HOW DOCTOR LAMSON MET DEATH.

Fate of a Minnesota Murder-Disaster at Sea—Tragic Occurrence Down South.

Before his execution Dr. Lamson passed a quiet night and ate a hearty breakfast. A clergyman passed an hour with him in religious prayer. On the morning of the execution the procession entered the yard of the prison at 8:35, when the prison bell was tolling the death knell. The chaplain headed the procession. He was followed by two prison officials and their wards. The prisoner, who until the time of starting had been calm and composed, looked very pale and dejected and was very nervous. He was supported by wardens on either side and was with difficulty able to descend the steps to the yard. He was met by Marwood, the executioner, at the foot of the steps.

The prisoner was bareheaded. The operation of pinning him seemed interminable. He submitted without a word and hardly seemed to appreciate what was going on. From the steps there was a distance of about sixty yards to traverse to the gallows. Lamson was supported with difficulty from this point to the scaffold. He swung backwards and forwards and stood around him when placed under the noose. The chaplain, who appeared to be much affected, then began to read a portion of the burial service. Lamson in the meantime was supported by two gaolers and his legs were strapped. Just before the cap was adjusted he cast down his eyes with a look of extreme despair. When the drop fell death was instantaneous. The drop was nine feet. The chaplain remained by the gallows repeating the Lord's Prayer.

The body remained for one hour. At the formal inquest on the body the surgeon who made the examination testified that Dr. Lamson had been properly executed. His neck was not dislocated and his features wore a placid expression. With the exception of a slight red mark around the neck there was nothing to indicate a violent death. The jury gave a verdict in accordance with the evidence. The Lancet says it utterly fails to perceive a particle of evidence demonstrating the insanity of Dr. Lamson. The Niles believes that if Dr. Lamson had been deprived on the ground of insanity it would be impossible hereafter to punish any criminals who could show that indulgence in sedative and narcotics had weakened their physical and mental condition.

A WRETCH LYNCHED.

The Author of a Horrid Outrage is Taken from Jail and Hanged to a Tree.

The brutal assault upon the four-year-old daughter of J. P. Spear, of Minneapolis, Minn., by a man who was arrested and gave the name of Frank McManus, created much excitement in this city. On Wednesday about six men marched upon the jail, forced the outside barrier with a heavy timber and seized the sheriff, while search was made for the prisoner. The men made various demands upon the sheriff to give up the prisoner, but he stoutly refused. Finally, by a hint given by a night watchman, instigated by fear, the vigilantes made a dash for cell No. 3, on the upper tier. They found a man there who answered the description and asked him his name. He said his name was Crow, but as no such name appeared on the jail record he was thereupon taken from his cell and securely handcuffed, with the understanding that if there was the least shadow of a doubt he should be returned to jail. During all the events which followed the wretch showed no signs of trepidation.

The prisoner was marched to the house of Mr. Spear and fully identified by persons who had the child in their possession. The mission of the crime, the agonized mother exclaiming: "It is the man—take him away." While this scene was going on the victim of the villain lay dying in an adjoining room. The positive identification of the man was made by the child. He was placed under the oak tree and a noose was prepared. While this was being done he was asked if he had anything to say, and without the least sign of fear he replied that his name was Tim Crow, and that he was from Boston and had been there four months.

He further said that he had a mother, Nancy Ann Crowley, living in South Boston. He then took a member of the vigilance committee aside and had a few moments private conversation, repeating to him something to be delivered to his mother at some time. The nerve of the wretch remained unshaken. When asked how he came to perpetrate the crime of which he was guilty he denied it, but admitted that he had been drunk. His hands were then tied behind, a rope was put over his neck and carefully adjusted, and with his hat and boots on he was swung off. The remains were left dangling in the air.

DISASTERS AT SEA.

What a Heavy Gale Did Along the Massachusetts Coast.

At Vineyard Haven, a heavy northeast gale prevailed. The schooner Benjamin Reed, of East Boothbay, from Bath, Me., with a cargo of ice for New York, dragged ashore on West Chop in the morning. She is considerably broken up and will prove a total loss. The schooner Arianna, of St. John, N. B., from New York, in ballast for Hillsboro, N. B., parted her chains and ran ashore at the head of the harbor on the steamer wharf, where she was later without damage. The wrecking schooners William Newton and Carrie Clinton, of this place, dragged their masts in a bad position near West Chop. The Clinton sustained no damage.

The schooner G. A. Pierce, from Louisville, with a cargo of paving stones for Philadelphia, went ashore on Killpond bars during a furious easterly gale. She was moored with both anchors, which she dragged, while giving the signal for aid and bank. Kingsley Baker, an old man of sixty years, the only person on board, took refuge in one of the topsails, remaining from 8 o'clock till 6 in the morning, when he was rescued. The owner is A. Bopes, of Salem. The schooner lies in a comparatively easy position, on the decks under water, the sea smooth and the wind from a favorable quarter. The schooner is uninsured.

The men of the life-saving station at Manomet picked up a sailor's chest which came ashore. It was sent to the custom house for identification. The men report that a large quantity of cord wool had been washed up along the shore.

The steamer Nankin, for Liverpool, in ballast, while going down the New York bay was run into by the steamer George W. Clyde and sunk. The crew were taken off in a tug boat and brought to the city. Several tugs have been to her, but she will need assistance from a wrecking company, who will have to plug in her hull before she can be raised. Nobody was hurt as far as known.

All the furnace companies in Reading have advanced the wages of their employees ten per cent.

BLAINE'S PURPOSES.

ALL FOR "LOOT AND BOOTY."

A General Journalistic Condemnation of His Schemes.

The following letter was sent to Chairman Williams, of the committee on foreign affairs, yesterday afternoon by Representative Perry Belmont, of New York: HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES, WASHINGTON, April 28, 1882. MY DEAR SIR: In the examination of yesterday and the days immediately preceding provocation so gross and persistent was offered me by the witness testifying before the committee that I was led to use language which, although unparliamentary, did properly describe his conduct and my appreciation of his character.

The witness under examination had seen fit to criticize questions addressed by me on a former occasion to another witness; first, because quotation marks appeared on the printed record of such questions, the responsibility for which I disavowed, calling attention at the same time to the fact that the form of the question negatived the idea that I was quoting from the dispatches, and secondly, because of the interpretation placed by me on those dispatches. This was partly a matter for argument, and the witness had every opportunity to explain his conduct, but he chose rather to insist upon a change of my opinion respecting the meaning of the dispatches and when I declined to make the change, my belief being positive and well founded, he thought it proper, on a public occasion, to use language personally offensive. It was my desire and purpose yesterday to put an end to any further continuance of those personalities before the committee, and I therefore preferred to give public treatment thereof by myself. Having been surprised into making a reply, in the presence of the committee, of a character such as seems to me my deliberate judgment would have been elsewhere under the circumstances entirely proper, and which expresses my opinion perfectly, nothing being in the nature of a private or personal notice of the witness is required of me. These unparliamentary personalities should have no place on the records of the committee and I therefore leave the method of dealing with them to the discretion of your body.

Very truly yours,
PERRY BELMONT.
Hon. Charles G. Williams, Chairman House Committee Foreign Affairs.

BLAINE'S GENERAL CONDEMNATION.

And Not By "The Daily Democratic Press," N. Y. Herald.

We confess that until we carefully read the report of Mr. Blaine's examination on Wednesday we did not believe that he had any pecuniary interest in these claims. His own persistence in pressing the Landreau claim upon Peru and Chili, when as he acknowledged Peru was in an utterly disorganized state, having neither executive government nor courts, we hoped for the honor of the country, he would make haste to explain to everybody's satisfaction. His refusal to do so, and his embarrassment and fury when pushed on this head, have impressed the public with the suspicion that there are pecuniary speculations here concealed in which Mr. Blaine was concerned, as he has been in so many others.

But, however that may be, a great part of the public believes, with good reason, that there was something besides mere unwieldy money in Mr. Blaine's policy toward Chili and Peru, and that he undoubtedly intended to draw the country into a war with Chili, this even was but one part of a plot he had formed and was secretly carrying out during General Garret's long disability. That plot, as published dispatches prove, revolved while he undoubtably intended to draw the country into a war with Chili, this even was but one part of a plot he had formed and was secretly carrying out during General Garret's long disability.

First, To war with Chili and a protectorate over Peru.
Second, To war with Mexico on the question of the Guatemalan boundary dispute, in which Mr. Blaine woud with unjustifiable rudeness to Mexico, with clear intention of provoking a breach of the peace.
Third, A war with Great Britain on the question of Isthmus transit.

Mr. Blaine's policy was an appeal to all the adventurous speculators and contractors in the country. It was a plot from the success of which no legitimate American interest could have gained, but he saw in it a hopeful prospect of his own increasing prominence, hoisted on the shoulders of the patriotic and the people of his countrymen. Fortunately for the future welfare of the country his plot was discovered in time. Congress has begun, very lamely, an inquiry into its details, and Mr. Blaine squirms.

Mr. Blaine's "Bear the Test."

His system of bullying, chaffing, joking, reiterating, pouring forth adjectives, sometimes standing on his dignity, sometimes on his experience, sometimes on his patriotism, is sufficient for his purpose before the miscellaneous crowd in search of amusement, and if there were no reporters he would never bear the process known as "putting that and that together."

Mr. Belmont cannot tell all he knows about the Landreau claim without disclosing far more than he ever intends to disclose of the motives and instruments of his policy towards Peru. But Mr. Blaine's behavior under the questioning of Mr. Belmont gives proof as clear as can be asked for that his "policy" in respect to the Landreau claim is one of prudent concealment.

Worried no Little
N. Y. Commercial.

Mr. Belmont seemed to be moved in his cross examination of Mr. Blaine much in the same spirit as the old farmer who, having labored hard by means of sticks, stones and brickbats to drive an old wood-chuck out of a tree near his premises, finally gave up the job, exclaiming, "Oon dem yeg, if I can't bring you down, I'll worry you like h—!"

Recalls the Mulligan Case.
New York Graphic.

In 1876, when the Mulligan investigation was in progress, Mr. Blaine was quite as combative as he now is, but he can hardly feel pleased with the impression his action made at the time upon the country. That investigation and his attitude thereto lost him the nomination for president.

Irreparably Injured.
Mr. Blaine may not at this moment be aware of the injury he has received in this encounter, but if we are not mistaken he is crippled for political life.

A PICKNICK PARTY'S FATE.
Several Killed and More Injured by the Bursting of a Steamboat-Boiler.

The steamer Marion, employed in the Watere river, S. C., exploded one of her boilers between 11 and 13 o'clock yesterday. She had on board a picnic party, thirty-five or forty in number. Miss Minnie Henry was instantly killed. Miss Mattie and Nannie Henry are missing and are supposed to have been drowned. Miss Lizzie Henry was badly hurt and is not expected to live. J. C. Eason was badly hurt and is not expected to recover. Wm. Trimble was badly scalded. Miss Minnie Bates had an arm broken and sustained other injuries. Arvell Eilers is missing and is supposed to have been drowned. Tom Richardson, colored, one of the crew, was drowned. John Williams, another of the crew, was badly hurt.

THE ROYAL MARRIAGE.

Description of the Dress which the bride wore—The Immense Bride Cake.

The wedding dress of Princess Helen was given by her sister, the queen of Holland. It was made in Paris and was not finished until yesterday. The petticoat is of the richest white satin, with several fine small openings near the bottom, showing a thick wreath of orange blossoms and myrtle underneath. It is trimmed with two robings of the costliest point d'Alencon lace coming down either side, turned with square corners toward a white satin train, in the draperies of which it disappears. The train is of immense length and is literally sewn with flakes of silver, while large bouquets of fleur de lis in relief are embroidered in silver all down the centre of it. It is edged with shell-like flutings of satin intermingled with point d'Alencon. The dress has short sleeves trimmed to match with point d'Alencon and wreaths of myrtle and orange blossoms.

The royal bride cake is built in three tiers. It rises from a gold stand to the height of six feet and weighs 500 pounds. At the base are swans and dolphins swimming in imitation water. The first tier is ornamented with four medallion groups, representing Europe, Asia, Africa and America, separated by pillars, on which is painted ailly upon satin. On the pillars are vases filled with flowers, emblematic of the United Kingdom. Cupids reading support the figure of Literature. The second tier is octagonal in form and the medallions bear the arms of England and Waldeck. The whole is surmounted by the pillars are orange blossoms and Trophies of love. Cupids shower imitation water on the flowers. The third tier bears a fountain encircled with doves by ornamental pillars, festooned with wedding favors. The whole is surmounted by a vase containing a bouquet of flowers.

MEDICAL BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

to vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted in the often heard expression, "O! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth the living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

501 N. Fremont St., Baltimore.

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and since then I have suffered from it ever since. About four ago it brought on paralysis, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion. I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly recovering.
