NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

bome Account of their Reception The Norristown Times of Wednesday contains the following: A special car containing forty-eight in sane persons from Lancaster—thirty males and eighteen females—was detached from the last train down at Bridgeport at eight o'clock last evening, run across to the Mill street depot and thence via the Stony Creek railroad to the hospital for the insane. The car was run upon a siding to within several hundred yards of that abode of unfortunate mortals. Midway between the siding and the building burned a huge bonfire, intended to illuminate the way. The hospital authorities were on the ground, together with a score each of male and female attendants, all apparently as joyous as though the arrivals were wealthy relatives from abroad instead of demented and wasted men and

The males were unloaded first. They were taken from the car one by one and stood in a line between two files of men. One of them, a burly fellow, grappled with one of the mon in charge, and before he could be induced to release his hold the com bined assistance of four persons was nec essary. Louis Schaffer, another of the patients, seemed to be more affected with a chronic attack of laziness than with insanity. One of the guards ac-companying the squad says that Louis is apparently as sensible as the average person, but that he persistently refuses to walk. He was carried to his quarters upon a stretcher. When all the males had been gotten out of the car, the line moved off past the bonfire to the hospital carefully guarded. The females were next unloaded and formed into line. Standing there in the glare of the bonfire, with empty stares, distressed expressions wrinkled countenances and bent-up, shriveled forms, the scene presented was a saddening one. One old lady, her locks gray with the frosts of many years of misery, wept piteously and seemed to fear that she was to be thrown into the fire, the sight of the bonfire having doubtless recalled memories of the burning hospital at Lancaster, from which she was taken during the fire. Another woman, a victim of consumption, was so debilitated that she had to be carried. She evidently has but a short time to remain at the hospital. One of the afflicted women car ried in her arms a baby that chattered as though delighted at its removal to Montgomery county. The batch comprised the very worst cases contained in the Lancaster hospital, the partial destruction of which building by fire necessitated the transfer. The bevy of female attendants connected with the Norristown hospital showed a remarkable degree of pluck in their manner of hand-

Accidents.

Yesterday as Benjamin Sickles, of this city, was driving a team loaded with hav. he slipped from the wagon and fell behind the horses, and was badly kicked about the head and face, having several ugly gashes cut in his head. He was carried to his home on West Orango street, where he was attended by Dr. McCormick.

A lad named Gerstley, a son of G. Gerstley, leather dealer, East King street, while carrying a roll of hides yesterday, slipped and fell and dislocated his elbow. Pr. McCormick rendered the necessary surgical aid.

The New York Clipper of this week contains an excellent picture of John D. nusement circuit, with a long account of iams named his new play after Mr. Mishler on account of his great friendship for him, yet it has been but a few weeks since the papers contained long accounts of Mr. William's play, and it was there claimed that Mr. Mishler was very angry because he thought his name had been taken for the play without his authority.

Night Notes.

People living in the neighborhood of Walnut and Charlotte streets were greatly disturbed by the loud cries of " murder from a woman who was in a buggy which was being driven at a terrific speed along Charlotte street. Nothing was learned o the affair this morning.

There was also considerable noise on John street, occasioned by a fight between a man and his wife. The noise lasted for over a half-hour.

THE USE OF AMMONIA IN BAKING

cientific American.

The recent discoveries in science and chemistry are fast revolutionizing our daily domestic economies. Old methods are giving way to the light of modern investigation, and the habits and methods of our fathers and mothers are stepping down and out, to be succeeded by the new ideas with marvelous rapidity. In no department of science, however, have more rapid strides been made than in its relations to the preparation and preservation of human food. Scientists, having disovered how to traverse space, furnish heat, and beat time itself, by the application of natural forces, and to do a hun dred other things promotive of the comfort and happiness of human kind, are naturally turning their attention to the

Among the recent discoveries in this di rection, none is more important than the uses to which common ammonia can be properly put as a leavening agent, and which indicates that this familiar salt is hereafter to perform an active part in the preparation of our daily food.

The carbonate of ammonia is an exceed ingly volatile substance. Place a small portion of it upon a knife and hold over a flame, and it will almost immediately be entirely developed into gas and pass off into the air. The gas thus formed is a simple composition of nitrogen and hydrogen. No residue is left from the ammonia l'his gives it its superiority as a leaven ing power over soda and cream of tartar when used alone, and has induced its use as a supplement to these articles A small quntity of ammonia in the dough s effective in producing bread that will be lighter, sweeter, and more wholesome than that risen by any other leavening agent. When it is acted upon by the heat of baking the leavening gas that raises the dough is liberated. In this act it uses itself up, as it were; the ammonia is entirely diffused, leaving no trace of Pike's Toothache Drops cure in one minute.

The light, fluffy, alf-lwdeod&w flaky appearance, so desirable in biscults, etc., and so sought after by professional ful discovery, and the handsomest and best bread and cake are now largely by the aid of ammonia, combined, course, with other leavening material. Ammonia is one of the best known products of the laboratory. If, as seems to be justly claimed for it, the application of its properties to the purposes of cooking results in giving us lighter and more wholesome bread, biscuit and cake, it will prove a boon to dyspeptic humanity, and will speedily force itself into general use in the new field to which science has ssigned it.

The Gover mment an Oligarchy of Rich Mer

The government is "an oligarchy of ich men;" for even when we find a man of moderate means in office the chances in to one that he owes his election to lake Shore Mich. Southern... rich men :" for even when we find a man of moderate means in office the chance are ten to one that he owes his election to rich men, and that in whatsoever he does he will recognize, so far as his creditors demand, the indebtedness thus created. The evil is great, widespread and increasing. It is not confined to the federal elections, but has become common to all elections. If a candieither party—the first question is, "Can he afford to run?" If he has no money to spend or no monied friends to spend it for him, and thereby establish a lien on him, he is set aside, no matter what his qualifications may be, or even what his availability in a partisan sense may be. Lacking money, he has, in fact, neither qualifications nor ability. It is the same thing on a smaller scale in the smaller offices. The actual candidate almost invariably represents a monied man, or clique, and votes in open or secret obedience to his superior. That all this is very bad need scarcely be said. It is demoralizing, in the first place, to have the nominal servants of the public the real servants of a small faction, for the rich are a small faction, compared with the poor, and the men whose means are too moderate to permit of their indulgence in the luxury of running for office. The open purchase of office adds to the demoralization by destroying public con fidence in the integrity, of the officeolders. Moreover, it is a positive evil to have the government in the hands of the rich. It would be if they attained control without resort to corrupt means It is so because the interests of the rich, as a rule, are opposed to those of the poor; and the poor are in the vast majority. We do not mean by this that there is any necessary antagonism between capital and la-bor, because there is none. Each is necessary to the other, and there can be no true prosperity for either unless it is shared by the other. But if capital has full control of the government, if capital makes and administers the laws, the government and
