WANAMAKER & BROWN.

READJUSTED PRICES. The prices on our Clothing for Men and Boys are scaled down to meet the decline in Spring Woolens. The only question now is, what will it cost to replace the cloth and trimmings? The answerfixes the price, but the result is from 10 per cent, to 30 per cent, in the buyers' favor.

THE READJUSTMENT

Affects in some way our entire stock. The prices of clothing made from goods bought on the decline are fixed accordingly, and while not reduced on the face of the tickets will average 20 per cent, below May rates. The prices are cut to the readjustment basis.

THE READJUSTMENT PRICES

Show fine figures for the buyer. The sixteen styles of Men's Suits at $9.25 included (made and making) one week ago over 1,300 complete suits, every garment of our own make within ninety days. The same facts apply to the 3,000 Men's Cassimere Pantaloons at $2.42. The finest goods come under like reductions—but it is in vain to attempt a price-list.

MISSOURI BANK ROBBERS CAPTURED. The Four Outlaws who Raided the Town of Brookfield Surrender to the Pur-

Their pursuers had an all-night's ride and it was an ex-citing chase. The robbery was a very bold affair. An alley runs by the side of the building. The bandits left their horses in this alley in charge of one of their number and with masks on their faces the other three walked into the bank. One took his stand at the door with a revolver

It required but a few minutes to do the work. Meanwhile people outside saw a fierce-looking bandit guarding the entrance and the news spread rapidly that the bank was being robbed. As the crowd gathered the bandit at the door flourished his weapon and warned people away. In a moment or two he and two others, armed and masked like himself, came out of the bank and made their way around armed and masked like himself, came out of the bank and made their way around the corner and down the alley, where their horses were in charge of the fourth bandit.

CADDICE FLIES.

An Insect That Walls Itself Up. In answer to an inquiry made of him our learned scientific friend, Dr. Rathvon,

W. U. HENSEL, ESQ .- Dear Sir :- The curious little worms, enclosed in a gravelcovered follicle, which you and your editorial companions recently observed in a spring in Franklin county, are commonly called "caddice-worms" or "case-worms," and are the larvæ of a Neuropterous(nervewinged) insect, commonly called "caddice flies," of which there are various species, the most common of which, perhaps, in in each hand, while his compnaions turned this latitude is the Phryganea Cinerea of their attention to the occupants.

The only persons in the room were Cashier John Ford and Miss Carrie Scott, his assistant. They looked up from their work to see the barrels of two revolvers staring them in the face. A sudden and peremptory demand for the money was the first warning of the presence of the bandits, and though at first disposed to demur Mr. Ford soon saw that his visitors were in such dead earnest that compliance was the only alternative, and reluctantly he handed over such parts of the funds as were in sight and for which repeated demand was made—some $4,000 or $5,000 in mand was made—some $4,000 or $5,000 in gold and silver and bank notes. It was a trying time, especially for the young lady, but she endured the aim of the revolver without giving vent to her feelings and active verse veins, and generally of a second ve verse veins, and generally of a grayish, brownish and blackish color, but not very brilliant. Their flight is sluggish and they are usually found near ponds, streams and springs of water, in which the larve or worms are found. Their development is very interesting. The female fly deposits her eggs either on the water or on some plant or other object in the water, and as soon as the young worm issues from the egg it seeks the bottom of the pool and
