OBITUARY.

Death of Mrs. Mary Eshelman Hiester. A special dispatch to the INTELLIGENCER from Philadelphia, dated at 2:41 p. m., announces the death in that city today of Mrs. Mary E. H., wife of Dr. R. J. Lewis.

Mrs. Lewis was the daughter of the late Benjamin Eshelman, of this city, and sister of B. F. Eshelman, esq. She was born at the late home of Eshelman's mill in East Lampeter township.

She was married in June 18, 1878, in this city, and since then Mrs. L. has resided in Philadelphia, though a frequent visitor to this city, where she had many friends and relatives, and real estate interests, owing much to her father's business and adjoining properties on Chestnut street, and a number of houses and offices on Duke street, including the late residence of Mr. Hiester, now occupied under a ten year lease by Judge Livingston.

She was buried in this city about a month ago, after a long illness. Her body was taken to Europe, and she was to have been accompanied by Mrs. B. F. Eshelman, who had taken passage on board the steamer Ohio, on which Dr. Wiekham's party sailed.

THE TURNIP. We all know the value of the turnip crop to England. It has been asserted that the present crop is the largest annually paid by the product of this crop.

As to the United States, we do not make half the use of the turnip we might do, by increasing the consumption of the root and improving in the manner of its cultivation.

One reason for this limited use may be in our olden error, labor labor. In the culture of the carrot, for instance, there is a great amount of hand work.

As soon as the seeds are up the plants must be thinned. The great secret in growing carrots is to keep the rank weeds from smothering out the carrot plants.

Carrots are an excellent horse food; but few of us have this hard labor to spare. It is so much the more profitable to grow them in small quantities, though we know how nice it is to have carrots with corn, if carrots did not require so much hard work.

Here is the same trouble with the turnip, though in a less degree to be sure. Every single turnip that is raised is pulled, and then after pulling every one has to be gone over again and handled to take the top off.
