Flocking to see a Hogus Sullivan.

It was rumored throughout Lehigh Valley on Monday that Sullivan, the prize-fighter, would pass up the valley to Wilkes-Barre on the Lehigh Valley train. At several persons assembled at the depot to see him, but he was not on board. There was on the train a shirt agent who somewhat resembled Sullivan, and at the persuasion of the conductor he agreed to impersonate the prize-fighter, and proceeded on the train. At various points of the road to Bethlehem various crowds gathered to see the prize-fighter, and an operator who was taken into confidence, flashed the news up the valley that Sullivan was coming. At Bethlehem there was a crowd of men at the depot. At Allentown a crowd gathered for Sullivan, and at Weissport the iron works had to stop running until the train had passed, as the workmen flocked to the station to see Sullivan. The agent appeared on the platform and bowed to the crowds at each station and the joke was kept until the agent left the train at Mauch Chunk.

How a Drunken Man was Saved.

William Meighan, a drunken man, threw himself on the down track of the Pennsylvania & Amboy railroad, four miles below Burlington, N. J. The driver of the half-past 7 o'clock up freight train, which was going at full speed, happened to catch a glimpse of him, stopped at the next station below Burlington and telegraphed news of the fact up the line. The men in charge of the express train leaving here at a quarter to 8 were notified just as they were moving out of the depot. They cautiously steamed down towards the spot, and the engineer seeing a black object in front of him on the track put down the brakes. The train was brought to a stop within a foot of the object, which proved to be William Meighan. He was thrown into a baggage car and put out at the next station. Only for the freight engine telegraphing up the line Meighan would have undoubtedly been killed, as if the train had been going at its usual speed it would have been impossible to have stopped in time.

Five Million Feet of Lumber Burned.

Fire at Grand Rapids, Mich., destroyed 6,000,000 feet of lumber, owned by the Michigan barrel company, and burned six dwellings and damaged several others. Total loss is estimated at $100,000.

An incendiary fire broke out in the lumber yards of the Minneapolis mill company, Minneapolis. It is estimated that 3,000,000 feet of lumber, mostly clean, has been burned, on which the loss is about $50,000. A portion of the burned lumber was piled in close proximity to the gas works. As an explosion was imminent, the gas was turned into the river about 9 o'clock, leaving the city in darkness. The fire is believed to be under control. The loss on lumber is $50,000, and to the gas company $4,000.

An Actor's Wife's Inheritance.

The stories that the wife of Charles R. Thorne, jr., an actor at the Union Square theatre, New York had fallen heir to a fortune were verified by the admission to probate the register of wills' office of the will by which Mr. and Mrs. Thorne come into possession of their property.

Mrs. Thorne was the daughter of Joseph Swift, of Philadelphia, who died recently at his residence, No. 1533 Walnut street, leaving property valued at nearly a million dollars. Mrs. Thorne is given $5,000 absolutely by the will, and after her sister, Emily S. Balch, is given the family residence and furniture, the balance of the estate is placed in the care of the Philadelphia trust company, which is to pay one-half the income to Mrs. Balch, and one-half of the remainder to Mrs. Thorne and the other half to her children.

Mr. Thorne has announced his intention of retiring from the stage.

A Plaster Cast of Miss Parnell's Face.

A plaster cast of the face and hand of Miss Fannie Parnell, who died on Friday at Bordentown, N. J., was successfully taken by John Heath, of Philadelphia, on Sunday, and he will at once cast a plaster bust from it, to be taken to England. Mr. Heath says that Miss Parnell's face was quite natural in death, and that he had no difficulty in making a fine job. The cast of the hand was taken at the request of Mrs. Parnell, the mother. A marble bust will be made from the plaster for Miss Parnell's distinguished brother, Charles Stewart Parnell, with whom she was a great favorite.

The Skeleton of the Central Transsept.

The skeleton of the central transsept is all that remains of the Main Centennial building, and about twenty workmen are engaged in razing it to the ground. Piles of iron, glass and ornamental woodwork are scattered promiscuously around the famous structure. A considerable quantity of the iron taken from the building has been shipped to Pittsburgh. It is expected that the grounds will be cleared at the time specified by the park commissioners, and that by December not a vestige of the big building will remain.

Robbed a Bath House.

A young man, aged 18 years, named George Kubule, employed as cashier at the Park bath house, Atlantic City, disappeared with three hundred dollars belonging to the proprietor. He had been employed there for a long time and always held the fullest confidence of his employer, and was very popular with the patrons of the establishment.

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of shell and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago it brought on paralysis, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered terribly from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and, after taking two bottles, I am able to get up and go around, and am rapidly improving.
