PANIC ON A STEAMER.

SIX PASSENGERS BAULY INJURED, oken Cylinder Causes an Early More ing Scare on Une of the Boats on the Hudson Shortly before two o'clock, Saturday morning, as the steamer Kaaterskill, of the New York and Catskill line, was coming down the Hudson river and while in the Highlands her passengers were suddenly awakened from sleep by a tremendous shock and the loud rattling of madelian and the loud rattling of madelians followed by a great rush and reaches chinery, followed by a great rush and roar of escaping steam. People ran out of the staterooms in their night clothes. Men shouted. women screamed and children c. ied. The greatest excitement prevailed. A cloud of ho: vapor filled the cabins and the saloon. The alarm of the people was aggravated by the fact that the nature of the accident was not fully understood. Some of the passengers thought that one of the boilers had exploded, and others imagined that the boat was sinking. Captain James Stead and his subordinates did all in their power to allay the excitement, and a panic would have been prevented had it not been for a man among the passengers who shouted : "Put on your life preservers as soon as you can, for the steamer is going to the bottom."

Many of the people hastily donned life preservers and one panic-stricken woman jumped overboard into the water. She was rescued by a deck hand. In the meautime some of the frantic ones among the passengers requested the captain to have the life boats manued. The captain assured the people that the life-boats were in readiness for use if required, but they would not be needed, as the steamer was not sinking. In the meantime the cloud of steam that enveloped the boat was becoming more dense and for a time it seemed that if the people remained on board they would be scalded to death or killed by inhaling the hot vapor. Under the exciting circumstances the captain and crew exhibited remarkable coolness and presence of mind. They attended to their duties like heroes.

As soon as the confusion had in a measure subsided it was ascertained that the walking beam had broken, causing the piston to strike the bottom of the cyclinder which was also broken, thus permitting the oscape of steam. As soon as possible the engineer shut off the steam, so that it could not come from the boilers to the cylinder, and the rush and roar of the scalding vapor ceased. The Kaaterskill, at the time of the accident, was near Kipp's Point in the Highlands. The night was dark, there being no moon, and the feeble light of the stars being obscured to a great extent by a haze which hung over the river. The steamer was subsequently towed by the Rhinebeck and another tug to Caldwell landing. The passengers were landed at Caldwell, from which place they were brought to New York by the Coxsackie boat, William C. Redfield. Captain Tremaine, of the Redfield, told this story of the accident. "The Kaa-terskill," he said, "was some distance ahead of us. When nearly opposite West Point I noticed her showing a signal of distress and immediately steamed alongside of her and found that she was auchored. The walking-beam had been I saw one end of the break in the iron myself, and it was as bright as a new silver dollar, so that there was no flaw in it. I took all the passengers, about one hundred and fifty, and brought them with their baggage to New York, leaving the Kaaterskill at anchor. I could not learn the names of all of the injured passen-

The Kaaterskill had on board about 150 passengers and a large load of freight. Six persons were injured as follows: Vincenzo Calles, an Italian laborer, of 35 Mulberry street, New York, is probably fatally injured, being scalded about the head and body. He was brought to New York and is now in the Bellevue hos-

Michael Garlai, an Italian laborer, also of No. 35 Mulberry street, both hands scalded. He was treated at Chambers street hospital and sent to his home. Mrs. Samuel Greene, wife of the local freight agent of the steamboat line at Batskill, was scalded about the face and shoulders by the escaping steam. She was sent from Caldwell to her home in Catskill. Her injuries, though serious. are not dangerous. Miss Mary Hinman, sister of Mrs. Green of Catskill, injured by inhaling steam. She was sent to her home. Her condition wrs not considered precarious and her re covery is almost certain.

Major A. S. Russell, county warden of Bellevue hospital, received internal injuries, but is not considered in a daugerous condition. He was in his room at Bellevue to-day, where he was attended by the hospital physiciau.

An unknown man was slightly scalded.

BENSON'S REMEDIES. [From the Springfield Republican.]

A Generous Act

That will be Appreciated by all who Care for Their Complexion and Skin.

It is not generally known that the nervous system has a wonderful influence over the skin, but this is a fact known to medical men who have given much of their time to the study of diseases of the skin. No one can have a clear and fair complexion unmixed with blotches or pimples who is very nervous. Whatever tends to a healthful condition of the nervous system always beautifies the com-plexion and removes roughness and dryness of the kin. Some skin diseases are not at-tended by visible signs on the surface, but an intolerable itching that renders life miserable. We copy the following deserving and interesting compliment from the Tribune which says: "Dr. C. W. Benson's New Remedy, 'SKIN CURE,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valuable and favorite prescription for the treatment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treatment of nervous and skin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years physician in charge of the Maryland Infirmaty on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is fully the article to attack the disease, both interally, through the absorbents, and is the only reliable rations are only put up for general use, after having been used by the doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success and they fully merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for sale by all drugglists. Two bottles, interests and each external free meriting in open accession. We copy the following deserving and inter classes of sufferers from skin diseases." This is for alle by all druggists. Two bottles, internal and external treatment, in one package. Don't be persuaded to take any other, It costs one dollar.
