes with Miss McClure, daughter of David McClure, of this township, a fortnight ago.

Mr. Harrison Graham will not, as reported in these notes sometime ago, take the Green Tree hotel. Rumor now has it that Mr. Robert Thompson, of Paradise township, will be the coming landlord and candidate for "town clerk."

The firm of Hildebaugh, Saeed & Taylor, at the Nickel Mines store, are opening the spring campaign in general merchandise with a determined effort to give satisfaction to the customer and the firm. Their late purchases are a guarantee that customers can be suited in anything from a single pair of stockings to a full suit, watch, chain and all complete.

The late murder of Mrs. Shaw is the ruling topic of conversation in the public places. Considerable speculation is indulged in as to the probabilities of Shaw being caught in the "Hempstead" at this time, as he has been seen in various places and is considered too much at variance to be considered reliable. Shaw was well-known in this village and finds no sympathizers here. Considerable surprise is manifested at the way even for a day, the neighborhood being not as sparsely settled as has been reported, several houses being almost within a radius of less than a half-mile. The woods into which he ran are somewhat of a thick growth, and it is probable that a fugitive rabbit can elude the sportsman, let alone a murderer of the stamp of Shaw. Every one in this neighborhood sympathizes with the family, and deplores the fact that there is at least a chance of the murderer's escaping justice.

DRUMORE NEWS.

Our Regular Fairfield Correspondence.

Your correspondent not long since in recording the death of Mrs. Nancy A. Trimble, remarked that she was one of the oldest persons in the lower end of the county. She deserved more particular mention.

Mrs. Nancy A. Trimble was the widow of the late William Milligan, widow of the late George W. Trimble—"Bully George." She was born Sept. 1787, and died Feb. 28, 1882, making her a little over 95 years old. She lived her home with her son, Mr. Reuben Hoffman, near Mechanics Grove, where she died. She required no attention up to her last illness, a few days before which she read the seventh chapter of Job and memorized part of it. She was a member of Chestnut Level Presbyterian church for over fifty years; was the mother of ten children, all of whom she saw grow to manhood and womanhood; the grand-mother of seventy-nine children; the great-grand-mother of one hundred and seventy-one; and the great-great-grandmother of several. She lived under every presidential administration of our country from Washington to Arthur. She was buried in the old graveyard, Chestnut Level.

The members of White Rock Yecum, who have given such successful entertainments at their hall, near Union, for the benefit of the Yecum, favored Fairfield with a performance last Friday evening. The performances, for amateurs, was good and sustained the judgment passed upon them at home. The minstrels were popular and showed talent and preparation. They will appear at Garryville, on the 17th instant under the name of the Pete Flimsy minstrels.

Our coroner is not happy in mind, as they say that your Chest Level correspondent's account of him is true. Alas! when they tell the truth about us.

Working for Sergeant Mason.

It is believed that Sergeant Mason's counsel will raise the point that there was a fatal error in the court martial proceeding, which will vitiate the whole trial, namely: That the Court and Judge Ad. Roberts were sworn before the prisoner was brought into court. A dispatch was received from Chicago announcing that a petition signed by 100,000 citizens of that city urging a pardon of Mason has been forwarded to President Arthur.

Roberts, Beall & Co., wholesale boot and shoe dealers, of Richmond, Va., suspended yesterday. Cause, speculation of the senior partner.

THE QUEEN'S GRATITUDE

VICTORIA ADDRESSES HER PEOPLE.

Farewell Message Upon Leaving Her Islands for the Continent—The Czar's Sad Anniversary.

The queen has written to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the secretary of state for the home department, that she wishes, before she leaves England, to express from her heart her very deep sympathy, touched by the outbreak of enthusiastic loyalty, affection and devotion which the painful event of the 2d inst. called forth from all classes and from all parts of her vast empire, as well as by the universal sympathy evinced by the sovereigns and peoples of other nations. The queen can not sufficiently express how deeply she is gratified by these demonstrations.

She wishes to convey to all, from the highest to the humblest, her warmest and most heartfelt thanks. The queen says it has been her greatest object to do as she can for her subjects to uphold the honor and glory of her dear country, as well as to promote the prosperity and happiness of those over whom she has reigned so long. These efforts will be continued unceasingly to the last hour of her life. The queen thanks God that He spared her beloved child, who is her constant and devoted companion, and those who were with her in the hour of danger, as well as herself. She prays that He will continue to protect her for her people's sake, as He has hitherto so visibly protected her.

The Anniversary of Assassination.

At a meeting of the Social Democratic club of London, to commemorate what they designated as the glorious execution of the Czar Alexander II, resolutions were passed thanking those who were instrumental in the accomplishment of the deed. A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that the czar visited his father's tomb on Monday. He drove in an open carriage to the chapel on the scene of the murder, which was guarded by two companies of infantry. The czar and empress prayed there, and drove to the White Palace, subsequently returning to Gatchina. Anniversary services were also held in Berlin, Paris, London and Constantinople.

A WAR STORY ABOUT STANTON.

How he was Worried by a Telegram in Cheenook sent by General Ingalls.

Appropos of the suppressed Rosecrans telegram to General Garfield at the Baltimore convention in 1864, in which General Rosecrans consented to the use of his name for the vice-presidential nomination, the following war story, touched off as authentic, is told upon Secretary Stanton.

Just prior to the first battle of Fredericksburg, while General Burnside was in command, General Rufus A. Ingalls, who was then quartermaster of the army of the Potomac, and another distinguished general, desired to telegraph to Senator Nesmith, of Oregon, then in Washington, a private matter. They were well aware of the espionage of the war department, and how to convey the desired information to their friend puzzled them for a while. A brilliant idea seized them, however, to send it in the Cheenook tongue, which they, being old Pacific coast officers, were conversant with. They were also aware that Senator Nesmith understood it.

The dispatch was accordingly sent in that tongue, directed to the senator, and signed "Ingalls." It fell into Stanton's hands. All the experts and linguists in all the departments were handed the mysterious telegram; none could read it. Stanton, who was suspicious, worried and desperate, and finally sent to New York for experts; none could translate it. After four days had elapsed Stanton addressed a note to the senator to call at the war department, and on his arrival handed him the telegram and demanded to know its purport. Nesmith, who was a well-known, was a thorough war Democrat, and a friend of Lincoln's, looked at the date of the dispatch, and after reading its contents, as signed his senatorial dignity, and went for Stanton in a severe tongue-lashing, and refused to tell him the contents.

Nesmith immediately went over to the White House and protested against Stanton's action. Mr. Lincoln asked what was the nature of the dispatch from "Rufus." Nesmith, translating it, read as follows: "We are going to have a battle in a few days; are all out of whisky; come down and bring some and we will have a nice little game of poker."

Lincoln laughed heartily and said: "Go down; I will give you a pass for yours if I find friends."

Nesmith, with a party, went down, taking sufficient "commissary" along, and for several days enjoyed himself. While they were all sitting in the tent one night engaged in the seductive game, the orderly brought in a telegram for General Ingalls, which read as follows: "GEX, INGALLS! If you ever send a dispatch in such a language again you will be cashiered from the service."

E. M. STANTON.

Ingalls tossed the message over to Nesmith, who on reading it replied: "Stanton ain't president of the United States yet by a d—d sight."

Municipal Reform in Seven Years.

The Philadelphia Times, on the threshold of its eighth year, prints a retrospective glance of the condition of the political affairs of that city when it ventured upon the tempestuous sea of journalism. As our contemporary graphically recounts, it was at a time when "the Pilgrim was supreme in the councils of both parties; the office of the chief executive of the city was the centre of election frauds; a partisan police was the help-mate of the rouser, repeater and ballot-thief; the highway, departure was expending a million and a half a year with less service to the public than is now rendered for three hundred thousand; the tax office was a running sore of the city and tax receipts were regarded as mere party perquisites; Henszey was ruling the jobbers of the popular branch of councils and the "Council of Ten" was sealing the partition of plunder between public thieves and legislative corruptors; organs had been taught silence or to praise to order by the lavish employment of patronage at the cost of the people, and to the highest taxes was added the reckless increase of municipal debt at the rate of three millions a year. Elections were the merest mockeries of the popular will and he who dared to demand character and integrity in public trust was met with a flood of personal defamation."

The brief span of the Times' existence has witnessed the change of all this. "Well tested integrity now rules in the executive department; in the controller's office; in the tax office; in the highway department; the police is no longer a partisan body or the protector of political crime; the rouser, repeater and ballot-thief, as a class, is banished outside of McGowan's; councils have been wrested from the jobbers; reduced taxes with increased legitimate expenses exhibit an annual surplus to diminish our debt, and elections at last elect in Philadelphia."

TRADE TOPICS.

Failures in Business, and Other Mercantile Matters.

John L. Gassett & Brother, wholesale tobacco, New York, assigned; liabilities estimated at $15,000.

Two New York pawnbrokers, Boaz Levy and Michael Cook, have assigned on account of the heavy rates they had to pay for borrowed money. Levy's liabilities about $25,000. Cook's about $20,000.

The Hollingshead electro-depositing and manufacturing company are reported suspended. Assets, $10,000 in machinery. Liabilities, about $2,000. They expect to pay in full.

John J. Daly & Co., wholesale stationers, of St. Louis, have made an assignment. Their liabilities and assets have not yet been stated, but it is understood that the failure will not amount to much.

Taylor & Co., stock brokers of Wilkes-Barre, suspended yesterday. Their dealings have been with New York and Chicago bankers.

The total value of our exports of domestic breadstuffs, during the eight months ending February 28th last, amounted to $15,294,673, against $18,742,626 for the corresponding period of 1880-81.

GARFIELD-ROSECRANS.

How General Garfield's Letter Became Public—Further Developments Promised.

The Washington Star publishes the following: "It is stated in a responsible source that the letter written to ex-Secretary Chase by General Garfield, touching General Rosecrans, recently made public, was given out by Mr. Jacob W. Schuckes. Mr. Schuckes now lives in New York city. At the time Mr. Chase was secretary of the treasury he lived in Ohio, and was appointed from that state by Secretary Chase to a $1,000 clerkship. Subsequently he became Mr. Chase's private secretary. It is also said that he has other letters bearing on the removal of General Rosecrans, written by ex-President Garfield, which will be made public at an early day."

Attains on the Continent.

The French Senate, on Saturday, by a vote of 145 to 53, adopted a resolution forbidding the granting of railway tickets to legislators at nominal rates.

The Paris Figaro denies the report that Don Carlos has abdicated his claims to the Spanish throne in favor of his son.

MEDICAL.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

NO WHISKEY!

One of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

Brown's Iron Bitters

is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will in nearly every case take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

REV. G. W. RICE, editor of the Christianian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters: "CINCINNATI, O., NOV. 18, 1881. GENTS: The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and it is a pity that so many hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation."

has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

For sale at COCHRANE'S DRUG STORE, 137 and 139 North Queen Street, Lancaster.

HOBBLE.

This is the way many describe their feelings. How many hundreds are there who feel the same way? It would surprise us if we knew what proportion of humanity are suffering from some disorder or another, which could be easily cured if taken in time, and some of them in the right way. But most people go about it in the wrong way, and then they are not using any more, and consequently get worse instead of better.

A weak or overworked man can indulge freely of whisky and for a short time brace up with imaginary strength, but it will not be long until he will be a wreck.

What, then, is the right way? The only permanent way is to take a remedy that will build up and invigorate the system. This can only be done by beginning at the origin of the trouble, which is the blood. No one who is tired, pure and healthy can be sick.

Burdock is a root that has more life-giving qualities than any other root, herb, or plant, and if your blood is weak or impure, you should take Burdock Blood Bitters, and a pure healthy action of the blood will be the result.
