DEAD BROKE. EXPERIENCE AT THE FAIR.

A Charming Ficture From Real Life. Brooklyn Eagle.

It was at a church fair, and he had come there at the special request of his "cou-sin," who was at the head of the flower table. He opened the door bashfully and stood, hat in hand, looking at the brilliant scene before him, when a young lady rushed up, and grabbing him by the arm.

"Oh ! you must, you will take a chance in our cake. Come right over here. This way.

Blushing to the roots of his hair, he stammered out that "Really didn't have stammered out that "Really didn't have the pleasure of knowing —" "Oh! that's all right," said the young lady. "You'll know me better before you leave. I'm one of the managers, you understand. Come! The cake will all be taken if you don't hurry." And she al-most dragged him over to one of the mid-dle tables. "There now—only fifty cents a slice, and you may get a real gold ring a slice, and you may get a real gold ring. You had better take three or four slices. It will increase your chances, you know." "You're very good," he stammered. "But I'm not fond of cake—that is, I haven't any use for the ring-I-" "Ab, that will be ever so nice," said the young lady, " for now if you get the ring you can give it back, and we'll put it ring you can give it back, and we'll put it in another cake," "Y-e-e-s," said the young man with a sickly smile. "To be sure, but—" "Oh, there isn't any but about it," said the young lady, smiling sweetly, "You know you promised !" "Promised ?"

"Well, no, not exactly that; but you will take just once slice ?" and she looked her whole soul into his eyes.

"Well, I suppose—"" "To be sure. There is your cake," and she slipped a great slice into his delicately-gloved hands as he handed her a dollar bill. "Oh, it is to nice," added the young lady, as she plastered another piece of cake on top of the one she had just given him. "I knew you would take at least two chances," and his dollar bill disappeared acoss the table; and then she called to a companion: "Oh. Miss Larkins, here is a gentleman who wishes to have his fortune told."

"O, does he? Send him right over, answered Miss Larkins. "I beg your pardon, but I'm afraid you're mistaken. I don't remember saying anything about-" "O, but you will," said the first young lady, tugging at the youth's arm. "It's for the good of the cause, and you, won't refuse." and once more the beautiful eyes ooked soulfully into his. "Here we are. Now take an envelope ; open it. There ! your are going to be married in a year. Isn't that jolly? Seventy-five cents, please." This time the youth was careful most of the year, the men suffered much from the intense cold, and on January 30, conditions of all our political life are cast. 1881, two of the crew, named Bernard Kelly and George Watson, while out hunting and when crossing a glacier, were overcome by the cold and were frozen to death. On the 15th of last month, about apparently, no rationale either for their 5 p. m., the forlorn crew sighted a ship standing along the coast. Mr. Ingersoll's Motive. New York Times.

Mr. Ingersoll lectured in this city on Sunday night to a large audience of his admirers, and attacked Christianity with his accustomed brilliancy. Like any other lecturer, he is paid for his lecture, and it is thus easy to say that he abuses Christianity in order to make money. No fair minded man, however, is willing to assume that Mr. Ingersoll has no other than a purely mercenary motive in endeavoring to undermine the faith of his fellow-men. He claims that as Christianity is an imposture, it is the duty of honest men to expose it in the interests of truth. Is he quite sure that he is prepared to carry this devotion to truth to its legitimate conclusion?

Let us grant that the Christian religion is an entire delusion. Is it not beyond any question a beneficent delusion ? That crimes have been committed in its name in past ages does not concern the question of the character of its influence on the present generation. There is now no dan-ger that Catholics will burn Protestants or Protestants will burn Catholics. Men have learned by experience that fire is not an argument that appeals to the intellect. No church or sect now dreams of making converts with the fagot or the rack. Against the Christianity of to day what charge can Mr. Ingersoll bring, except that it asks assent to doctrines which he regards as untrue and preposterous? He surely cannot charge Christianity with spreading and fostering immorality. Catholicism does not teach men to commit adultery. Methodism does not encourage murder, and Presbyterianism does not promote theft and lying. The doctrine of the incarnation may be foolishness in Mr. Ingersoll's eyes, but a belief in it cannot lead a man into looseness of life. The dogma of the Trinity may be an absurd fable, but it never taught a bank cashier to rob the safe. The persistency with which Christian ministers urge men to repent of their sins may be a mere waste of words, but it cannot by Heard's island is a bleak island of volcanic origin, and is if neither does, both may be comparatively about thirty miles long by three miles forgotten. Other figures will have taken possession of the popular interest and fancy, other issues will have engaged the public attention than those with whichthey were identified, and they, like greater ones before them, will have passed to the rear, giving place to, perhaps, lesser ones who are to come after them. In truth, how soon we are forgotten when we are gone. There is poor Gar-field ! But yesterday his word might have stood against the world. To-day, how few to do him reverence. I knew him well. The last time I saw him we sat at this very table where I am writing. It is a snug little room at Welcker's, and it was about this time two years ago. We were dining and I remember I was abusing him, in a friendly way, for being a Republican. The conversation deepened. He said he was a Liberal. I said I was a Conservative. There were few, if any, differences between us. At last he said : "Well, after all, what is there but comradeship; it keeps you a Democrat and me a Republican, and, that far at least, makes each of us do his duty." Alas, where is the spirit of comradeship gone, that men are grown so callous to the warmth, so critical of 'the virtues, of that great, bighearted baby of a statesman? The opinion of the people has been fully confirmed by wide spread experience that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the best and cheapest remedy for Coughs, Col.'s, Sore Throat, Asthma, etc.

"How do you manage," said a lady to her friend, "to appear so happy all the time?" "I always have Parker's Ginger Tonic handy," was the reply," and thus keep myself and hamily in good health and spirits. See siv. ml-imdeod&oow

Saved his Child :

17 N. Eataw St., Baltimore, Md. February 12, 1880, GENTS : Upon the recommendation of a friend 1 tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS as a tonic and restorative for my daughter, whom I was thor-oughly convinced was wasting away with Consumption. Having lost three daughters by the terrible disease, under the care of eminent physicians I was loth to believe that anything could arrest the progress of the disease, but, to my great surprise, before my daughter had taken one bottle bi BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, she began to mend and now is quite restored to former health. A fifth daughter began to show signs of Consumption . and when the physician was consult-ed he quickly said, "Tonics were re-quired"; and when informed that the
