Au Odd Looking but Impenetrable Globe Quite a crowd was attracted to Centre square yesterday afternoon to witness the unloading at the Fulton national bank ofan immense globular mass of iron, the like of which had not before been seen in this city. It proved to be a Corliss burglar proof safe, made and patented by Wm. Corliss, of Providence, R. I., one of the brothers who have become so noted as the builders of steam engines. Without much difficulty the safe was unloaded from the wagon and placed in the bank, where we were given an opportunity of inspecting it.

Its outer shell is a globe of chilled iron impervious to drills, sledges, hammers, billies or any other tools of the en-terprising burglar. Within this revolves a smaller shell of chilled iron. This is the safe proper, containing shelves and apart ments of about the same capacity as the ordinary rectangular safe. This inner shell revolves on pivots, and by means of hidden machinery is made to revolve so that the solid back of the inner shell is brought to the front and closes the open face of the outer shell. The surfaces of the two shells are so nicely ground and adjusted at the front that not even a grain of powder or other explosive can possibly be introduced between them. We will not attempt to describe the simple and easily manipulated machinery by which the safe is opened and closed, but will merely say that Mr. Corliss gives a guarrantee with every safe that he sells that it is absolutely burglar proof for at least 36 hours, against all tools, explosious or other appliances that professional burglars, safe manufacturers, or other skilled mechanics can bring to bear upon it, and this, he claims, is more than the manufacturer of any other safe has done or is willing to do. Mr. Corliss labored for ten years and expended over $200,000 in bringing his safe to perfection. He struck out into untrodden paths and has produced a safe unlike any other, in form, construction, material, or locking arrangements. The safe in the Fulton bank was et up by Mr. A. Proseus agent of the Corliss manufacturing company, who within a very short time has set up two similar safes in the banks of Reading and one in Lebanon When the Fulton bank erects its new bank ing house, in the near future, t is mtended to place therein another safe of the Corliss pattern, about twice as large as the one

The Revenue Collectorship.

Mr. Somerville, of the Treasury department, whose office may be inferred from his mission here, is in Lancaster to day, engaged in investigating certain charges made against Thomas A. Wiley, collector of internal revenue, the gist of which has appeared in the editorial columns of the weekly Inquirer, and which grew out of the tierce fight between Wiley and the Griests. These charges are substantially that Wiley removed Store Feper Peter Summy, because his brother, County Comm as oner Summy, voted for Griest's son for clerk of the board; and that in his threats to co this, at sundry times and in divers places, Wiley indulged in as vigorous and emphatic language as Griest used to resort to on the street corners in his campaign against Smith. Somerville has been supplied with affidavits setting forth Wiley's threats against Summy, his motives for them and his execution of them. Wiley, on the other hand, is relating criminal cases defined. Council is author. to the inspector his alleged ample cause for the removal of Summy; and the politicians are waiting for the outcome of the matter. Some of the better informed ones say that Wiley's removal, to make room for Audy Kauffman, has been a foregone conclusion for some time, and that this apparent investigation of the attempt to find some pretext for the removal of a faithful officer with a faultless official recovi Griest Summy personal charges is only an official record.

BURGLARIOUS ENTRY.

Locher & Son's Tannery again Broken Into Last night thieves broke into the office of the tannery of Locher & Son's, South Prince street and stole therefrom two dozen of dressed calf skins, worth $60 or $70. They effected an entrance by breaking off the hasp of the front-door lock. Neigh bors on the opposit side of the street heard them at work, and called over to them to know what was the matter. The thiever (there were three of them) told them with an oath to go to bed and mind their own business. The neighbors, supposing the thieves to belong to the tannery, made no building was visited by the workmen. Another Attempt.

Yesterday Edw. Dietrich, whose shoe making shop is at the corner of Plum and Chesteut streets, discovered that an attempt had been made to break into it, probably the night previous. The marks of the jimmy used to break open the door are plainly seen, but the brace on the inside was strong enough to resist the bur glars' efforts.

The Soup House.

According to the fifth annual report of the management of the soup house, there was distributed during the past season $294.02, and $95.30 worth of other donations received and used. The balance on hand to begin next reason's operations, is $126.63. In all, during the past season, there were $21,963, a less total than in any previous year; average cost per ration about 1.77 cents. There were distributions on 57 days, averaging 3851 rations a day, as against 360 in 1881, 512 in 1879 and 329 in 1878; average issue for 1882, 25 rations per day greater than in 1881. The greatest number issued on any one day was 633 (February 4), the smallest number 228 (January 2). The average money value of rations issued per day, $6.83, as against $6.541 in 1881, and $7.72

COLUMBIA NEWS.

OUR REGULAR CURRESPONDENCE. thirs Along the Susque

in and Around the Borough Plexed up by the Intelligencer's Reports Along the River Front. A walk along the banks of the Susquehanna, in company with two brother reporters, show us the ravages made by the frequent heavy rise of the water. Here and there . the earth is worked out for several rods, making deep cavities; trees have been washed away, sand piles destroyed; in fact the sbore, as far as the we could see, presented the appearance of devastated acres. It would pay our Lancaster neighbors, who have not the chance to see this sight any nearer home than Columbia, to come to our borough and see what is to be seen.

Badly Burned. Jus. Rhoder, an employee in the Susquehanna rolling mill, was this morning the perpetrator of a mean trick, which resulted perpetrator of a mean trick, which resulted in the most unfortunate consequences we have ever heard of. It appears that a young lad named Edward Cassell, aged 14 years, was running through the mill when Rhoder tripped him up, causing him to fall on a pile of red hot iron bars, burning his hands in a terrible manner. His injuries are seen to the pile of the hot manner which is not to be a seen in a terrible manner. His injuries are so great that that there are fears he will be unable to work for the next month or two. His father entered suit before Squire Grier, where the trial will come of this

Folse Alarma and Roses

Between 8 and 9 o'clock last evening a false alarm of fire was started on Cherry street, causing the entire fire department to turn out, but after finding there was no fire they returned to their respective houses. These alarms are becoming too frequent and should be stopped. They are generally raised by a number of small boys who do it to "see the fun" and row between the different companies, for the latter generally ensues. There are several reasons why it should be stopped. First, an alarm of fire, whether false or true, is not a nice thing to hear; merchants have to suspend business and are anxious to know whether their homes are in flames or not; mothers are worried about their children, who may happen to be on the street, fearful that they may be run over or trampled under foot, and last but not least, the result of the racing. This not only with the loss of property but also the loss of life; and again hard feelings are generally raised. For instance, two companies are racing and one beats the other, shouting, insulting remarks and the like, are then used. The defeated company feel badly over their defeat, but at the same time had they been the winner the esult would have been the same. And it is only natural. We do not mean to reflect discredit upon our fire boys in writing-this way, for they are as brave and daring a set as can be found anywhere. But it is for their own and the safety of our citizens that we advise the stoppage of this, what may seem fun to many, but in the end will prove detrimental.

Borough Government.

Our charter is a private act, containing most of the powers conferred by the general act. The corporate officers are a chief burgess and nine councilmen. The chief burgess has concurrent powers with jusized to appoint subordinate officers, to define their duties, and to fix their compensation. They have appointed a regulator, defined his duties minutely and fixed his fees. They have appointed two policemen, but have neither defined their duties nor fixed their fees, but pay them a monthly allowance. We have orset and on Sunday. Corner lounging and many other evils of the nineteenth century, inflicting fines and penalties, but none of them have recently been enforced. The charter provides that the chief burgess shall have power to enforce the by laws, ordinances, rules and regulations of the borough, to preserve the peace, to hear complaints, to abate nuisances and do many other things too numerous to men-Query: The borough must be plaintiff in all actions for fines under its ordinances. Can the chief burgess hear these complaints and impose these fines, he being at the same time the executive officer of the plaintiff? Section 82 of the charter provides "That where judgment further inquiry, and the robbery was not said borough for fines and penalties, discovered until this morning when the against any person for breach or violation against any person for breach or violation of any ordinance, rule or regulation of the borough, execution may be issued thereon and levy and sale made without regard to any claim to exemption under the act of April 9, 1849." Our charter and many of the ordinances are a full match for the 15-14 puzzle : but if our chief burgess and council will enforce them as others have done before them, our citizens will have much less cause for complaint than they now have. They have never authorized the special policemen to make arrests for

THE EXECUTIONER BUSY TO-DAY: Frank and Henry Rumberger Pay The Penalty for the Murder of Old Farm-

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 24.- Frank and Henry Rumberger were hanged at Both men slept well last night and were called at 5:30. Henry ate a hearty breakfast, but Frank ate sparingly, after which they devoted themselves to relig:

ous exercises. At 10:25 the sheriff and Keeper Duey notified Henry to get ready. They then conveyed the dreadful summons to rank to the scaffold.

Ascending the scaffold, Frank was Ascending the scaffold, Frank was placed on the right with Henry on the left. Rev. Keller bade Frank and then Henry good-bye and said "God bless you." Rev. Heilman said to Frank, "take comfort and trust in God." During all this trying ordeal Frank continued with his At the Lowest Prices in Lancaster. eyes closed. Rev. Rinek then uttered a short prayer that was inaudible to those on the ground.

The Lord's prayer was then started by the ministers, who were joined by both Frank and Henry. The latter appeared the more earnest and loudest. Frank then said, "Into thy bands, oh, Lord, I commit my soul." Revs. Heilman and Rinek then withdrew, leaving Sheriff Sheesley on the scaffold, who was joined by Officers Roat, Cilley and Earnest. While Officer Roat secured Frank's limbs and arms with straps, the noose was placed over his head by one of the other officers. Henry was then pinioned and the noose slipped over his head by Sheriff Sheesley. The white caps were placed over their heads, the officers withdraw, when the supports to the trap were removed while these preparations were being made the men were silently praying, scarcely able to stand. Their bodies quivered, owing to the remendous mental suspense. The ministers started the hymn "Jesus, lover of my soul," which the men joined in, and before they expected or those in waiting anticipated the trap was sprung, when the men shot through the trap and remained perfectly quiet. All the arrangements were perfect and well planned and timed; no hitch occurred and the necks are believed to be SHIRTS are very extensive and new for the broken by the fall. A very slight twiching was noticeable a few seconds after the drop, which occurred at 10:21, as timed by Prison Physician Egle. Both their necks were broken. Jonathan Moyer Hanged at Middleburg. MIDDLEBURG, March 24 .- To day Jonathan Moyer, one of the murderers of the in this place, to which but a few persons were admitted by Sheriff George Reichley. Moyer all this week had hoped against hope, his counsel having taken his case before the pardon board last afternoon, the commonwealth being represented by District Attorney Grim and Mr. Hower, but the board refused to interfere. The drop fell at 11:45.

Through delay in removing a prop, the fall was not sufficient to break his neck and death ensued from strangulation nine and a half minutes after the drop fell. He showed extreme firmness; declaring on the scaffold that the murder had been committed on Friday evening, December 7, by two parties. He claimed he did not participate in the deed, but that he helped to rob and burn the premises and the bodies on the following evening. In reply to a question, he said Erb, whose case is now under advisement, was not present on either occasion. Two more remain in jail awaiting date of execution for being implicated in the Kintzler tragedy-Uriali Moyer and Israel Erb.

Neveling, however, bore his fate bravely and went to his death forgiving every one and hoping to be forgiven. His neck was broken, and he died without a struggle. After he mounted the scaffold th doomed man exhibited a knife which be had concealed on his person, and thus demonstrated that he had at no time desired to commit suicide.
