THE COMMENCEMENT.

A Large Audience in Attendance The commencement exercises began in the chapel this morning, when, as usual, there was a large attendance that steadily augmented as the hours were on. The representation from every section of the county and state was very general, and three street cars from this city were kept running full all day. The exercises began at half-past nine, the members of the graduating class, which numbered thirty-seven in the elementary course, two in the scientific course and one who gained his state cortificate, taking seats in the front rows of benches, while President Brooks occupied a chair on the platform. After prayer by Rev. J. M. Wheeler the normal school choir sang a chorus, "The Dawning of the Day," arranged from Kalliwoda, an admirable selection rendered with much spirit. The salutatory oration, by Miss Augusta

Davis, of Wilkesbarre, subject "Immortality in Song," came next. After a generous greeting and cordial welcome, the young lady said that the heart rather than the head is the seat of true poetic genius; the poet sheds a recon-ciling spirit over all the discords of life. It is the faculty that gives the composi-tions of Milton and of Woodsworth their enduring character. Such poetry, she said, stands the wear of life and breathes a benediction even after its decline. The object of poetry is to call for symthy with great truths and immortalize nobility of character. A pure and noble life is itself a poem, a song unsung ; its metre is unmeasured, its rhyme unmarked; but its numbers coho in the better land, and its tones will thrill in the lives of others long after the soul that gave them birth has perished. The young lady's manner of delivery was as frank and pleasing as the many beautiful thoughts in which the paper abounded were charmingly worded. Miss Anna Bernard played a selection from "Faust," and acquitted herself very oreditably.

"The Bullet and the Ballot" was the ually destroy our own country. It rests of red, white and blue ribbons. ipon a people as a mammoth incubus, and he orator cited the annual enormous expenditures for pensions alone. The present ndency is fortunately to dethrone the bullet and enthrone the ballot. The day is not far distant when the law of right for individuals will be made the law of Casar, Nelson and Grant shall cease to Those of Lincoln, Sumuer, Seward, Stevens and Garfield will be held in continued remembrance. Arbitration and mediation are now employed to settle dispute and these exemplify the spirit of the ballot. A fine effort that glowed with the speak

Misses Fitch and Bernard gang the "Merry Minstrels," by Glover, very sweetly, the voices chording harmoniously and musically, "Soul Expression" was the subject of Willow, Pa. The soul of the Infinite One is expressed in the wonders of His creation. Man is the crown of creation, the soul the crown of man; the sword cannot smite it, sickness cannot subdue it. It shows itself in the countenance and ex-presses itself in our highest aspirations oo exalted for words. The galleries of the Vatican and Louvre are but books in which souls have expressed their loftiest ideals is the language of art. Music and song are another channel in which the soul rushes forth. The spuls of Dante and of Milton speak through their sublime works. Oratory is frequently the expression of the human soul. When Demosthenes hurled his denunciations against Philip of Macedon; when Cicero, Peter the Hermit, Patrick Henry, inspired the world, it was the soul expressing itself rather than an effort of the intellect; equally heroic are the souls that express themselves in religion. Let us remember that whatever we undertake is ours to do with our whole heart and soul; it is the only way in which we can achieve and deserve success. A well written paper spoken with an energy and sentiment that were in keeping with the theme.

Misses Mary and Anna Frantz played a ductt "Invitation to the Dauce" (Weber.)

It was executed on two pianos and was altogether a very brilliant performance.

D. R. Baer, of Millersvitle, delivered an oration, entitled "Tottering Thrones." As we unroll the mouldy pages of history what a panoramic view is presented to our gaze. The rise and fall of empires is seen to be constant, and popular revolution to be constant, and popular revolution against the abuse of power is gradually bringing about a larger freedom, a real liberty of thought and action. The as-sassin's bullet that has laid low rulers of the Old World carries with it a lesson; it bit on the A warrant was issued for teaches that a democratic spirit is growing. The speaker thought he detected this in the existence of Nihilistic, Social istic and Land League organizations, and predicted that the wave of republicanism will ere long sweep the last vestige of monarchical despotism from the face of the earth. This composition was heavily charged with dynamite and smashed the thrones of the Old World into infinitesimal atoms. The orator's ardent republicanism was not to be questioned after his vigorous effort. Mr. Baer is the senior member of the class, served through the war of the Rebellion in the First regiment Pennsylvania reserves, company I; was with Grant in the Wilderness, fought at Gettysburg and participated in many of the most Trowbridge's pathetic "Emigrant's Story" was recited by Miss Martha H. Cooper, of Avondale, Pa. The graphic lescriptive portions were rendered with great force and the more soutimental hases of the story were given with an ffect that went straight to the listener's heart; as an elecutionary effort the recitation deserved to rank with the best of amateur performances.

Miss Susan Clarkson, Benglu, Pa. The young lady started out with a vigorous protest against the spirit of vandalism that is destroying the timber of the country. There was bruch of practical sense in this phase of her remarks, and by an apt comparison the young lady indicated the Sabbath day as the eld tree of creation, and earnestly deprecated the growing spirit that would take away the sacred character

Oration-" Manifest Destiny "-E. M. Pennell, Patterson, Pa. While it may never be definitely known where civilization had its origin, its course is seen to be westward. It cannot be long before everything that is best in Eastern culture becomes assimilated with American nationality and reach to the Pacific shares. Our history in the past offers but faint premonition of that which is to come. To-day our country stands an integral part of the civilization of the world, but she has not yet reached her manifest destiny nor will that be effected until the entire confloent from the Artic to the Antartic are united in one language, one nationality, one religion— an indissoluble union. The orator took strong ground against the permission affairs of this country, predicted the extension of American system from end to of the Western hemisphere, and said that when the manifest destiny of the country is completed the world will be wrapped in peace. A sterring production delivered in round sonorous voice and with good ora-

The exercises of the morning session terminated with a piano and organ trio "Stradella" (Claude Melnotte), by Miss Warner, Miss Wheeler and Mr. Felton, which was a very admirable feature of the music, and in every way in keeping with the general excellence of this portion of the programme.

An adjournment was then taken for dinner and the exercises were finished this afternoon.

lateresting Meeting of the Third Ward The members of the Third Ward Pugilistic Benevolont Association met in great numbers at the Golden Horse hotel, East King street, last evening. The belt has something of a history. It was got up by the association two or three years ago and presented to Councilman John H. Barnes as a token of the satisfac tion felt by his many friends at the result of the bloody battle fought by him and the victory won over Alderman Barr durnations. When the names of Alexander, ing their fierce encounter at that time. Casar, Nelson and Grant shall nease to Mr. Barnes has held the belt unchallenged thunder through the corridors of time ever since, though it is rumored that Alderman Barr, smarting under defeat, has been training with a view of winning the coveted prize. His misadventure with Mr. White has probably dampened his ardor and it is not likely that he will soon again strive for fistic honors. Be this as it may, he was not present at the meeting last night to dispute the disposal of the belt, which was presented to Mr. White in an eloquent speech by ex-Champion Barnes, and received modestly by the new champion, who promised to defend it an oration by Miss Harriet Sener, of West | against all comers. The meeting, after indulging in sundry refreshments, adjourned with cheers for the champion.
