an animated debate. Mr. Auwater op-posed leasing the Vigilants' room; said it was not a suitable place especially for girls; men are loafing there continually; and asked if a new school was really necessary, to which Mr. Given replied that it certainly was. Each director in turn spoke upon the question, and the moral influence that would be exerted by a school at the pro-posed place found able champions in Messrs. Given and Slade, while the project was opposed bitterly by Mr. Auwater. The superintendent was finally called for his opinion as to the average now in the schools and as to who was to take charge of it. He favored the addition and said that Miss McDowell would teach it. It was finally put to a vote and carried, but Mr. Auwater's "no " was loud.

Upon motion the superintendent committee was authorized to enter into a lease with the Keystone desk company for new desks for the Fifth street school build i ıg.

Mr. Slade, of the text book committee, presented the following :

Your committee on text books, to whom has been referred the question of changing the geographies, report that they have come to the conclusion that it would be inexpedient at present to change them and that they wish the adoption of Appleton's reader, and closed with a resolution embodying the latter clause.

Two agents, representing rival book firms, were admitted in turn. Mr. Jacob Miller, of Harper Bros.', told of the advantage over all others this firm claimed for their geographies, while Mr. E. Burke praised Warren's books on the same subect. It was just about to be decided that a change be made when Lawyer Given quoted Judge Elwood's opinion that a change in books for schools can not be made except by the adoption of such a change by a joint convention of teachers and directors and ended his lengthy speech with the remark : "But I do know this board will not change that until they hear from the teach-ers, for if they do I give notice that I forfeit my seat in this board if I cannot show the law as I have quoted it." Then the directors asked Superintendent Ames for his opinion and he gave it, and a lengthy one, too. He did not favor a change in the larger geography, but certainly thought Harper's book by far the bett r for primary work, and quoted the opinion of Misses Bucher, Paine, Nowlen and other teachers of the primary grade as welcoming a change. This brought Mr. Slade to his feet with question, "Prof. Ames, did you not say you thought a chaoge at present inexpedi ent? So your committee reported, and by that report I wish to stand correct."

To which Prof. Ames said the report was correct, and sat down.

It was finally decided, just as the clock struck 10, that " a change and reform " were not needed. A motion was then made to call a joint convention, but this was laid on the table. So this subject that has caused so much ill-feeling and filled our local papers with long and extravagant comments has reached its end.
