OVER 20,000 WORKING MEN IN LINE.

Great Demonstration of the "Hard Faced" in Pittsburgh.

The great demonstration of workingmen of Western Pennsylvania took place in Pittsburgh on Saturday.

Before the march proceeded over the miniature mountains at the East End labor organizations began pouring into the city from every part of the adjacent country and from Wheeling, Steubenville, Youngstown, Johnstown, Altoona and other places. A large delegation came in over the Lake Erie road from different parts of Ohio. This was kept up until about the middle of the afternoon, when the total arrivals could not have been much short of fifty thousand. Such a crowd of human beings was never before seen in Pittsburgh. The streets were so thronged that teams and street cars and even pedestrians found it impossible to force a passage through the surging mass of anxious, excited people of all ages and conditions. Hundreds of women struggled with the sterner sex for eligible positions from which to obtain a view of the unusual spectacle.

The procession moved at two o'clock. There were five grand divisions, each thoroughly officered and equipped with bands of music, flags, banners, shovels, and other paraphernalia. The first came the Knights of Labor, nearly six thousand strong. Next came the coal miners; third, stove moulders' unions, iron moulders' unions and kindred trades unions; fourth, glass blowers; fifth, the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, nearly 3,000 strong, bringing up the rear. They attracted special attention, as well on account of the strike in which they are engaged as of their numbers in line and superb bearing. Rain fell at intervals during the parade, but the men stuck tenaciously to the ranks from beginning to end, very few leaving before the end of the route was reached. There was no speech-making and no allusion to politics either in or out of the procession.

All of the motives were striking and some of them original, the burden of them all being that labor has equal rights with capital and that it is not conspiracy to organize for protection. The procession was nearly two hours passing a given point. At a fair estimate there were 20,000 men in line. The most remarkable feature of the day was the perfect order which prevailed. There was not a drunken man in the procession. Women and children, without protectors, freely mingled with the throng without being subjected to either insult or injury. Large numbers were very generally suspended during the afternoon to give all an opportunity to participate in or witness the proceedings. The march was over a route five miles long. Chief Marshal Jones and Chief of Staff Thomas A. Armstrong, editor of the "Lancaster Intelligencer" and candidate for governor, and sixty aids, headed the procession.

There was not a disorderly scene during the parade. The Knights of Labor had previously agreed upon an order fining any member of the order $5 for getting drunk during the hours of parade. A banner bearing a skull and cross bones and the inscription, "This is the last and dying confession of the Waverly coal company," and another ornamented with a drawing of a skeleton and bearing the inscription, "This is the man that works for nothing," were noticeable. A banner announcing that Carnegie Brothers & Co. had signed the iron workers' scale was greeted with great cheering all along the line of march. One band of coal miners was headed by 50 Scotch pipers in full uniform, pipes, kilt and all. Many negroes were in the ranks and a colored drum corps headed a delegation of Irish miners.

A Success Throughout. Not less than 50,000 strangers were in the city as spectators of the parade. Brass bands from five states were present. The heat was great, and many people in the streets were overcome by it. Grimes and Cassinelli. About midnight Saturday as Colonel A. H. Stead, commanding the Twelfth regiment of the state troops, was on his way home in Williamsport, he was assaulted by three disguised men, who jumped out of an alley. Two of the assailants struck him violently. One of them kicked him while he was down. As they rushed down upon him they exclaimed: "We'll fix you now." As soon as they had completed their work, which required less than a minute, they departed. When the colonel recovered consciousness and rose to his feet he found that an ugly gash had been cut in his chin and that he was severely bruised about the body. As there was no attempt at robbery the colonel thinks that the assailants had a grudge against him for some reason to which he is an alderman and sought this method of revenge. His injuries will only lay him up for a day or two.

For several months during last year the Pennsylvania railroad company were greatly annoyed by the operations of a gang of freight car thieves. Large amounts of valuable goods were abstracted from the cars and no clue was left by which the robbers could be traced. On August 20, 1881, however, several pieces of leather and seven hundred and eighty pounds of wool were stolen from a train of cars near Coatesville. Detective Rue, who is in the employ of the company, took hold of the matter at the time and after a great deal of investigation fixed the crime upon August, alias Gustave Degeyer, one of the Van Damme gang of car thieves. Rue tracked this man to Boston, and on Tuesday last found him selling balloons on the common. A requisition was procured from Governor Hoyt and the man arrived in Philadelphia Saturday afternoon. He was at once taken before Magistrate Lenthorn, who committed him to prison in default of bail for a hearing on Wednesday next. Rue is a Belgian by birth, and is described as bearing a striking resemblance to Guiteau, both as regards the shape of his head and facial appearance.

The United States district attorney of Massachusetts has been ordered to bring suit for $250,000 against J. C. Bridgman, formerly Indian agent at Green Bay, Wis. He misapplied government funds. E. Payson Caldwell, of Philadelphia, who was held in $1,000 bail for alleged fraud by Abraham H. Jones, a lawyer with whom he had formed a partnership for the sale of new kind of electrical battery, on Saturday had his bail reduced by Judge Thayer to $500. He has been in jail for eight weeks. The judge observed that any man who has been in jail so long a time in this weather "certainly has suffered enough for any slander that he may have committed.

Pasquale Majone, the murderer, seems rather displeased than otherwise by the respite granted him, as he says he has got to hang anyway, and the reprieve only prolongs the agony.

A fire in Toronto on Saturday damaged the publishing house of Hunter, Rose & Co., and the Rose and Belford publishing company, to the extent of about $75,000.

Sixteen stores in Gadsden, Ala., were burned on Saturday morning. Loss, $30,000.

Most of the business portion of Willis, Texas, was destroyed by fire on Friday morning. Loss, $75,000.

C. P. Hazleton's saw mill and a large quantity of lumber, near Wausau, Wis., was burned a few days ago. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

At Manchester, on Saturday, a fire gutted the wholesale grain and grocery store of H. Hill & Co. Loss on building and stock, $5,000; insured. The firemen found that the safe had been blown open, the fire following the explosion. Hill & Co. say only $150 was in the safe, which was in the front part of the store, and the mysterious part of the affair is that the fire burned only in the rear, nowhere near the safe. No burglars' tools were found.

Samuel Nickerson and James Roche, bookbinders, perished by the burning of a stable in Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday evening. Timothy Remick's cotton waste mill at Boston Highlands, took fire early Saturday morning. The building contained much cotton waste, which, being thoroughly soaked by water from the engines, became so heavy as to burst the walls, which fell upon several firemen, who were considerably injured. Thomas Killion, of hook and ladder company, No. 12, of Boston, it is thought, will not survive. The building was of wood, 40x50 feet, and three stories high. Nineteen men were caught and buried beneath the falling walls. They were rescued in a short time. All had suffered to a greater or less extent, nine or ten being seriously injured. Two fire captains, it is believed, are fatally hurt.

The Fire in the Mine. The fire in the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre coal company's diamond mine, at Wilkesbarre, continues to spread, and the mine is being flooded. Eight men were injured by explosions while fighting the fire on Saturday. It will probably take three weeks for the water turned into the mine to reach the fire. Meanwhile work will be suspended in the mines connecting with the diamond mine, and several thousand men and boys will be idle.

TERRIBLE TORNADOES. Great Loss of Life and Destruction of Property in the West. Kansas City was visited on Friday night by a terrific tornado, which unroofed and overturned houses, blew down trees and fences, and worked general havoc. Fowler Brothers' cooper shop and the Western paint shops were blown down, and Thomas Madden, who was in the latter, was killed. The Howell hotel, at Rosedale, a suburban town, was also blown down, killing William Reese, Fred, Powell had a leg broken. At Wyandotte, across the Kansas river, Darring's opera house was unroofed. The loss in Kansas City is estimated at $300,000.

A terrific storm visited Leavenworth, Kas., Friday night, doing great damage. Houses were unroofed, trees and fences blown down, and a great deal of other property ruined. During the storm five women were killed in a house. Nearly all telegraph lines are down.

A tornado swept across central Iowa late last night from northwest to southeast, for 20 miles north of Des Moines. The town of Grennell was struck by it, and half of the town was left in ruins. The lateness of the hour at which any such like calamity strikes cannot be had last night from the tornado at Grennell and consequent prostration of wires prevented any report being sent out.

Both college buildings at Grinnell were blown down, with half of the north part of the town in ruins, and a large number killed and injured. A dispatch dated yesterday morning says: Half the city is in ruins. The surgeons now report that 41 are dead at Grinnell and that five or six more cannot live through the night. The number of injured exceeds 150, and the number of houses destroyed is between 140 and 150. The total loss of property is now estimated at $600,000.

It is feared that the number of deaths at Grinnell will reach 75. News has been received that Mr. James, with two daughters, and two other persons living four miles northeast of Grinnell, are dead. It is now thought that the loss of life outside of Grinnell will reach 25 and the total loss nearly 100. Dispatches from St. Louis state that the loss by the great storm in that city, Friday night, is much larger than was reported on Saturday, and will aggregate not less than $200,000.

Six Boys Drowned. John King, watchman of the United States dredge boat at Algiers, Louisiana, went sailing on the Mississippi yesterday afternoon with a party of ten boys. While returning home the boat upset and the following boys were drowned: Thomas McCormick, aged 16; George McCormick, 14; Willie Shorey, 15; Merry Meggitt, 14; Daniel Kelley, 14; Charles Duplessis, 13.
