Lancaster Entelligencer.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, MARCH 29, 1882.

HAL'S ANSWER.

[To the letter published in the Daily INTELLI GENCER of Feb. 21st. 1882.] For the INTELLIGENCER. The voluminous letter I answered last month Has worried me time and again, As I think of the saucy reply that I sent

To one needing comfort just then. For my teelings o'erthrew my discretion, (At such times they usually do,) And I wrote what I thought, my dear, Billie, And sent it by next mail to you.

My answer, then, think ot it only As stating the facts,-which are true,-Forgetting the fun and the joking, The "no" and the "nevermore," tco. For I would not lose your triendship, Thou trusted and trustworthy friend, Not even when pass'd 's the last milestone

And we've reached our long journey's end But enough of this vain sentimental. In this letter I mean now to tell, In confidence strict, my dear Billie,-The story of how I won Lil.

My reasons for seeking the city,-The mound and the sad funeral chime,-The hopes I had buried behind me, Come vividly now to my mind. The Winter passed quickly, and quickly, The Summer had brought me back home,

Ne'er thought I the place half so dear to me,

Nor so o'er the fields loved to roam. Twas the season for rowing and fishing. For picules, you enjoy them, I know, And off to the lake or the forest A few of us oft used to go.

The names of the few I'll not mention, You remember them all quite well. But always when boating, the party Included mysell and Miss Lil.

On one of these pleasure excursions, We two strolled away from the boat To seek for the terns and the roses. That grew by the high mountain's foot. Having placked all the flowers that we cared

We scated ourselves in the shade Of the great towering rocks of the mountain Feeling certain our toll was repaid. Engaged in the discussion of the beauty

Of the flowers of the hills and the valley, My mind, quite devoted to subjects botanic, Very naturally turned to the lily. The subject I found so engaging, That everything else I torgot, Till suddenly down from the hill-top

Came a roar like a cannon shot. A violent storm burst upon us, No shelter nor house near at hand; The clouds with the blackness of darkness. Soon covered the face of the land. The wind blew, and the rain tell in torrents,

And-how it happened I would rather not tell-A single, small, lady's umbrella Sheltered both of us marvellously well.

But I will not lengthen the story. From wearying you I'll refrain. Tis the same old story of lovers, As it was and will ever remain,-

The look, the sigh, the lingering good bye The longing to be together. The pledges, too, of each to be true, Through fair or stormy weather,

But I've a favor to ssk of you, Billle, For ot all my friends you're the best; And forgetting all else but our friendship I trust you will grant my requestin the marriage which comes off next Autumn

(In the future I'll disclose the whole plan) I hope you'll stand by me as ever, Consenting to be my "best man. H.C. E.

Y., a strong temperance man, suffered with kidney trouble, neuralgia, and dizziness almost to blindness, over two years after he was told that Hop Bitters would cure him, because he was afraid of and prejudiced against "Bitters," Since his cure he says none need fear but trust in Hop Bitters. ml5-2wd&w

I have seen it arise from the cicatrix of a scald, a blister, or a cut, from the clearry of a scald, a blister, or a cut, from a mole, from a wart, and from a simple excoriation where two molst surfaces lay in contact, as in the groin.
