ESCAPE FROM PRISON. Where Were Isruno and the Bell?

About noon yesterday Wm. Bowers, a caped from that institution and nothing has been heard of him. He took dinner with his fellow prisoners and went to work as usual. He is an assistant to the cigar makers, and in that capacity has been given the run of the corrider, and was sometimes allowed to go into the yard. While the prison keeper was at dinner and only one underkeeper in the corrider, Bowers slipped unnoticed into the yard, taking with him a short step-ladder. Forcing an entrance into an outside room in which the prisoners' clothes are kept, he picked cut his own, and carried them off scaling the very "scaly" wall near the northeast angle. Here he arryed himself in his own clothes, and threw the striped suit aside, where it was found not long afterwards.

Bowers is not more than 19 years old, was convicted at the January term of court for aggravated assault and battery on Henry C. Keller and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment. "Bruno" does night duty and is not on duty in daytime. It might be well to start a sub-scription for the purchase of another Siberian to keep watch by day.

Coroner's Inquest.

John F. Galbreath, deputy coroner for Conoy, has returned to Coroner Shiffer the result of the inquest into the cause of death of the unknown man who was found dead in the village of Bainbridge about two weeks ago. It is to the effect that the stranger came to his death from pneumonia, caused by exposure, he having laid in an alley all Thursday and Thursday night, April 27. Squire Galbreath states that the man answered to the name of John Smith; that he had on his person a paper containing the name of Rudy Janner ; he had 44 cents in money, a smokepipe, two pair of cotton pants, three shirts, a common wool hat, two small breastpins, a piece of tobacco, a pocket comb, knife, needle case, black cassinet coat, black vest and oil cloth valise. These articles are in the hands of Coroner Shiffer and may lead to his identification.

Deputy Coroner J. P. Frank held an inquest on the body of Mary A. Weller, who died suddenly in Columbia, and the jury rendered a verdict that death was caused by apoplexy.

OUR STREET COMMISSIONER.

His Monuments We See, But Where is He Street Commissioner Levan's mud monuments still adorn the principal streets of the city. What they lose in height by being trampled down by horses and mules they gain in width so that nothing of their fair proportion is lost. For some time past there has been lying outside the pavement of the Hiester house, and almost upon the crossing leading to the railroad depot, a large loose stone, weighing perhaps 200 pounds. At two o'clock this afternoon as Henry P. Dorwart was crossing the street, hurriedly, he tripped against the stone and was thrown heavily to the ground, bruising himself, skinning his face and soiling his clothing. When the street commissioner begins to clean up-if he ever shall begin-he might remove this nuisance along with his mud monuments.

Railread Wreck.

Last evening about 5 o'clock as engine 302 was drawing a freight train up the heavy grade about one mile west of Mountville, the train parted and the rear section of it ran back, gaining great headway as it moved down grade. The train hands were at the time in the caboose. The engineer of engine 361 which was following 302, saw the detached part of the train approaching him and whistled downbrakes. The men in the caboose took alarm and saved themselves by jumping from the train. The caboose struck engine from the train. The caboose struck engine

HARRISBURG, May 10.-The bosses have this convention entirely in their hands. Its organization was only delayed until all the orders were distributed and underthrough. HARRISBURG, May 10.—This morning there appears to be no change in the slate. as given out last night, and the dissatisfaction over its arrangement has not materially subsided. A general caucus of all the delegates was called to order promptly at 10 o'clock this morning by Rutan, of Beaver, and Charles H. Mullen, of Cumberland, was made chairman, with Cyrus T. Fox, of Reading, secretary. The first work done was the appointment of a committee of five on order of business to be brought before the convention. While this committee, which consisted of Messrs, Rutan, of Beaver; Bunn, of Philadelphia; Magee, of Pittsburgh; Husted, of Delaware, and Steel, of Crawford, was out, the chairman of the caucus made a suggestion that all delegates intending to make nominations in the convention hand the names of their candidates to the secretary of the caucus. This was put in the form of a motion, but created so much dissatisfaction that it was allowed to drop. The committee of five then reported the tempo rary organization as reported in these dispatches last night, which was agreed upon. It was agreed to have appointed a committee of nine on credentials, a committee of one from each senatorial district on resolutions, and it was further decided that all resolutions offered in the conven tion must be referred to the committee on resolutions without debate. The order of nominations will be as follows: First governor, second supreme judge, third ieutenant governor, fourth secretary of internal affairs, fifth congressman-atlarge. The arrangement of the nominations shows that those who had the cortrol of the machinery of the convention were not willing to take any risk of trading or dickering on the supreme judgeship, as this office was sandwiched in between those of governor and lieutenant governor. At the adjournment of the caucus the delegates proceeded to the opera house where the convention was called to order where the convention was called to order at 1:10 o'clock. The seats set apart for delegates were all filled quickly and the stage, which is usually set apart for officers of the convention and newspaper correspondents, was densely crowded with onlookers, while the galler'es were only mixed Western and mayers laver. Judge Kirkpatrick, temporary chairman, then assumed the chair and on doing so referred to the victorious march the Republican party had made from the time of its organization down to the present; taking high moral ground on every question that arose; fight-the battles of slavery and fresh nationalism successfully, and giving to the country not a mere federation but a giving great powerful united nation. After adding a reference to the victories the party had scored in its contests for honest money the speaker said that such a record proved the party to be one of high moral principles; a party that could safely be judged for the future by its past. Judge Kirkpatrick said he was proud of the conflicts that spring up in the party because they bespeak a healthy and moral independence of thought Out of the conflict at Chicago was evolved that proud spirit, James A. Garfield, under whose banner the party marched to one of its greatest victories, and the speaker be-lieved that out of the recent conflicts in this state there would step forth a man whose soldierly and civil record was a brilliant one.

The secretaries selected in the caucus were elected and a committee of nine on credentials provided for on a motion of Gen. McCreary, of Erie. The committee as announced was as follows: McCreary, of Erie; Wallace, of Lawrence; Mcllvaine, of Washington; Magee, of Alleg-heny; Allen, of Warren; Leeds, of Phil-adelphia; Powers, of Philadelphia; Hirsh, of Adams; Enyder, of Chester. Committees on resolutions and permanent organization, each consisting of a delegate from each senatorial district, that to the committee on resolutions all resolutions and papers presented should be referred without debate. A motion to take a recess of ten minutes for the purpose of constituting the committees was voted down, and that work was proceeded with. Contestants were notified to appear before the committee on credentials on 1 o'clock, p. m., in the Senate librarian room, and a recess until half-past two p. m. was ordered.

Thayer Against Kawle. 2:30 r. M.—The convention is now about reassembling with a prospect of getting through in time to enable delegates to take trains. The only change in the situation since adjournment is that Judge Thayer, of Philadelphia, is to be pitted against Rawle for the supreme court judgeship instead of ex-Judge Brewster. A caucus of the Philadelphia delegation was called to meet immediately after adjournment, but it did not get together until 2 o'clock, when it was agreed to drop Brewster and unite the anti-Rawle strength on Judge Thayer.

On the question of the secretaryship of internal affairs the delegates were left to vote according to their own choice, and as the bulk of them will go for Greer the latter's nomination is almost as certain as Beaver's. The delegates will also vote as they please on congressman-at large. Butler's
