

Lancaster Intelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MARCH 29, 1892.

More closely the scheme to admit Dakota into the Union is inquired into, the more apparent it becomes that it is unwise and premature, and that it is designed simply to increase the strength of the Republicans in Congress and in the electoral college by the three votes which this pocket state would add to it.

The public will be more or less grieved to hear that many of the leading educational institutions of the country are about to close their doors, surrender their franchises, scatter their purses and devote their endowments to more successful enterprises. The melancholy circumstances which have led them to these conclusions are the renewed "intimations" of Editor Hiestand, of the Examiner, that their scheme of education "does not educate in such a way as to give proper conceptions of life and its duties."

It has been suggested that if the government had sent on a special agent to investigate Cam Mullenberg "at home," before he was appointed paymaster in the army, it might have been furnished with far more interesting reading than even the editorials from Major DeBots' weakly Inquirer, "of 4,000 circulation," or the affidavits concerning Collector Wiley, which are supposed to make up the "case" against him.

Manly Judge Advocate Swain is a bigger fool than either Guiteau or Mason, and his exhibition of himself of late demonstrates that Mr. Garfield, like many other men of culture, displayed great weakness in the selection of his confidential friends, of whom this Swain was one. Swain exhibited his feebleness of mind in setting aside the Whittaker court martial on a technical triviality in order that the case could be disposed of with the least damage to the Republican administration. But his reasoning in recommending that the finding in Mason's case be set aside, is much sillier than in the previous case. He argues that he was not guilty of an assault with intent to kill "as Guiteau was beyond the reach of a musket shot from the position occupied by Mason at the time of the firing," and cites the legal principle that "where the ability to commit a felonious attack is both apparent and really wanting the offense is not complete."

OUR esteemed contemporary the Philadelphia Bulletin frankly expresses the opinion that it "would have been better for Tennyson's fame if he had died before producing 'The Charge of the Heavy Brigade' and the 'silly, puerile national song of 'Hands All Round,'" which it cites as the latest examples of the "senile twaddle" that the lamented Longfellow's great English contemporary has given to the world and in such striking contrast with the dead bard's latest poems, which like those of his early manhood, were pure, vigorous and manly.

THE onerous and odious tax on matches must go. Besides this, the bill agreed upon to reduce internal revenue taxes some $28,000,000 abates the stamp tax on bank checks, drafts, orders and vouchers; the tax on the capital and deposits of banks and bankers, the tax on the capital and deposits of said banks, bankers and national banks for the current six months period ending in the case of national banks on the 30th day of June, 1892, and in the case of other banks and bankers on the 31st day of May, 1892, the tax on perfume, medicinal preparations, and other articles.

SOME homoeopathic reformers in the Republican party, of Philadelphia, have held a meeting in Philadelphia and sat upon the following resolution, sent to the meeting by the editor of the Press: "That it is the sense of this meeting, composed of Republicans who earnestly seek the continued ascendancy of Republican principles and policy, that the welfare of the party demands relief from the obnoxious men and measures that have brought reproach and defeat, and that its conventions and organizations should fairly represent the voice and the rule of the people."

MAHONE is boss, all boss, and the only boss. The postmaster at Lexington, Va., Dr. Freeman, was a strong Union man throughout the war, has discharged the duties of the office with intelligence and fidelity, and is an applicant for reappointment. But the Readjusters of the Legislature unanimously endorsed Col. John B. Ledy, a member of the House of Delegates, for the position, and ordered his name to be forwarded to Senator Mahone for appointment, thus recognizing the senator's influence at headquarters. Meanwhile the Republican congressmen, Messrs. Jorgensen and Desandorf, did it impossible to reach the ear of the president in securing the most insignificant appointments for their Republican constituents.

Commissioner Green B. Raum made a great parade before and during the Chicago convention of his friendship for Grant, and was president of the Illinois Republican state convention that appointed delegates to the national convention, and went to Chicago as the avowed friend of Grant, he was secretly working all the while in the office of Sherman. Letters to this effect have been procured and other evidence showing that the revenue service of the country was manipulated in this manner against Grant by a man who openly declared himself the friend of Grant, but who was really the friend of John Sherman and engaged in obtaining the secrets of the Grant leaders, and furnishing Sherman and his friends with the information thus obtained. This is very sad, and the organs which have been busy explaining by whom and why the Garfield-Rosecrans letter was given away, and which have never explained who wrote the Morey letter, may now devote their powerful minds to explaining who exposed Raum in this melancholy manner.

The tariff commission bill, which passed the Senate yesterday by the decided and emphatic vote of 38 to 15, the free traders generally opposing it, Bayard and other eastern Democrats supporting it, provides for a commission of nine members, to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the Senate, to receive as compensation for their services ten dollars per day when actually employed and traveling and other necessary expenses. To investigate all the various questions relating to the agricultural, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, mining and industrial interests of the United States so far as the same may be necessary to the establishment of a judicious tariff or revision of the existing tariff and the existing system of internal revenue laws upon a scale of justice to all interests, and to report to Congress from time to time and to make a final report not later than the first Monday in January, 1893. Let this settle it. The tariff adjustment is a business matter to be made on business principles by business men. Take it out of politics. Politics and business will both be better for it.

Old Daddy KIRKWOOD is going back to Iowa to try and become a private citizen, but his friends may drag him out of his retirement and make him governor. A Republican senator, who has dined with every president from Buchanan to ARTHUR, says that the latter has given the best dinner he ever saw at the executive mansion.

Four new cases of smallpox, houses already quarantined were reported yesterday in South Bethlehem. There have been three deaths since Monday, making the total number of deaths to date 49. The number of cases remaining is 138. Forty new cases of smallpox and five deaths were reported yesterday in Cincinnati.

A tornado passed over Monroe, Louisiana, on Sunday evening, demolishing a number of dwellings and other buildings, and killing several persons. The loss on property is estimated at $25,000. Five persons were killed by a storm which demolished a number of houses in South-eastern Alabama the same night.

The boiler of a saw mill near Keapton, Indiana, burst yesterday, killing one man and fatally injuring two others. By the bursting of a boiler of a portable saw mill, near Corns, Ohio, yesterday, one man was killed and four others were fatally injured.

While Mr. RANDALL positively declines membership in the Democratic city committee in its present demoralized and unharmonious condition, he writes: "If in the exigencies of the coming canvass, so vital to the reform of public abuses in Pennsylvania, union and harmony in our party can be surely and certainly obtained by any labor of mine, I will be ready to assume any other duty to which I may be assigned."

May will wed November when the marriage of the Duke of WESTMINSTER and CATHERINE CAVEDISH, third daughter of Baron Chesham, takes place. The bridegroom is 33, the bride is hardly of age. Her eldest brother married a daughter of the Duke of Westminster, who will thus be the brother-in-law of his son-in-law. The late Duchess of Westminster died in 1890. She was the Duke of Sutherland's sister, famous for her beauty and good works.

BARNUM addressed a large temperance meeting in New York on Sunday evening. He said he had drunk more liquor than any man in the house. He first began drinking in England in 1842; he drank steadily, and the habit grew upon him for twenty years, until one night at a temperance lecture delivered by the Rev. Mr. Chapin, in Connecticut, he made up his mind if possible to break up the habit. He thought it over all night, and the next morning he went and signed the pledge. For twenty years he has kept the faith. The statement to the effect that the naval portfolio had been tendered to W. E. CHANDLER, of New Hampshire, "as seems to be inaccurate in view of the fact that General Grant's visit has resulted in his friend, General E. F. BEALE, formerly minister to Austria, being selected for the position. Secretary Hunt has been offered and has decided to accept the Russian mission." This is the latest rumor and anybody who thinks he is "a bigger man than ole Grant" at the White House will soon find out his mistake.

THE LATEST NEWS.

CLEANED FROM THE MORNING MAILS. Crime and Casualty - Storm and Flood - Items of Interest in Short Paragraphs - A Brutal Murderer. In Archer county, Texas, W. W. Parks, a moonshiner, and two other men called at the house of a citizen named Brookout, against whom they had a grudge, and called him to the door, when they killed him instantly.

Pennsylvania Railroad Directors. In the election of P. R. B. directors yesterday, despite the efforts of the independent, the regular ticket was elected, by a large majority. Mr. Parker's total vote being over half a million less than the lowest on the regular list. On the ticket elected George B. Roberts received 545,311 votes; William A. Brewster, 545,311; F. W. Samson, 545,311; Alexander Biddle, D. B. Cummins, Henry D. Welsh and William Thaw each 545,441; Henry M. Phillips, 545,341; John Price Wetherill, 545,311; H. H. Houston, 544,872; J. E. Elkins, 544,855; G. W. Hendon, N. Parker, 544,822; Edward V. Parker, 544,819; John F. Smith, 544,814; John Jones, 799.

Some More Stripes. The commissioners on the New York World struck last night for 45 cents per 1,000 ems, the usual extra pay for tabular work, and seven hours' composition guaranteed. The publisher refused their terms. They had been receiving 40 cents per thousand, with no allowance for tables. The ship carpenters of Portland, Maine, are on strike. An advance of fifty cents per day. Several firms have granted the advance, and it is thought all will eventually do so.

The South Carolina Election Cases. The election cases to be tried in Charleston, South Carolina, at the term of the U. S. court beginning next Monday, number 20 in all, with 56 defendants. Four of the cases are from Charleston county, the others from Richland, Sumter, Barnwell, Colleton and Georgetown counties. Most of the defendants are election officers.

The floods in the Lower Mississippi region continue to subside, though slowly, and the damage in Louisiana proves to be less than at first reported, though the destitution among the people in some localities is great. The Arizona crevasse, above Donaldsonville, is now reported to be 500 feet wide and ten deep, and no attempt to close it will be made.

Drained by Her Rejected Lover. At Napanea, Ont., Maggie Howie, while milking a cow in the stables of the Tebborne house yesterday, had her head split open with an axe, and was instantly killed by Michael Lee, whose address she had rejected. Lee was arrested after attempting suicide by dashing his head against a stone.

Professor SAMUEL D. GROSS, the renowned surgeon, resigned yesterday the chair of surgery in the Jefferson medical college, which he had occupied for twenty-six years.

Ex-Collector THOMAS MURPHY, who lives in Washington during the season, because he considers it the winter Saratoga, is said to be of opinion that he could cheerfully represent our government in Holland or Italy. JOHN CADWALLADER ERSKINE, fourth Lord and grandson of the great lawyer, Lord Thomas Erskine, died in England yesterday. He was the younger son of the second Lord David Montague Erskine, and succeeded his brother in 1877. His heir and successor is his son, William Mac-Naghten Erskine.

President ARTHUR held his first public reception in the White House last night. He was assisted in receiving by General and Mrs. Grant, the wives of several cabinet officers, Mrs. Senator Pendleton, Mrs. Senator Cameron, Mrs. McPherson and others. The reception was crowded and unusually brilliant. JOHN WANAMAKER, president of the Presbyterian Sunday-school superintendents' association, offers to supply, gratuitously, 100 packages containing four varieties of flowers to every Sunday-school making application for them provided that they hold a summer exhibition, offer prizes to those making the best displays, and report the same.

The Times notices that while the Democrats are solid for J. SIMPSON AFRICA for secretary of internal affairs, the Republicans select Lucius Rogers, their most experienced candidate. He will not be thought of, because the office was traded off more than a year ago when the bosses wanted votes for United States senator, to State senator John M. Grier.

While Mr. RANDALL positively declines membership in the Democratic city committee in its present demoralized and unharmonious condition, he writes: "If in the exigencies of the coming canvass, so vital to the reform of public abuses in Pennsylvania, union and harmony in our party can be surely and certainly obtained by any labor of mine, I will be ready to assume any other duty to which I may be assigned."

Reports from the interior of California indicate that the grain crop will be better than the average everywhere, except in San Joaquin valley. An Editor for University Regent. The joint Democratic caucus has nominated St. Clair McKelway, of the Albany Argus, for regent of the university of New York.

THE CHILI PERUVIAN MATTER. Feltinghynch's Instructions to Trescott. The president yesterday sent to the House a communication from the secretary of state saying that, up to the present time, the status of the Peruvian matter has received no information either from Mr. Trescott or from the diplomatic representatives of the United States in Chili or Peru that any protocol has been signed by Mr. Trescott or by such diplomatic representatives. The communication is accompanied by copies of telegrams exchanged between Mr. Trescott and the department, and an instruction mailed to Mr. Trescott on the 24th ultimo. The key-note of the instructions is struck in a telegram from Mr. Trescott to the secretary of state, dated Feb. 4, 1892, which says: "The president instructs me to say that this government can only propose to give counsel and aid negotiations. Chili must determine for herself whether she deems it wise to listen to such counsel, and no part will be taken by the United States in negotiations between both upon the surrender of Tarapaca and the payment of an indemnity of $20,000,000. The demand is looked upon as exorbitant and it is thought that the time has come when Chili may be magnanimous and just." In the letter of instructions it is said that the "Traditional attitude of the United States towards the sister republics of this continent is one of peace and friendly councils."

We wish to be regarded as a disinterested friend and confidant, but we do not assume to impose our wishes upon them, or to act as arbitrator or umpire in their disputes unless moved to it by the wish of both parties, or by controlling interests of our own. Republishing one edition within this sphere, the president desires you to continue to urge upon Chili, both by the arguments suggested in this instruction, and by such other pertinent arguments not inconsistent therewith as may occur to you from your knowledge of the subject, the wisdom and justice of making peace without the acquisition of Tarapaca, unless the province should eventually become Chilean through the inability of Peru to pay a reasonable indemnity to be agreed upon."

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Events Across the County Line. The McGibney family are now living in Philadelphia, but intend to remove to Chicago, the coming season. Willie Heesey, aged about 12, son of Harry H. Heesey, a farmer residing near Elkton, Md., hanged himself in a fit of melancholy.

A large vein of iron ore has recently been discovered on the Dietz farm, in Spring Garden township, York county. The vein has been examined and regarded as a rich and valuable deposit. The grist and saw mills belonging to George Richardson, of Wilmington, in Cecil county, near Chester county line, which were destroyed by fire last December, are now being rebuilt.

A great many fine cattle and heavy draught horses are shipped from Ephrata at present. During the last two weeks New York dealers shipped 139 draught horses.

On the side of a car on an eastern bound freight train on the Philadelphia railroad, as it passed through Harrisburg yesterday were the words on a card: "The miners of Clearfield county have a notion to strike."

Mr. Reuben A. Shnak, of South Lebanon, recently shot two chicken hawks, one of which measured across the wings four feet three inches and the other four feet two inches. The Frankford hosiery mills, intended for the manufacture of woolen, cotton, flax and silken goods and hosiery, were chartered yesterday at Harrisburg. Capital stock of the company is $150,000.

Charles Waters, of Frankford, sold during the past three months some ten thousand bundles of violets, containing about twenty flowers each, many of which he retained at ten cents per bunch. The manufacture of torpedoes - danger signals for the Pennsylvania Railroad company, for some time conducted in Reading, will remove to Berwyn, Chester county, where the works will be carried on.

At the Speedwell stock farm, one of its most valuable trotting mares, Lady Orange, died from inflammation of the bowels. Lady Orange was 8 years old, and was bred in Orange county, N. Y. Mr. Yontz, agent of Speedwell, valued her at $4000.

William P. Woodside has sold out his tobacco store in Oxford to Israel H. Townson at Little Britain, which has been owned by Little Britain, has quit farming and this week takes possession of the store at Peach Bottom.

At the funeral of Mrs. Eliza Scheffey, in Pottsgrove, township, Chester county, a person who had been present for some time, and who was identified by the lady had selected twenty-eight years ago, and by the minister to whom she made the request.

In the United States district court Judge Butler has refused the motion for a new trial made on behalf of John K. Miller, who was recently convicted of making and passing counterfeit coin in Lebanon county, and has fined the prisoner $100 and sent him to the penitentiary for 18 months.

At Deep Creek, Chester county, a burglar entered the house of Joshua Yergler, near which he was taken and taken to the jail. Yergler said he had none. They got into a tussel and Yergler was dragged to the stairs. The burglar fired two shots, but fortunately no one was hurt, and he escaped without securing any plunder.

In Reading Monday evening, the select council at that city was held in session, illuminated with a blue flame, while select council was in session, caused by a vivid flash of lightning, which was followed by a loud clap of thunder, and immediately thereafter the bell in the Presbyterian tower was struck on the top, and nearly all the telegraph having been affected by the lightning.

At Dillsburg, George Parford, aged 17, employed at McCormick's ore mines, while in the act of letting on the steam, he slipped and fell over the steam pipe, breaking it in two places, and falling on the ground. The time the boiler had on a head of steam some 80 or 90 pounds, which found vent through the broken pipe, completely enveloping the prostrate form of the unfortunate young man, who was unable to extricate himself, and terribly scalded him. Death ensued in a short time.

THE OPERA. Vance and Sousa's New Composition. Queen of Sausagers. Miss Fanny Wentworth. Violoncello. Miss Eva Mills. The Queen of Sausagers. Mr. J. H. Harris. Enriquette. Mr. J. J. Pugh. The Queen of Sausagers. Mr. E. J. Whipple. Mamma. Mr. J. H. Harris. Captain of Carabinieri. Mr. J. F. Rice. Orderly sergeant. Mr. Frank Baxter. The Sausagers. The new opera, a joint production of Mr. Wilson Vance, a Washington journalist, and Mr. John Philip Sousa, leader of the Marine band there. Last evening a party of sixty young people, traveling under the name of the Vance and Sousa opera company, were taken to a private box at an audience that comfortably filled the building. It had been given out that the piece made a hit in Washington, where, it has been suggested, the abundance of untamed congressmen from the bonneted provinces of the West, afforded an extraordinary singular circumstance of its success. For, excepting a few bits of nicely concerted music, there is a painful paucity of merit in the score. Here and there evidences of the composer's military training are noticeable in such movements as the "March of the Steady Waltz" that are rather pleasing; but for the most part the tunes seem to have been surreptitiously transplanted from the pages of a Sunday-school hymn book.

"There is a quietude early in the first act, a 'Sausager' song, and the 'Wine Song,' and probably it will never be understood until some progressive tobacco culturist, or vegetable physiologist discovers how to produce these markings by artificial cultivation, or chemical applications. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion, allow me to refer the reader to page 28 (Jan. No.) of the Lancaster Farmer for 1892, where may be found a paper by E. K. Hersey, of Creswell, Lancaster county, on the causes of "white vein in tobacco," which Mr. H. very pleasantly and ingeniously endeavored to embrace by meteorological conditions, operating upon the soil, or a sort of starvation of the plants through the prevailing droughts. In the same number of the Farmer, page 29, is a paper on the same subject, read by Mr. Hebron Herr before the Lancaster county agricultural and horticultural society at its January meeting 1892, in which Mr. Herr takes ground similar to that of Mr. Hersey, and nearly all who participated in the discussion, concurred in sentiment with the essay. In conclusion