FARM AND GARDEN.

SOME SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Topics of Timely Interest to Cultivators of the Soil From the Germantown Telegraph-Another Warning. We see a statement "going the rounds" warning people to be careful in planting horseradish, that it does not get ahead of them and cover the farm with a nuisance that will be very difficult to eradictate

One newspaper clipper seeing others copy it does the same, thinking that as it appears in so many papers it must be true, and thus sends this absurdity along. Of course there is not a word of truth in it A bed of it will not be generally self-supplying even for family consumption, for it is necessary in digging it up to cut off the top, with a little of the root, and dividing it into pieces to plant it in turn, putting them two or three inches deep, and pressing the soil firmly down with the foot. Almost any quantity of it could be disposed of in our markets, hence the trucker would smile to see it growing spontaneously, without any labor on his part, ready to convert into money. The Lawrence Pear, Again.

Our last Lawrence pear-and the last pear of our past year's stock-was eaten on Wednesday last, and we found it to possess about all its original flavor. Take it altogether, it is a remarkable variety, and we unhesitatingly add the most valnable from among our own cultivated list of over sixty. We have frequently spoken of it merits, and shall peri aps continue to do se, as we consider it a cuty we owe to all fruit growers who have space enough to give it a place. The Lawrence has no "off year" with us, as the trees are covered with perfeet fruit year after year. Its season of ripening is extended beyond that of all others. It begins at the end of October. and goes on as the temperature in which it is placed is regulated, up to the end of April, as we state above. The tree is a vigorous grower, is as hardy as any other upon our premises, and begins to bear in two or three years after setting out. For cauning purposes we regard it as ahead of others, some opened within a week being perfectly delicious. It is a fruit, so far as our knowledge of it goes, that can always be relied on; and in this general view we confidently recommend it to all, even if it be the only kind grown. Raising Mushrooms.

"How can I grow mushrooms?" asks a Berks county correspondent. "I see a great deal said about it, and I have tried every way that was described, but I have the first one yet to see. I have devoted very considerable time and labor to discover the how-and as time is money, it has involved considerable of that, and I know as little now as I did before. I should like those who write to much about raising mushrooms to say candidly whether they ever grew one in their lives." We answer that we are quite as ignorant as our correspondent on the subject. We have also tried three or four different times, following each time a somewhat different way, and the result was two little fellows, not larger than the buttons we see on ladies' dresses. We tried it in the cauliflower bed; behind the shelves in a green house; in the cellar; and in the horse stable. Then we gave it up, and would advise our inquirer to do the same. Still, there is a way to get them-plenty of HIGH & MARTIN. them-if the weather favors, and we are willing to wait to the end of August, through September and beginning of Oc tober. This is to pen a few sheep in a lot of a couple of acres of pasture land. We have known bushels to be obtained in this way after waiting a year or two. Last autumn when the rains came after the long draught, mushrooms were not confined to such places, but were to be found all over the farm where there was a pasture let. We saw them in the fields as we passed along the highways. But this is only once in from five to ten years. Still, they are to be found every fall; and if one i not willing to adopt the plan mentioned with the sheep, better be content with their annual advent.

P. S .- A friend told us on the last day of April, that last fall he removed from the sheep pasture where the mushrooms had grown, a quantity of earth and placed it in his cauliflower hotbed, and that he had an abundance of mushrooms.
