BATURDAY EVENING, JULY 15, 1882

THE BELLS OF SAN BLAS. What say the bells of San Blas To the ships that southward pass From the parbor of Mazatlau To them it is nothing more Than the sound of surf on the shore,-Nothing more to master or man.

But to me, a dreamer of dreams, To whom what is and what seen s Are often one and the same-The Bells of San Blas to me Have a strange, wild melody, And are something more than a name

For bells are the voice of the church ; They have tones that touch and search The hearts of young and old ; One sound to all, yet each Lends a meaning to their speech, And the meaning is manifold.

They are a voice of the Past, Of an angel that is fading fast, Of a power au ture and grand. When the flag of Spain unturied Its folds o'er this western world, And the Priest was lord of the land

The chapel that once looked down On the little seaport town Has crumbled into the dust; And on oaken beams below The bells swing to and fro. And are green with mould and rust

" Is, then, the eld faith dead," They say, " and in its stead Is some new faith proclaimed, That we are forced to remain Naken to sun and rain, Unsheltered and ashamed

"Once, in our tower aloof We rang over wall and roof Our warnings and our complaints : And round about us there The white doves filled the air, Like the white souls of the saints.

"The saints! Ah, have they grown Forgetful of their own? Are they asleep, or dead, That open to the sky Their ruined Mission lie No longer tenanted

Oh, bring us back no more The vanished days of yore, When the world with faith was filled; Bring back the fervent zeal. The hearts of fire and steel, The hands that believe and build.

"Then from our tower again We will send over land and main Our voices of command Like exiled kings who return To their thrones, and the people learn That the Priest is lord of the land!"

O Beils of San Blas, in vain Ye call back the Past again; The Past is deaf to your prayer! Out of the shadows of light The world rolls into light; It is daybreak everywhere

G. A. G." in Country Gentleman.

-Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. TOBACCO IN PENNSYLVANIA. bome Notes on Curing the Crop.

There is probably no process in the growing or manipulation of tobacco that s generally so little understood as the curing. Farmers who have cultivated tobacco for years with good success, usually express conflicting opinions upon the principal points of the subject, and from all that I have been able to learn from experience and observation on the subject, must admit that I am unable to defice the laws which govern the process of curing tobacco. Therefore I ask to be excused for giving more theory in this article than practice. It is well known among growers of tobacco that in some seasons tobacco in certain sections will cure with genally good colors and desirable qualities, and at other seasons the reverse is the case, and qualities throughout some sec tions are poor and the tobacco undesirable

At the same time there is always some variance in different crops, owing, doubt-less, to the various soils and their condi tion as regards fertility and tilth, and to the kind of barn in which the crops were The cause of these variations in quality from very good to poor, in different years, has not been satisfactorily explained. The subject is an important one, and deserves more consideration than it has received, for in a great measure the quality of tobacco depends upon the manner in which it is cured. Color is an important element in the quality of tobacco, and it is only by proper curing that good colors can be produced, and yet with the majority of the producers of seed-leaf tobacco, light or dark colors are only obtained by accidental circumstances. Fashion at the present time demands rich, dark colored wrappers for covering cigars, hence the importance of knowing how to produce them. It is pretty certain that the weather has much to do with the curing of tobacco. It is well known that in some seasons the tobacco in a certain section will rule light in color, while in another year dark colors will prevail, and atother times heavy losses result from pole burning. These varia-tions of quality probably result from the general character of the weather during the process of curing, and serve to indicate laws which rarely fail. These are that rapid curing tends to produce light colors, and slow curing dark colors. With the light colors there is likely to be other undesirable qualities, such as rust, white veins, poor texture, &c. It is generally believed that very rapid drying tends to produce undesirable qualities in the cured leaf, and therefore, the curing barn should be so arranged as to prevent the rapid curing in dry weather. In damp, murky weather there is always danger from "pole-burn" while the tobacco is green, and care must be exercised to prevent this.

Right here is a point where a difference in opinion occurs. It is my practice to keep the ventilating doors of the curing barn open during hot, lowry, damp weather, so as to encourage a circulation of air among the plants. There are good growers who follow the reverse course and keep all doors tightly closed during periods of damp weather, whether the temerature is warm or cool, their argument being that by keeping the building tight the hot, damp air is excluded. Which of these opinions is correct I do not know, but it is pretty certain that a certain degree of heat and dampness will affect tobacco seriously whether the doors are opened or closed, and for this reason few or ho growers are exempt from dam age to their tobacco from pole sweat. age to their tobaceo from pole sweat. The best advice that I can give on this subject is to keep the curing barn closed tightly during periods of dry, windy weather, and to encourage a free circulation of air during damp weather. It is during "muggy" weather, when there is little air stirring, that pole-sweat is most likely to occur, and it is then that ventila

It is probable that an artificial means for ventilating tobacco sheds could be made most usfeul, and if it could be discovered at what degree of temperature and stage could prevent danger to their crops with only a small outlay. The loss that occurs in some tobacco growing sections during tome seasons when pole-sweat prevails, amounts to many thousands of dollars. These losses could be prevented by supplying artificial ventilation to the plants when the condition of the weather is such as to cause the damage.

MEDICAL. From Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper A LADY SAID,

Those Horrid l'implest No. I Caquet Go. Please Present My Excuses.

Probably two-thirds of the ladies in society and homes of our land are afflicted with skin diseases of various kinds, to do away with which, if it could be done with out injury, would be the happiest event of their lives. Then she would have instead of a disfigured and marred countenance, one that would be handsome, or at least good looking, for any one with a clear, pure skin, no matter what the cut of her teatures are, has a certain amount of good looks which attract everybody. As it is now, she imagines every one sees and talks about "those freckles," "those horrid pimples," and other blemishes with which she is afflicted, and this is true of

To improve this appearance great risks are taken; arsenic, mercury, or high-sound titled named articles containing these death-dealing drugs, are taken in hopes of getting rid of all these troubles. In many cases, death is the result. No alleviation of the burning, heating, itching and inflammation is given. All troubled with Lezema (salt rheum), Tetters. Humors, Inflammation, Rough Scaly Eruptions of any kind, Diseases of the Hair and Scalp. Scrofula. Ulcers, Pimples or Tender Itchings on any part of the body, should know that there is hope for them in a sure, perfect and elegant remedy, known as "Dr. C. W. Benson's Skin Cure." It makes the skin white, soft and smooth, removes tan and freckles, and is the best tollet dressing in the world. It is elegantly pu! up, two bottles in one package, consisting of both internal and external treatment. Our readers should be sure to get this and not some old remedy resuscitated on the success of Dr. Benson's and now advertised as "The Great 5kin Cure."
