VETO!

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL KILLED.

Democrats Exultant--Republicans Enraged.

The agony caused by the delay of the president in communicating to Congress his views on the river and harbor bill ended yesterday afternoon, at twenty-five minutes past four. A dispute was in progress at the time as to the proper distribution of reports of the tenth census, but the advent of Secretary Fritzen caused a cessation of hostilities. He bore in his hand a roll of manuscript, in brown wrapping paper, which he held aloft while awaiting recognition by the speaker, and was observed whispering the contents of the roll to several representatives seated near him. The House became serious in an instant, and Speaker Keifer handed Clerk McPherson the message, and he at once began the reading. Not over ten minutes was occupied in its delivery and the silence in the chamber was only interrupted once. This was when the clause was read to the effect that as the bill became more objectionable the more support it would receive. A number of the members said audibly: "That is correct." The full text of the message was as follows:

TO THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:—Having watched with much interest the progress of House bill No. 6,242 entitled "An act making appropriation for the construction, repair and preservation of certain works on rivers and harbors and for other purposes," and having since it was received carefully examined it, after mature consideration I am constrained to return it herewith to the House of Representatives, in which it originated, without my signature and with my objections to its passage.

Many of the appropriations in the bill are clearly for the general welfare and most beneficial in their character. Two of the objects for which provision is made seem to me so important that I felt it my duty to direct to them the attention of Congress. In my annual message in December last I urged the vital importance of legislation for the reclamation of the marshes and for the establishment of the harbor lines at the Potomac front. In April last, by special message, I recommended an appropriation for the improvement of the Mississippi river. It is not necessary that I say that when my signature would make the bill appropriating for these and other valuable national objects a law it will be of great importance and only under a sense of duty that I withhold it.

My principal objection to the bill is that it contains appropriations for purposes not for the common defense or general welfare of the United States, and that it is not unusual that they should seek to indemnify themselves for such use of the public funds by securing appropriations for similar improvements in their own neighborhood. Thus as the bill becomes more objectionable it receives more support. This result is invariable and necessarily follows a neglect to observe the constitutional limitations imposed upon the law making power.

The appropriations for river and harbor improvements are, however, of such a nature that I have alluded, increased year by year out of proportion to the progress of the country, great as that has been. In 1870 the aggregate appropriation was $2,976,900; in 1875, $6,648,517.50; in 1880, $8,976,500; and in 1881, $11,451,900, while in 1882 it is $18,743,875. While feeling every disposition to leave to the Legislature the responsibility of determining what amount should be appropriated for the purposes of the bill so long as the appropriations are not objectionable to me, as a member of power, I cannot escape the conclusion that as a part of the law-making power of the government the duty devolves upon me to withhold my signature from the bill containing appropriations which in my opinion greatly exceed in amount the needs of the country for the present fiscal year.

It being the usage to provide money for these purposes by annual appropriation bills, the president is in effect directed to expend so large an amount of money within so brief a period that the expenditure cannot be made economically and advantageously.

The extravagant expenditure of public money is an evil not to be measured by the value of that money to the people who are taxed for it. They sustain a greater injury in the moralizing effect produced by the motion had prevailed. An informal conference was at once inaugurated and while a squad of disinterested Republicans sped quickly to the Senate to communicate the news the area in front of the speaker's desk was thronged with excited members of both Houses.

"What will be done in this matter, Page?" asked the Jolly Hor, of Michigan, the chairman of the commerce committee. "We'll pass it over his veto," was the prompt reply, and Mr. Page hastened to collect the members of his committee for a meeting at 8 o'clock this evening.

The agitation seemed to be confined almost exclusively to the Republican side.

THE BUISSERS.

How Arthur Chambers and 'Tug' Wilson Divide Up the Profits.

"Arthur Chambers the man who is raking in the money out of this business," said "Al" Lunt, who was Tug Wilson's trainer before the sparring bout with Sullivan. "Do you continue to say that Chambers, by agreement gets one half of all the money made by Tug? It was agreed before Wilson came to this country that he would divide all his earnings while he remained with Chambers. As Tug is not so much in the money as supposed, the gate receipts of the Madison Square match were something over $15,000 and Wilson got only about $4,700, while Chambers cleared, with bets and all that he won, as much as $8,000. Tug sees $1,000 or $200 home to his wife, put $3,000 in bank, and the balance in his pocket for spending money. He is the best natured man in the world, with a heart as big as his head, and don't know quite as much now about some things as when he was living in this country a little longer. Tug Wilson's a big card and Chambers is coining money, but he don't divide. You might think I made quite a stake out of that match, but I didn't. I was asked by Chambers to let Sullivan have the right of the stage, with McCollin on top of him. The without any blows of my account being struck, both being completely windle."

The men came together for the fourth time in good condition, and for three minutes there was some very hard hitting. McCoy getting in his under cut with effect. Frank Gormerley, the umpire, announced that he was unable to decide between the contestants, and James Dawson, one of the referees, coincided with the decision. The decision was left to Mike Cleary, the other referee, who decided that while McCollin had the advantage in the second round and McCoy in the fourth, McCoy on the whole had done the most "square hitting" and was entitled to the match. The trophy must be won three times before it becomes the property of a contestant.

A Vigorous Glove Fight at Cohoes.

The glove fight for a purse of $200 in Egbert's hall, Cohoes, N. Y., last night, between Edward Vaughn and John Carlow was won by the former in fifteen rounds. Carlow was a good striking Vaughn a vicious blow over the left eye. Vaughn won the first, third, fourth and sixth falls. The second fall Carlow came on top, but his knee-cap was shattered by coming in contact with the stage. Vaughn weighed 120 pounds and Carlow 195. Vaughn forced the fighting and the falls were made in rapid succession. Both men gave and received terrific blows. In the fourth round Vaughn got in a rib blow, which knocked the wind out of Carlow. It was a fair fight. James Killoran, of Troy, acted as referee.

A Significant Toast.

An Irishman drinking the head of his bishop, gave this toast: "May your reverence live to see the old man that grows over you grave." If anything could make that toast true, it is the remedy, whose one mission is to prolong life, and to deliver from the power of insidious and mortal disease. And since more and more people are afflicted with liver diseases! What intense suffering, too, is connected with urinary troubles! Yet, is there any one who has not heard of the wonderful effects of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People? It is a reasonable day's work. For sale at H. B. MEDICAL.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

NOTED MEN!

DR. JOHN F. HANCOCK, late President of the National Pharmaceutical Association of the United States, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters has a heavy sale, is conceded to be a fine tonic, and the character of the manufacturer makes it a voucher for its purity and medicinal excellence."

DR. JOSEPH ROBERTS, President Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"I endorse it as a fine medicine, reliable as a strengthening tonic, free from alcoholic poisons."

DR. J. FAIR MOORE, Ph. D. Professor of Pharmacy, Baltimore Pharmaceutical College, says:

"Brown's Iron Bitters is a safe and reliable medicine, positively free from alcoholic poisons, and can be recommended as a particular favor and did my level best for him, and how much do you think Chambers paid me for it? Why, the immense sum of $10. That's every cent I received for training Wilson for the big match. I must say that he's the best man I ever handled. I say that because he is and he's getting in fine form again. Sullivan won't knock him out, nor there's not a man in the world can knock him out in four rounds." Then the trainer finished his glass of 'alf and all' at a gulp.

A special set to the victory of the Light-Weight Championship Medal.

The first sparring contest for the light-weight championship of Pennsylvania at Clark's Olympic garden, Philadelphia, narrowed down last week to Edw. McCollin and Charles McCoy. The two men were drawing on account of being too heavy to spar fairly with the others. The match between McCollin and McCoy proved an exciting one, and aroused the greatest enthusiasm among the large gathering of spectators. The men are quite young, and pretty evenly matched, but McCoy had a peculiar under-cut that did wonderful execution. The first round was tame, and there was no advantage to be claimed by either side when "Al" Lunt called time. The second round was a pretty contest, but the third round was a very hard hitting. McCoy getting in his under cut with effect. Frank Gormerley, the umpire, announced that he was unable to decide between the contestants, and James Dawson, one of the referees, coincided with the decision. The decision was left to Mike Cleary, the other referee, who decided that while McCollin had the advantage in the second round and McCoy in the fourth, McCoy on the whole had done the most "square hitting" and was entitled to the match.
