THE SECRET OF DEATH.

RY EDWIN ARNOLD. " She is dead !" they said to him. " Con Kiss her and leave her-thy love is clay. They smoothed her tresses of dark brow

On her forehead of stone they laid it fair ; Over her eyes, that gazed too much, They drew the lids with a gentle touch ; With a tender touch they closed up well The sweet thin lips that had secrets to tell : About her brows and beautiful face They tied her vell and her marriage lace; And drew on her white feet her white silk

Which were the whitest, no eye could choose And over her bosom they crossed her hands. "Come away!" they said-"God under stands.'

And there was silence, and nothing there But silence, and scents of eglantere And jasmine, and roses and rosemary; And they said : " As a lady should lie, lies

And they held their breath as they left the With a shudder to glance at its stillness and

But he who loved her too well to dread The sweet, the stately, the beautiful dead, He lit his lamp and took the key And turned it-alone again, he and she He and she; but she would not speak, Though he kissed, in the old place, the quiet

He and she; but she would not smile. Though he called her the name she loved erewhile.

He and she : still she did not move To any one passionate whisper of love. Then he said: "Cold lips and breasts without Is there no voice, no language, of death-

"Dumb to the ear and still to the sense. But to heart and to soul distinct, intense: "See now! I will listen with soul, not ear : What was the secret of dying, dear? " Was it the infinite wonder of all That you could ever let life's flower fall ? "Or was it a greater marvel to feel The perfect calm o'er the agony steal ? " Was the miracle greater to find how deep

Beyond all dreams sank downward that sleep " Did life roll back its records, dear, And show, as they say it does, past thingclear ?" ' And was it the innermost heart of the bli

To find out so what a wisdom love is ? "There must be a pleasure in dying, sweet, To make you so plackd from head to feet. "I would tell you, darling, if I were dead, And 'twere your hot tears upon my brow

c' I would say, though the angel of death had His sword on my lips to keep it unsaid.

"You should not ask vainly with streaming Which of all death's was the chiefest surprise-

"The very strangest and suddenest thing Of all the surprises that dying must bring." Ah. foolish world! O most kind dead! Though he told me, who will believe it was

Who will believe that he heard her say, With the sweet, soft voice, in the dear old way: And see you, and love you, and kiss you, dear " And am your angel, who was your bride, And know that, though dead, I have never

The New Silk Industry.

The greatest incentive to engage in silk culture is the knowledge that there is a home market for $15,000,000 worth of floss, which American manufacturers are obliged to import from foreign lands. The other consideration is, that silk culture furnishes women and children in the rural districts with a congenial occupation that does not require constant attention, and so will not interfere with household duties.

In view of these facts the Women's Silk Culture association of Philadelphia was organized two years ago, for the purpose of calling the attention of the women of the country to the opportunity given them to to establish a new industry, both suitable and profitable; and also to give the necessary instructions to all desiring to engage in silk culture.

The success of this pioneer association is remarkable; there has been aroused a wide-spread interest in the cultivation of cocoons, that must go on increasing until the aim of the association is fulfilled.

This fact was most forcibly presented at the last exhibition of the association, at which the display of cocoons was very fine and interesting. The chief feature of the exhibition was the display of specimen cocoons by the twenty-six contestants for the Etrawbridge & Clothier premiums. The first one of which, by the way, was carried off by Mrs. Rebecca Taylor, (mother of the late Bayard Taylor), who is over 82 years of age, and a sufferer from paralysis.

The association announces that through the liberality of Messrs. Strawbridge & Clothier, the well known dry goods merchants of Philadelphia, it is again enabled to offer to the silk culturalists the sum of five hundred dollars in ten premiums, as follows: first premium, $100; second premium, $75; third premium, $65; fourth premium, $60; fifth premium, $50; sixth premium, $45; seventh premium, $40: eighth premium, $30; ninth premium, $25; tenth premium, $10. For these premiums any resident of the United States may contest. From the ten largest amounts of cocoons, one pound will be taken, without selection, and the test of reeling applied; the quantity and quality will be the conditions for premium. Application for competition must be endorsed and the amount of this year's cocoons raised by the culturist, testified to by some responsible person. Stock must be sent not later than December 1, ISS2.

Anyone with sufficient land to grow a few mulberry trees can add the rearing of silk worms to the daily care and find it a source of pleasure and profit. The work occupies but a small portion of the year. and a child can attend to the daily gathering of leaves and feeding the worms. If a supply of mulberry leaves cannot be had an osage orange hedge will answer every purpose. The osage orange leaf is admirable food for the silk worms, from which they spin splendid silk.

A very interesting event of national interest, connected with this subject of silk culture, has just occurred in Philadelphia. The Women's Silk Culture association
