THE INDIAN REVOLT.

A Graphic Description of the Massacre-A

THE RETURN OF A YOUNG SURVIVOR.

Train Attacked by the Redskins. Stanislaus Metas, aged nine years, has just arrived at Tucson, from Stevens' sheep camp, with the following story of the Indian massacre on the 18th inst.: Before daylight the Indians attacked the camp, while we were all asleep. My father and five other men attempted to get their guns, but were too late. The Indians rushed in from all sides and overpowered them before a shot could be fired. The work of slaughter then began. An Indian put the muzzle of his gun against the head of one man and fired, blowing his brains against the door and walls. I saw them kill my mother and two brothers by beating their brains out with stones. They killed five persons and tied my father and tortured him most dreadfully. He begged them to spare him, but they only tortured him the more, and finally they split his skull with an axe. An Indian squaw, the wife of one of four friendly Apache sheep herders who worked with us, saved my life by holding me behind her and begging them to spare me. When all the Mexicans were dead except me the Indians left.

Dispatches from Major General Me-Dowell state that nothing further has hap-pened to call for reinforcements. Forsyth is on a trail in the Stein Park range. The hostiles are breaking for Mexico and the Grant, Thomas and Apache troops are

A dispatch from Lordsburg says : "There is no news of importance from Doubtful Canyon since yesterday. General Forsyth is reported to be in camp on the east side of the Stein Park range, taking things easy and affording the hostiles every facility for escape. It looks very much like another military farce over the Indian question. The troops had the Indians completely surrounded at Doubtful Canton and Horseshoe vesterday night but it yon and Horseshoe yesterday night, but it is feared they will escape. There is an unconfirmed report current of two prospectors having been killed yesterday fourteen miles north of here on the Gila road. Barnum Wants a White Elephant.

N. Y. World. Mr. Barnum has secured Jumbo and yet he is not happy. The white clephants of the King of Siam will not let the great showman sleep. He yesterday despatched a parcel filled with curious and interesting literary contributions including a superbly bound "Life of Barnum," by himself, through a New York house to the consul general of the United States at Bangkok. to be by that functionary presented to his majesty, the first King of Siam, together with a prayer and petition entreating that potentate to oblige Mr. Barnum and the American people with the loan for a cer tain time, and on any terms agreeable to his majesty, of one of the white elephants which are the pride and glory of the Siam-ese realm. Fortunately for the American consul general the people of Siam are well advanced in civilization. Were they not, auch a request would be likely to cost him dear, for the white elephants are supposed by the Budhist faith to be animated by the spirits of kings and princes. They are regarded as in a manner tutelary deities, whose presence guarantees the greatness and prosperity of the kingdom. To ask Siam for the loan of a white elephant is like borrowing the mystic goblet of the Musgraves, which Schiller has celebrated as the "Luck of Eden Hall." If by any chance the first king should incline his ear to the suit of Barnum, the great showman may die in peace—unless, indeed, he should be stim ulated by such an astounding success into offering the pope a round price for the loan of that ancient brouze which for centuries has received the homage of the faithful of all lands and all races in the great central aisle of St. Peter's. It should be borne in mind, however, that the white elephants of Siam are not white at all, except on the standard of the nation. They are Albinos, in fact, and the finest of them are of a light salmon color. They are kept surrounded in the royal stables with other white animals, such as swans white are a particular animals, such as swans, white crows, white pigeons and a large white monkey, whose function it is to ward off evil spirits. If the monkey does his duty he will probably bite off the nose of the consul general and so end the matter. Meanwhile let us make the most of Jumbo while he still has the field to himself.

DUPING AN OLD MAN.

How Two Jersey Women got his Money and Frightened him out of Court. Two women named Brown, sisters, living together in Scotch Plains, near Plainfield, have been committed to jail on a charge of grand larceny made by Peter Clawson, of Dunellen. Clawson is a feeble old man, well-known for his eccentricity and whose adventures in search of a wife bave excited great amusement in the vicinity of his home for several years. He became infatuated with one of the Brown women and went to board at their house. They on one pretext and another induced him to entrust them with $300 of his money and also to make them presents to the value of $150 more. They had also made him promise to get them a further amount of $20 tc-day. It was evidently their intention to get possession of all the old man's money, of which he has a considerable sum in bank. When arrested $100 in money, a watch and a large quantity of clothing belonging to Clawson were found in their possession. A sensation was created during the examination when one of the women endeavored to force Clawson to marry her then and there and frightened him so that he fled from the court room. The women have heretofore borne a doubtful reputation. They are now in jail at Elizabeth in default of bail. A Memorial to Longfellow.

A CRAZY HUSBAND'S CKIME.

A Chester County Mathematician Murders Bis Wife With a Rolling-Pin. J. D. Andrews killed his wife at their residence, near Hayesville, Chester county. It appears that for several years "Professor" Andrews, as he is familiarly called, has manifested a tendency to insanity and an attendant was hired to watch him. Monday night, while Mrs. Andrews was in her sitting room, her husband, who had been left unguarded for a moment in an adjoining room, seized a rolling-pin and, quietly stealing up behind his wife, dealt her a terrible blow on the head. She fell to the floor insensible, while the attendant, returning just at this moment, secured Andrews and summoned medical aid. There was no hope, however, and Mrs. Andrews died at four o'clock without recovering consciousness. She was about fifty years of age. Prof. Andrews, who is about sixty years old. accumulated a large fortune by his wonderful skill as a mathematician. How the Eagle Screams.

The House had an exciting debate terday over the proposed censure of Minister Lowell for his failure to have the American suspects released. Robinson. the Brooklyn orator, in the course of his speech, said: "I say, fight, 'Independence or fight;' Madison said: 'Give up the right of search or light; and I say, and this House and all true Americans say, fight. When I came here I found the American eagle drugged and drowsy, her blood poisoned with political pyemia, her wing wet with the mildew of monarchy and her beak filled with Lowell garbage.
