SOME SNAIX

THE MUNSTER IN DALAWARE.

A Reptile Twenty Feet Long. Wilmington Gazette. James Cheeseman, said to be "a gentleman beyond reproach and of unimpeach-able character," while driving leisurely along the road from Delaware City to St. George's, on Tuesday morning last, was suddenly startled when on the St. George's causeway near Dragon creek, by the ap-pearance of a large reptile coming down the road directly toward him at a rapid pace. As the moving mass approached he discovered it was a huge black snake at least twenty feet long and about a foot in diameter, as near as could be judged by the hurried glance he gave the "varmint" Before the loathsome creature reached him he gave his horse a cut with a which just a the scale a whip just as the snake made a jump for the animal. The horse sprang to one side and started on a dead run, apparently terribly frightened. The snake missed its aim, but struck the front wheel of the carriage a stunning blow, breaking out nearly every spoke and making the vehicle tremble and, cant dangerously to one side. Mr. Cheeseman did not succeed in stopping his horse until it had run about a mile, when he looked back, but saw nothing of the horrible reptile, which he describes as being covered with large scales. Charles Brown and his wife, while blackberrying in the same vicinity last week, were chased by the same immense creature, but by dist of hard running they succeeded in gaining a place of shelter.

The existence of the snake is well known, and a gentlemen who does not care, from modesty, to have his name appear, very reluctantly gives an experience he passed through about too. he passed through about ten days ago. He started out blackberrying in the marshes along the banks of the Dragon creek, carrying with him a shotgun. Feeling tired about noon he concluded to rest awhile and began to make his way to an old log, as he thought, about twenty feet distant, to take a seat. Upon ap proaching what he believed to be a fallen tree the object moved slightly, when he discovered it was not a log, but an immense snake, on which were scales about the size of soup plates. Instinctively he fied as rapidly as the nature of the ground would permit, leaving his gun behind. Finding he was not pursued he glanced back and saw his snakeship moving slowly away, and although he believes he saw the middle of the creature first, it was fully five minutes before the tail passed through the bushes.

A crackling noise followed in the wake of the snake and small trees shook as the creature's tail swayed from side to side. Gaining courage, the Gazette informant secured his gun and started after the snake, which had disappeared in the woods. After traveling about a mile the hunter came in sight of the trunk of an old hollow oak, about fifty feet high and two feet in di ameter, from the top of which protruded the head and almost ten feet of the "aw-fulest thing I ever saw," as the informant remarked. Its head was about the size of a nail keg and of a glossy black color, its forked tongue shooting out venomously fully a foot, accompanied by a hissing sound resembling escaping steam from a locomotive. The hunter touch a few and the state of t The hunter took aim and fired. the load of shot striking the snake, the shooter thinks, two feet from the head. The load failed to make any impression, but dropped to the ground flattened out. A shot from the second barrel resulted the same way. The last report, however, soomed to auger the snake, and it started out of the top of the tree, its fire-like eyes gleaming in the sunlight. The man at once left, looking around when some dis tance off and secing the loathsome creature slowly letting itself down by the tail to the ground, while around the top of the tree appeared the heads of numerous small snakes—perhaps a hundred—evidently the young of the monster.

The now thoroughly frightened berry gather fled precipitately and not until Mr. Cheeseman's experience became known did be tell of his adventure, which of course will have to be taken cum grand vicinity mentioned has been known for some years, and it is on record that Henry and William Carson, sons of John Carson, were at one time chased home while out berrying. At that time a party was organized, and armed with guns, pistols, hatchets, pitchforks, etc., scoured the vicinity for two days, but without success. Another party is to be formed in a few days and a grand snake hunt organized.

SNAKE SKINS AS WHIPS.

Sixty of the Vipers Killed by Two Farmers The farmers' boys in the northern part of Chester county use snake skins for cart whips, the skins serving the purpose remarkably well after soaking in ale for a considerable time. Samuel Elliott and John Miller, farmers of South Coventry township, Chester county, about twelve miles from Phoenixville, have killed this summer nearly sixty snakes on their farms. The other day Mr. Elliott was wending his way from his barn through a marshy meadow toward a wheat field, when, nearing the fence inclosing the grain, he saw a large blacksnake making tracks in his direction. Now, Farmer Elliott is not a coward, as he told a Record reporter, but the way "he got back to the barn after a fence rail was something remarkable." Calling one of the farm hands to help him, they went back to dis-patch the reptile, which measured six feet in length and was as thick as a man's arm. The snakes abound mostly near thick woods or running water, and most farmers provide themselves with atout clubs when working in fields adjoining such places. A year ago Mr. Elliott was bitten by a copperhead snake when mowing. Having occasion in the heat of the day to stop his mowing machine near a clump of trees and rest in their shade, he was bitten in the left thigh. The poison of the bite entered so thoroughly into his system that he was unable to work. He claims that the bite still troubles him.

[From Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.] A LADY SAID,

Those Herrid Pimples! No. I Cannot Go Please Present My Excuses." Probably two-thirds of the ladies in soclety and homes of our land are afflicted with skin diseases of various kinds, to do away with which, it it could be done without injury, would be the happiest event of their lives. Then she would have instead of a disfigured and marred countenance, one that would be handsome, or at least good looking, for any one with a clear, pure skin, no matter what the cut of her teatures are, has a certain amount of good looks which attract everybody. As it is now, she imagines every one sees and talks about "those freckles," "those horrid pimples," and other blemishes with which she is afflicted, and this is true of
