THE NEW YORK BAZAAR IN RUINS. Loss Estimated as $30,000—Insurance $25.

000-Disastrous Midnight Conflagration. About half-past 11 o'clock last night as Special Officer Charles Kranz was passing Gottschalk & Lederman's New York Bazaar, in Loebs building No. 26 and 28, North Queen street, he discovered it to be on fire, and at once gave the alarm by striking the alarm box No. 12, in Centre square. The firemen responded promptly, but it was some minutes before any water was put upon the flames. A messenger was at once dispatched to Mr. Gottschalk's residence, No. 36 East Walnut street, to inform him of the fire and that gentleman. hastened, half-dressed, to the scene. Before he could open the door, he was overcome by the excitement and the exertion, made by him in hastening to the fire, and fell helpless to the ground, and was carried to Al. Rosenstein's nearly opposite, where he received medical attention. Meantime the firemen opened the front door of the stoor, and went gallantly to work, and although driven back by the heat and smoke, poured streams of water into the room and in an incredible short time quenched the flames before they had extended to any other part of the large and valuable edifice. But what a wreck was made by the combined action of fire, and smoke and water! The store room contained one of the largest, if not the very largest, assortment of millinery and ladies fancy goods in this city, and this morning there is scarcely an unsoiled article in the room. Laces, ribbons, feathers, bonnets, hats, silks, satins, embroideries, gloves, hosiery and the hundreds of articles required to fit out ladies' toilets, are lying half consumed and buried in muddy water in all parts of the store room. Plate glass show cases are shattered by the heat and capsized by the streams of water hurled against them. A more desolate scene or a more complete destruction of valuable goods can scarcely be imagined than that presented at the bazaar when the doors were opened this

Just how the fire originated is not known. Messrs. Gottschalk & Lederman inform us that the store was closed last night about twenty minutes past 9 o'clock, after which they knew nothing until a messenger hastened to their house, No. 36 East Walnut street, and told them the store was on fire. Special Police-man Kranz states that shortly after 11 o'clock he passed the store, looked in through the front door, and saw that everything was right, there being as usual one or two gas jets burning in the rear of the store. When he again passed the store, 15 or 20 minutes later, he says it looked dark, which aroused his suspicion.

The windows looked as if the curtains were down. Placing his hand against the plate-glass, he found it to be quite hot. He then knew that the store was on fire, and the darkness was caused by the dense smoke with which the room was filled. He than ran to box 12 and sounded the alarm as above stated. An examination of the premises shows that the fire started in the rear of the store, in the southwest corner, near where the business desk was placed. Hung on wires, placed some distance below the ceiling, etc., extending throughout the store were many hundreds of light comarticles—laces, handkerchiefs, ribbons, hosiery, straw hats, plumes, fans, etc., etc. It is possible that some one of these articles, hanging too near to a gasjet was set on fire, and in less time than it takes to write it, communicated the flames to all the other airy fabrics, involving all in a common ruin. Or it may be that a match, or a eigar stump, supposed to be unlit, and thrown thoughtlessly or carelessly into the corner, may have ignited some waste paper, which it turn set fire to the goods. These are mere conjectures, however, and Messrs Gottschalk & Lederman declare they are at a loss to know how the fire could have happened. They have had no fire in the range in the basement for some time past and there was no fire in the store after it was closed, except the gas-jet, which is left to burn all night as a matter of safety against burglars. An incendiary would have no means of starting the fire as the store was securely locked when it was discovered, and there is no access to it from other portions of the building, the second-story of which is occupied by the Matrimonia! mutual beneficial association, and the Hebrew social union, and tto third floor by a young men's club, all of which escaped injury.

Messrs. Gottschalk & Lederman estimate at from $30,000 to $32,000, on which they have an insurance of $25,000, of which $24,000 is on their stock of goods and $1,000 on their fixtures. The insurance is in the following companies, of which Messrs. Bausman & Burns are agents London assurance corporation, $5,000 Williamsburgh city, $5,000; Lancashire insurance, $5,000; Phonix, of Hartford, $2,000 ; North British, $5,000 ; City of London, $3,000. It is likely that the salvage of the damaged goods will more than make up the difference between the amount of insurance and the value of the goods destroyed. Mr. Jacob Loeb, who owns the building, has it insured for $6,000-of which $3,000 is in the Commercial Union and $3,000 in the Ætua. His loss will be from $500 to $800. The south wall of the building is much injured, the ceiling and shelving will have to be renewed, and the entire room painted and frescoed.

We are informed that the agents of the insurance companies are taking active means for a prompt ascertainment and setlement of the loss; and that Gottschalk & Leaderman will, as soon as possible, reopen their bazaar.

There has been some complaint against Chief of Police Deichler that he refused to allow the firemen to break open the front door as soon as they reached the fire. The complaint appears to be unjust, as his action is sustained by the chief of the fire department, the insurance men and the owners of the goods. When the alarm of fire was given Mr. Gottschalk was in the act of retiring to

When informed of the fire he ran so rapidly to the scene, some three squares away, that he was overcome and fell prostrate in front of his store. He was carried into Al. Rosenstein's where Dr. Muhlenberg attended him. For some time past he has been suffering from heart disease. To-day he is confined to his bed, but is not regarded as being in a dangerous con-

When the door of the burning store room was opened, the heat was so great and the smoke so dense, that the firemen were for a time forced back. Joseph Goodorf, hosemen of engine No. 4, who had forced his way into the store room was overcome by the smoke and was found some minutes afterwards lying on the floor in an unconscious condition. He was carried out and resuscitated. Several other firemen narrowly escaped suffocation.

As the fast local freight west on the P. R. R. was passing east of Shock's Mills at midnight last night the rigging of one of the car brakes became detached and fell, causing a very serious wreck.
Of cleven cars loaded with groceries, fish in barrels, dry goods and other merchandise, eight were totally wrecked and their contents scattered about : and three more were badly broken. The front brakeman, John Funston, was caught between two cars and instantly killed He had been jammed against one of the cars so tightly that when they were separated his body stuck fast to the cud of it. His mangled body was taken to his home at Harrisburg on engine No. 332, of his own train. He was 28 years old, married, and had only been on the road since Feb. 20.

The track was torn up for 200 feet, and the Columbia wreckers and repairmen writes she had been troubled with asthma for were summoned to put things into shape. Harry M. Upp, railroad telegraph operator at Marietta, found an iron rail, eight feet long, tied on the track 25 feet east of Marietta; he saw it just in time to save the Columbia wreck train from being wrecked by it, and from this circumstance it is surmised that some such fiendishness as this occasioned the wreck at Shock's

Vandalism.

Some unprincipled persons have desecrated the grave of a little daughter of aptain E. McMellen in Woodward Hill cmetery. On the flat tombstone there was a small block of marble shaped like a Bible and having the inscription "Ellie's upon it. It was fastened to the tombstone with screws, and on Saturday last when members of Mr. McMellen's family visited the child's grave they discovered that some one lost to all sense of decency and without a spark of the ordinary sentiment that is supposed to pervade the human breast, had wrenched the block from the tembstone and carried it off. If the perpetrator of an act of such unmitigated meanness could be discovered he would be treated, and justly too, with the utmost rigor of the law. Complaint is made that there are continual evidences of vandalism in this and other cemeteries. Rose bushes are torn up by the roots and carried off, and similar acts worse than annoying are committed that call the value of the goods they had in the store for special vigilance on the part of those who guard the silent cities of the dead.
