A Neglected Wife Takes Arsenic. Mrs. Aggie Templeton nee Cunningham, whose parents reside at No. 607 North Queen street, attempted to commit suicide yesterday by taking a dose of arsenic at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Henry Alderman Samson on Tuesday next at 2 Shaffner, on Manor street, near West King. The affair created intense excitement in the neighborhood, and attracted a great crowd of people to the scene. Dr. Boyd was hastily sent for, and by the use of antidotes succeeded in saving the life of the young woman, though she yet lies in a very critical condition.

Mrs. Templeton is quite a handsome young woman, not yet twenty years of ago. She was married to Harry Templeton about two months ago, but for some cause not stated he has refused to provide for or live with her. Driven to desperation by his neglect she resolved to take her own life. On Tuesday last she called at the drug store of A. D. Haines, corner of Prince and Chestnut street, and bought five cents worth of arsenic, saying she wanted it to poison rats. Mr. Haines was not present at the time, the poison having been sold by a lad named Hoch, who was in charge of the store, and who labelled the package "poison," but failed to take the name and address of the purchaser. Mrs. Templeton on going to Shaffner's house, took the entire half ounce of poison, and it is perhaps because the dose was so large that it did not prove fatal. quenchable thirst. She professes sorrow fair hopes of saving her life.

A THIEVING TRAMP.

He Steals a Watch and $75 in Money.

This morning Jacob Pontz, of Pontz & Bro., brickmakers, drew $75 from bank with which to pay his workmen. He put the money in his vest pocket and took it to the brickyard on the Harrisburg pike. Having some work to do he took off his vest and lay it aside in the brickyard. Soon afterwards the money and a watch that was in the vest pocket were missed.

A tramp who had been seen loitering around the premises and who had disappeared was suspected. The brickmakers started in pursuit of him and overtook him. He did not have the stolen property in his possession, but said he would tell his captors where it was if they would let him go. This they agreed to do, and he piloted them to a plowed field, where he had secreted the money and watch and they were recovered. The tramp was then let go, according to promise; but meantime, Officer Burns had got wind of the larceny and gone in pursuit of the thief. He came upon him near Rohrerstown and after chasing him for some distance arrested him, brought him to town and locked him up.

HUNTING FOR THE DEAD.

ooking for Her Husband's Hody—A Mothe and Daughter's Unsuccessful Search.

Alfred Breslaw, an industrious German mechanic, lived very happily with his wife and a pretty sixteen-year-old daughter on Master street, above Ninth, Philadelphia, where he died suddenly of heart disease. The neighbors found Mrs. Breslaw in spasms, and carried her up stairs. On the following day, when the wife and daughter regained their senses, they found that the dead man's body had been taken to the morgue. Mrs. Breslaw went at once. At the morgue they were told that it had been taken to the potter's field They consulted Mr. Weudell P. Bowman, and he began an investigation on the third day after Breslaw died. At the morgue he was told that the body had been taken to the potter's field for burial. On visiting the potter's field he found an old man named Casey, known about the hospitals and schools of anatomy as "Ugly" Casey, who referred Mr. Bowman to this entry in a greasy note-book, which he took from his pocket: "Breslaw, Dutchman from the morgue. Planted in the trench.'

The old man said it could not be done Mr. Bowman threatened to have him arrested he confessed that the corpse had Bowman at once turned his attention to the colleges. The widow and daughter accompanied him in his ghastly search. At this season of the year no bodies are dissected, but a large stock is laid in for the fall and winter. Armed with authority to search the college-vats and quicklime pits, Mr. Bowman and the women began. At the first vat Mrs Bres law fainted when a body was dragged to the surface and exposed for her inspection. She revived in a few minutes. Corpse after corpse was hooked up without finding the one wanted. At the end of two days the receptacles of every medical college and school of anatomy in the city had been examined without success. The women, worn out by the unnatural strain on their nerves, became hopeless and favored giving up the search, but Mr. Bowman resolved to visit "Ugly" Casey once more, believing that he had lied to him on his first visit. Casey admitted that he had sold the body at Dr. Keen's anatomical school in a little street off Kent street. cal school, in a little street off Kent street between Market and Chestnut. The corpse brought $14. Casey offered to assist in searching for the corpse, and an hour or two later Mr. Bowman, Casey and Breslaw's widow and daughter stood on the brink of the corpse receptacle in Dr. Keen's school. They searched the vats in this school, but the body was not found. There search ended. It is believed that after Mr. Bowman's first visit Casey became frighted, secured the body from the person to whom he had sold it, and then buried it.

Of recent years many in active steps are already being taken to novations upon the old-time cus toms have crept in among these people, the younger portion of the church insisting upon education and a paid ministry, the establishment of Sunday schools and the like. They have also insisted that they should be allowed to dress according to the customs of the times and be allowed the use of musical instruments in their homes. At a meeting of the annual conference held at Lanark, Illinois, in 1880, a resolution was offered condemning these practices, but so far had the progressivists advanced that the resolution failed to carry. Meanwhile in many of the congregations there are serious dissensions. So bitter has the fight grown in Franklin county that they refuse to worship to-
