A jealous lover shot his sweetheart yesterday at No. 2446 Turner street, Philadelphia, in the Twenty-ninth ward, and followed it up by inflicting a harmless wound upon himself. At the house mentioned resides Lillie Webster Cross, a precossessing girl of 19 years, who for some ime has been the recipient of attention from John Shriver, a youthful swain, living at No. 613 North Eleventh street, and engaged in the fish business at No. 32 North Water street. They were lately etrothed and were to be married soon. Lizzie, being of a lively disposition, continued to speak pleasantly to gentlemen friends when she chanced across them. Shriver became jealous, and the couple had
