THE REAL ISSUE.

IT IS NOT TO BE LOST SIGHT OF.

Chairman Hensel Expresses his Views of Cameron and the Tariff Question—The Purpose of the Democrat.

Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

Chairman Hensel was found at his head quarters, in the city, and he was seen and heard busily engaged in keeping up their correspondence with the district workers throughout the state. Their list of those becoming very complete and by September 1st it is expected that the state committee will be in a position to make every school district respond to appeals and direction for campaign work.

The date of the reception of the Commonwealth club to the Democratic state nominees is fixed for Tuesday evening, September 19, and about that time it is expected that a very large number of active Democrats from different sections of the state will meet in this city. Their conference will have no other significance than the interchange of views on the campaign at large and the prospects in their respective sections.

After that the campaign on the stump will be opened, and will increase in force as election day draws near. Chairman Hensel, being shown an item from some of the morning papers, to the effect that ex-Senator Simons expressed the opinion that the campaign against Beaver was waged in the interest of free trade, was asked his opinion of this, and of Cameron's recent visit to this city, whence it is reported he went to New York.

Mr. Hensel said that as he had postponed a discussion of the issues of the campaign until after the work of thorough organization in detail is completed, he was indisposed to be interviewed on the issues which would be made subjects of discussion in the newspapers and on the stump. He said: "I noticed the presence of the Cameron party in the city, and have no doubt it meant his personal interest and activity in the Beaver campaign. Whenever the stalwart cause gets into desperate straits, Cameron is appealed to. His friends claim that he saved his party in 1880, and they were as bitter at Garfield for what they called his ingratitude to the Cameron people as they were at Hayes, whom they still accuse of having taken $5,000 'spending money' from Don in the campaign of 1876, for which he never made adequate return. I have no doubt that all of the elder Cameron's notorious political methods will be invoked for the benefit of his party in the campaign. His presence in the field and his interference for Beaver will, however, only aggregate the independent feeling and still more strongly identify Beaver as the Cameron candidate. Cameron's loyalty to the Democrats to support Beaver out of personal regard for the ex-senatorial boss has thus far signally failed, and some of the new patronage of the pension bureau has been ineffectually peddled among Democrats to induce them to betray their party. Neither Simons nor Cameron nor any other influence will avail this time to divert the attention of the people of Pennsylvania from the issues of the campaign, which are state issues."

"The Democracy are making a fight for honest state government, for administrative reform, for the overthrow of the spoils system, for relief from bossism, and for an honest and fair legislative, judicial, and congressional government. The Cameron party has controlled Pennsylvania for years and has not given it these things. Therefore, the people are in revolt. Very naturally, Cameron wants to shift the issue. He will not be allowed to do it. It is in the interest of the Democracy to concern themselves about the resources of the Independents, but Cameron will find no intelligent people to believe his assertion that all free trade organizations of the country, and especially those of New York, are opposed to supporting the movements. He raises this raw-head and bloody bones because he finds that for once a large portion of the solid men of his party, the manufacturers and business men, are in open revolt against him and his methods, and will no longer furnish money to support his corrupt dynasty. They have not forgotten that it was only lately the heir of the Cameron domination was willing to let the business interests and tariff 'go to the devil' by the aid of the Democracy. They are probably willing to give him a trial of strength. It is too late for the elder Cameron to repair the blunders of his son. Having failed to coax or bully the Independents, he is not likely to scare them off by the use of his bogey."

Mr. Wharton Barker, probably the most radical, aggressive, and pronounced of the Independents, and the leader of the present movement, was asked whether there was any truth in the assertion of General Cameron that the Independent movement in Pennsylvania is the secret work of free traders who hope to use it as a means of making successful the tariff. The father of bosses and bossism cannot bring a scintilla of evidence to prove that truth of his reckless statement. On the contrary, he is confronted by the fact that the leading spirits in the Independent movement are protectionists by birth, education, location, business interests, and political principle. Moreover, no Independent, however humble, has yet been known to threaten that unless his party wins he will go in favor of "smashing the tariff." The venerable ex-boss seems to have been fooling around Cooper's blunderbuss.

A SERIOUS MATTER.

Have the General Public No Protection Against the Man Who Stings? New York Herald.

Stories about a recent affray at Bath, Long Island, have been eagerly read by persons who have lived in houses where there were persons who liked to play on the piano. There are individuals who can safely break into song at any time without fearing that their music will disturb any one within hearing distance; but all of them belong to the heavenly host, and consequently are never heard at boarding houses in the country or at the seaside. When a singer has become supersaturated with a song that he has been practising for months, or a young woman has pounded certain keys of a piano until she knows just which ones to hit in succession to produce a given air, the impulse to give the world the benefit of musical experience is unceasing, and it is sure to break forth on slight provocation. But how about the hearers? It is a curious fact that many musical enthusiasts are moved to sing and play only at those hours in which other people are beginning their slumbers. What are unwilling hearers to do on such occasions? Must they listen to roars, howls, screams and discordant wire hammering merely because some one who is awake has been persuaded to endure the racket? If a man is justified in throwing bootjacks, fire shovels and city directories at musical cats, why should he not attack a human musician with an ice-pick or even with a shotgun if the said musician's performances shatter his peace of mind? This is a serious question. Individual singers have sometimes excited whole neighborhoods to rioting and murder. If they value their personal safety they should regard the rights of other people, particularly after nine o'clock in the evening.

SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES.

An Analysis of Their Birthplaces—Some Interesting Statistics.

An analysis of the birthplaces of our 76 senators shows many interesting facts. Of the 28 states, only 14 have senators both born in the states they represent, viz: Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, and Virginia. The states of Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Missouri and West Virginia have each one senator born in the state he represents, and 12 states have no senators born of whom were born in other states. These states are Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, Oregon, Texas and Wisconsin. The senators are of foreign birth—Jones, of Florida, Fair of Nevada and Sewell of New Jersey, born in Ireland; Beck of Kentucky, in Scotland, and Jones of Nevada, in Scotland.

Eight of the senators were born in New York—Miller and Lapham of New York, Teller and Hill of Colorado, Conger of Michigan, Van Wyck of Nebraska, MacPherson of New Jersey and Cameron of Wisconsin.

Eight senators were also born in Ohio—Pendleton and Sherman of Ohio, Allison and McMillan of Iowa, Voorhees and Harrison of Indiana, Plumb of Kansas, and Windom of Minnesota.

Seven senators were born in Kentucky—Williams of Kentucky, Wacker of Arkansas, Call of Florida, Jones of Indiana, Vest of Missouri, Saunders of Nebraska and Maxey of Texas. Seven different states are in part represented by natives of Kentucky, six by natives of New York, and five by natives of Ohio. It is somewhat singular that both senators from Indiana and Iowa should have all been born in Ohio, both senators from Colorado in New York, and both senators from Mississippi in Georgia.

Senators David Davis of Illinois and N. G. Davis of West Virginia were born in Maryland; Senators Morgan of Alabama and Garland of Kansas were born in Tennessee; Farley of California and Cooke of Texas in Virginia; Hawley of Connecticut in North Carolina; Brown of Georgia in South Carolina; Ingalls of Kansas in Massachusetts; Pugh of Alabama in Georgia; Kellogg of Louisiana and Sawyer of Wisconsin in Vermont; McMillan of Minnesota in Pennsylvania; Grover of Oregon in Maine; Slater of Oregon in Illinois; and Miller of California in Indiana.

The recapitulation by states is as follows: Born in Alabama, 0; Arkansas, 0; California, 0; Colorado, 0; Connecticut, 1; Delaware, 2; Florida, 0; Georgia, 4; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 1; Iowa, 0; Kansas, 0; Kentucky, 7; Louisiana, 0; Maine, 0; Maryland, 4; Massachusetts, 3; Michigan, 1; Minnesota, 0; Mississippi, 0; Missouri, 1; Nebraska, 0; Nevada, 0; New Hampshire, 3; New Jersey, 0; New York, 8; North Carolina, 10; Ohio, 27; Oregon, 0; Pennsylvania, 40; Rhode Island, 3; South Carolina, 7; Tennessee, 12; Texas, 0; Vermont, 12; Virginia, 14; West Virginia, 0; Wisconsin, 9; England, 4; Scotland, 3; Ireland, 7; Germany, 5; Canada, 1, and unknown, 2. By her size and population makes the best show of all the states in Congress, having given birth to four senators and twelve representatives. The total number of senators and representatives of foreign birth in both branches is twenty-five—five senators and 20 representatives. The president was born in Vermont, Secretary of the Treasury Folger in Massachusetts, Secretary of State Freylinghousen in New Jersey, Secretary of the Interior Teller in New York, Secretary of War Lincoln in Illinois, Secretary of the Navy Chandler in New Hampshire, Attorney General Brewster in Pennsylvania and Postmaster General Howe in Maine.

Washington's Boyhood.

Robert J. Burdette in Boston Times.

Unpublished page from the life of Geo. Washington. It is the merry summer time. To him the mother of the father of his country:

"George, dear, where have you been since school was dismissed?"

"Hain't been in Boston town."

"Unpublished page from the life of Geo. Washington. It is the merry summer time. To him the mother of the father of his country:

"George, dear, where have you been since school was dismissed?"

"Hain't been in Boston town."

"Did you come straight home from school, George?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"But school is dismissed at 3 o'clock and it is now 6:30. How does that come?"

"Got kept in."

"For what?"

"Missed my joggery less'n."

"But your teacher was here only an hour ago and said you hadn't been at school all day."

"Got kept in yesterday then."

"George, why were you not at school to-day?"

"Forgot. Thought all the time it was Saturday."

"Don't stand on one side of your foot in that manner. Come here to me, George, you have been swimming."

"No, ma'am."

"Yes, you have, George. Haven't you?"

"No, ma'am."

"Call your mother, George?"

"No, ma'am."

"Then what makes your hair so wet, my son?"

"Swam. I run so fast comin' from school."

"But your shirt is wrong side out."

"Put it on that way when I got up this morning for luck. Always win when you play for keeps if your shirt's on the inside out."

"And you haven't the right sleeve of your shirt on your arm at all, George, and there is a hard knot tied in it. How did that come there?"

"Bill Fairfax tied it in when I wasn't lookin'."

"But what were you doing with your shirt off?"

"Didn't have it off. He jes took'n tied that knot in there when it was on me."

"George?"

"That's honest truth, he did."

About that time the noble Bushrod came along with a skate strap and we drew a veil over the dreadful scene, merely remarking that boys do not seem to change so much as men.

In No Hurry for Paradise.

During a wild and raging storm at sea the chaplain nervously asked one of the crew if he thought there was any serious danger to be apprehended. "There is and no mistake" replied the sailor. "It is keeps on blowing as it does now, I reckon we shall all be in paradise before 13 o'clock to-night!" The chaplain, terrified at the answer, cried out: "Shall we? Heaven forbid!" Circumstances alter cases, and words hastily uttered and passed unheeded at one time would not be perhaps, seriously countenanced at another. We must, therefore, make many allowances for what is spoken on the spur of the moment.

No Back.

In one of Hans Andersen's stories, he speaks of an old elf lady, who, when she went into company, made a very good appearance, only she had no back. There are many people who suffer so many aches and pains and weaknesses in that part of the body that they almost wish they had no back. But these pains, etc., come from the kidneys, and there is a medicine—Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine—that works to such a charm, that one taking it becomes, like the old lady, unconscious of a back, though still in having a whole, sound, and perpendicular back. Hunt's Remedy has a back of the stiffest kind, for its mission is to support the weak and bend the aching, and this it is doing all over the land.

MALARIA

Malaria is an almost indescribable miasma which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleeplessness, a tired feeling and a high fever the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the system is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself, the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organs failing to do their routine work, speedily become disordered, and dissolution and death are apt to ensue.

In addition to being a certain cure for malaria and chills and fever, BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is highly recommended for all diseases requiring a certain and efficient tonic; especially indigestion, dyspepsia, intermittent fevers, want of appetite, loss of strength, lack of energy, etc. Enriches the blood, strengthens the muscles, and gives new life to the nerves. Acts like a charm on the digestive organs. It is for sale by all respectable medicine dealers, price, $1 per bottle.

Be sure and get the genuine BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. Take no other.
