Senator Mitchell has recently been in general correspondence with the leading Independents of Pennsylvania, and will be in Philadelphia to-day to have a confidential conference with a number of them. The senator is reticent on the subject, but it looks as if he was preparing to plunge into the Independent camp. He is an outsider among the Stalwarts in the Senate and at the White House, and his Philadelphia conference may mean an open bolt against Cameron.

There is every prospect of a terrible railroad war at Mount Pleasant. Judge Hunter refused to grant the injunction against the Pennsylvania railroad and since that the Baltimore & Ohio has been collecting their mes and preparing to tear up the track of the Mount Pleasant branch and drive off the force of men in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad. Each company has a force of over five hundred men on the ground and the sheriff has sent a posse to quell any disturbance. Officers of the Pennsylvania railroad say that an overwhelming force will be sent in case the Baltimore & Ohio attempts to create a riot. Special engines have been ordered from Pittsburgh.

Four Swedes and two Finlanders, five of whom were emplyed on the West Shore railroad, at Poughkeepsie, put off in a small boat to go to a boarding house on the other side of the river. The wind was blowing a gale and the waves were running high. When about in the middle of the river the boat capsized and four of the party drowned. John Tompson and Albert Holmes, hearing their cries, put out with a boat and rescued the other two, who were clinging to the bottom of the boat. boat. Three schooners were near the scene of the accident when it occurred, but their crew paid no attention to the cries of the drowning men.

Intelligence from Odessa confirms the reports of outrages at Balta of a most horrible character. Two thousand Jewish families were ruined. Whole streets of houses were wrecked. The plundering lasted two days. The riots almost assumed the character of a struggle for the annihilation of the Jews, the assailants being the peasants from the neighborhood of the town. Itopolo, near Odessa, was also surprised by peasants, presumably under the leadership of Nihilists. The houses of Jews were sacked and the town partially burned.

Lawrence (alias Lackie) Welsh, the brakeman who was run over and killed in trying to get on a train at Fifty-second street, Philadelphia, while intoxicated, on Thursday, was convicted and sentenced to nine years' imprisonment on January 31, 1874, for murdering his wife, Mary, by beating and stabbing her on October 19, 1873, at Forty-fourth and Seneca streets, West Philadelphia. He had been out of prison a few months before he met his death. His brother, known as "Cooney' Welsh, was murdered several years ago. It is said that "Lackie" Welsh's wife, when she lay dying from the effects of his brutal treatment, prophesied that he would meet a violent end as a punishment for his cruelty to her.

An east bound passenger train on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad was ditched last Sunday night near Rincon, New Mexico, and five heavily armed men attempted to rob the train. The men entered the baggage car instead of the express car by mistake, and before they could rectify their error and get into the right car the train men and passengers appeared in such numbers that the robbers fled. The engine and the baggage and express cars were thrown from the track. The engineer and firemen were killed, and Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger was badly injured. The express car is supposed to have contained $20,000 in silver from the Arizona mines, bound for New York, and it is thought that the would-be robbers were informed of this by telegraph from Rincon.

> A BRAKEMAN'S DREAM. What He Saw While Asleep He Awakes t Find Almost a Horrible Reality.

A brakeman on one of the regular freight trains on the New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad met with a most singular escape from death the other night. There had been an unusually heavy rush of freight over the road and he had been at work constantly for two days and three nights. Between Deposit and Hancock two trains collided and families have been made to mourn the loss caused a wreck, which was likely to detain the trains and blockade the track for some time. The brakeman in question was sent back to flag the first approaching train. He went back about a fourth of a mile, the regular distance required by the rules of the company, and feeling very tired from overwork, he sat down on the track, on the outside rail, to wait. Before five minutes he was sound askep. While thus asleep he dreamed he was lying on the track and that the Atlantic express, one of the swiftest trains on the to find himself lying flat on the track and the Atlantic express coming around a curve about thirty yards away, at the rate of forty miles an hour. To seize the red lantern and leap from the track was but an instant's work; the engineer of the express saw the light and stopped the train just in time to prevent a collision with the blockaded freight trains.

THE LAST STORM.

SWEEPING OVER PAYETTE COUNTY.

Where John Wingrove Found His Family. Later details from the terrible cyclone that swept over the northern part of Fayette county on Wednesday evening add to the horror of the accounts already published. The storm-lashed district presents a scene of devastation and distress the like of which has never before been Dr. Hunt's large frame factory at Glen Gardner, N. J., was totally destroyed by fire. How the fire originated is not known. Some ascribe it to an incendiary. The loss will reach $12,000. The insurance is small.

A car of the Texas express company was ransacked near Ranger, on the Texas Pacific road, by eight men. Four rangers, who have been traveling as greatly on the train for some weeks, were resulted with almost incredible velocity in a northeasterly direction. The village of Pennville is situated sixteen miles north Pennville is situated sixteen miles north aroused from sleep and opened fire upon the robbers. Thirty shots were exchanged. The robbers took to the woods. People living in this village had a good People living in this village had a good view of the gale as it swept swiftly by on the outskirts. An idea of its velocity may be gained by the account of Mrs. McClellan.

What Mrs. McClellan Saw.

She saw it approaching several hundred yards distant and started with her family to run from the kitchen into the cellar, but before she could get through the door it had swept by and all was over, It missed her house by twenty feet and demolished the Disciples' church that stood near by. To show how clearly defined were its limits it may be stated that one side of a locust tree in her yard was stripped of its branched to the trunk, while the other side was left unharmed. Other persons who saw the gale approaching made similar attempts to get into cellars, but so rapid was its progress that in every case it was on them and over before they could flee. Mrs. Miller and her three grown-up children started to go from the dining room into the kitchen, but the house was lifted from its foundation and overturned. The Adventures of the Miller Family.

The family were all knocked senseless amid the falling ruins. Mrs. Miller was the first to regain consciousness, but how long she lay she knows not. She then gathered her bruised and bleeding children together and fled from what was once her home, but now a shapeless mass of ruins, thankful, as she said with tearful eyes, to get away with even the life of herself and her children. The freaks of the cyclone were of the most incredible character. It moved in a generally northeasterly direction, but with many zigzags and oscillations. Sometimes the greatest violence would be nearest the ground; as was seen in sweeping the bottom rails of board fences and leaving the upper rails undisturbed, and as seen especially in the fate of John Bundorff's house. The lower story of his building idea of the terrific force that accomp church for two hundred yards and deeply imbedded in the side of Mr. Lyons' frame dwelling. The brick did not shatter and split the weatherboarding, but entered it so as to make a clean cut aperture, as i

Gathering Force as it Went. As the cyclone traveled on it seemed to gather force, filling the air with flying rails, rubbish, timber and all sorts of missiles. One of these weapons pierced Mr. Bundorff through the back and he probably cannot recover. When the tornado reached the Blue Ridge mountains it seemed especially to reinforce itself for the ascent and for its last deadly work. She had encircled her youngest born as if in death's last embrace, and though she had been hurled so far, the violence that took away her own life had peut its angry force on her and-left the babe unharmed. But the stricken husband's grief was not yet complete. The storm passed on over the mountain leveling houses, barns, fences and timber but how far it went before spending itself has not yet been learned. The appearance of the cyclone was that of a dark and funnel shaped cloud, little end-down, with a red bright light gleaming above it. It was not more than two hundred vards wide and traveled with a velocity of about a mile a minute. When it passed away it was succeeded by a clam, sky and the most intense sunlight. The loss to the sufferers cannot well be estimated in dollars and cents, but it would reach far toward $100,000 even in ordinary property. Its effects here will long remain, since farmers have seen the savings of a lifetime swept away in an instant and where

This proved a fruitless mission, and in consequence, the defaulter was committed to the county prison to answer the charge at court. While being conveyed to prison Dundore stated that now that he had no money he had no friends, that those who flocked around him while in office had deserted him. A Significant Fact.

The cheapest medicine in use is Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because so very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the chest or throat, for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound. For sale at H. B. ### Large Causes and Personal Results.

The trade in domestic woolens has features which all should study. Seasons are anticipated and goods are ordered from samples long in advance at fixed was swept out from under the superstruc-ture, the latter being affected only by crumbling into the cellar when the base was thus removed from under it. An are well known and all buyers it may be imagined from the fact that some of the long and heavy sills or ground logs in the foundation of Mr. Bundorff's house were lifted into the air, carried several hundred yards and driven four feet endways into the brow of a hill, where they stuck out lever-like until dug out today, and from the circumstance that a brickbat was carried from the Diciples' church for two hundred yards and deeply are like in the deeply and some and all buyers must be treated alike.
