The new public school building on Manor street, which was received from the confifty-two feet and a depth of forty eight is roofed with tin; a fine, ornamental cornice and a pretty cupola, adding much to the architectural effect.

Commencing at the bottom we find an extra foundation, the walls being built of large stone and superior masoning. The basement is plastered and arranged for large furnaces, (not yet put in) with which to heat the entire building.

The building is divided into four schoo rooms, two on the first and two on the second floor. The floors are of Georgia yellow pine and the walls are wainscoted, window high, with North Carolina pine. The doors and window casings are of white pine, grained oak. The walls and ceilings are plastered and finished in grey sand-coating. Each room is 24 by 36 feet, with lofty ceilings and first class ventilating heating arrangements. The rooms are amply lighted by large windows.

and the desks so arranged that the light falls upon each pupil when seated, from the left and rear. Each room is supplied with a large book case with glass doors and movable shelves. The black boards are of solid slate, built into the walls, and have larger surface than any other of our public schools. The school furniture is of the best and most desirable quality. Ad-joining each school-room is a cloak room furnished with conveniences for hanging up the bats, bonnets and surplus clothing the pupils. Also umbrella stands. stationary washstands, with extra spigot for water for drinking.

Entrance to the two rooms on the first floor is gained by a short flight of granite steps on the Manor street front. The upper rooms are reached by separate stairways of yellow pine, one on the northeast and the other on the southeast fronts of the building.

The ventilating stacks are in the centre of the building, extending from the base ment to some distance above the roof, and inside these stacks is au 8-inch cast iron pipe to carry off the smoke from the fur-naces. The ventilating registers are in the flues near the ceilings of each room and the heating registers in the floors. Following are the names of the firms engaged in the erection and furnishing of ANOTHER SPECIMEN. The Royal Walnut Caterpillar.

R. N. Rathvon : DEAR SIR.—I send you a worm caught in my yard. If it is anything rare please answer through the INTELLIGENCER. If not you can do as you please with it. It is the largest worm I have seen for sixty years, and I think different from any I have ever seen. Yours Truly. R. C. EDWARDS.

Your worm is the larva of the "Royal Walnut moth" (Ceratocampa regalis) and is by no means rare, as I have had nearly a score of them sent to me within the past four weeks for indentification; and I only refer to it now because in answer to the same query some time ago through the Intelligencen, I got the subject a little m xed up, in being absent from my collection. Dr. Morris records in his Synopsis of Lepidoptera" two species of Ceratocampa, namely regalis and imperialis the latter of which the late Dr. Harris referred to the genus Dryocampa, in which he is followed by Morris in his "Smithsonian catalogue."

This insect was originally described by Fabricius as Bombyx regalis, but was after-wards placed in the new genus Citheronia by Hubner; but Dr. Harris referred it to the genus Ceratocampa, this name being founded on the character of the larva being armed with horns. Its length when mature is from five to six inches, and it feeds on various species of walnut, hickory and percimmon. See the Lancaster Farmer for September, 1882.

The first specimen of this caterpillar I ever saw, was when prematurely walnuting, more than sixty years ago. It nearly fell on me from a walnut tree, and looked so formidable that with my companions I decamped, but returned to the charge and captured it, returning in triumph to the town in which we lived, where the 'oldest inhabitant" had never seen the like before. Formidable as they appear, I have long since discovered that they are entirely harmless. About this season they go into the ground and next summer will come forth a large and beautiful moth six inches or more across the expanded

The Gathering of Illegal Pees Still Con-The following communication explains itself. The writers are respectable intelligent gentlemen, and probably state their case correctly and mean just what they say. If other suitors, having business with the county offices will only join them in a close scrutiny of all bills of costs in which they are peculiarly interested, the gathering of illegal fees may soon bestopped and the public offices being thus rendered less profitable, the scramble to obtain them will be diminished, and the cortain them will be diminished, and the cortain them. rupt practices of the return tinkers and ballot-box stuffers be greatly lessened :

PREIGHT WRECK.

A Horse Causes a Big Accident by Reing Kun A rather serious freight wreck occured on the Pennsylvania railroad this morning at 4:10 at Dillerville. It appears that three colts belonging to Edward Kauff-man, who resides near the station broke tractor, Wm. Wohlson, by the board of directors, a week ago, and occupied for achool purposes for the first time on Priday last, fills a long felt want in the southwestern section of the city. The building is of brick, with cut stone trimings and belt courses, and has a front of fifty-two feet and a death of forty sight.

animal ran in this way up to the feet. It is two stories in height and telegraph tower, where it was struck by engine 176 which was bound west with empty cars, and was thrown so that it came in contact with the wheels of both trains which passed over it. One car on the eastern bound train which was loaded with glassware was thrown from the track and the contents were more or less broken. About 12 other cars on this train were also badly damaged by being scraped by the other train. Six empty cars on the western bound train were thrown from the track and piled up just west of the tower. The tracks were badly damaged. Both tracks were blocked for some time but after a while one track was cleared and trains were able to pass around the wreck. Trains of all kinds were delayed until some time during the forenoon. The colt which was run over was killed of course. It was a valuable animal and with the others had broken out of the

THE PRISON.

Monthly Meeting of the Inspectors To-day. To-day the board of prison inspectors held their regular monthly meeting. All the members were present and the usual number of bills were presented and

The county auditors in 1880 having charged Ambrose Pownall, ex-treasurer of the prison, with $734.91 and Mr. Pownall having since paid the amount to Treas-urer Wolf, Mr. Carter presented a resolution, which was adopted, asking the county commissioners through their solicitor, Hugh R. Fulton, to have the judgment entered in the prothonotary's office against Mr. Pownall striken off.

Mr. Weaver, who was appointed to see the county commissioners in regard to the plastering of the outside of the prison wall, reported that he had failed to see the commissioners in session, but had left the resolution with the clerk.

The report of Dr. Compton, the prison physician, showed that since June 1 to September there have been 57 cases of sickness in the prison. Of these 50 were cured, 5 released and 2 died.

President Hagen reported the return of Morris Bricker, an escaped convict. He was requested to make out an itemized bill of his expenses.

The board on motion of Mr. Rutter, passed a resolution reducing the price paid by Mr. Herr for prison labor on cigars per thousand from $1.65 to $1.20, the resolution to date from July 1, and continue in force until further orders. It is estimated that the prison expenses for the year beginning Dec. 1, will be $20,000, and the secretary was instructed so to inform the commissioners. The repairs to the prison wall having been completed, the special watchman who was employed to serve only while they were being made was discharged.

COURT.

Proceedings in the Common Pleas. This morning at .10 o'clock the second week of common pleas court began with Judge Patterson presiding. The list was called and of the thirty cases down fifteen were ready for trial.

The case of Henry W. Nissley vs. James Grimes was settled, No cases were taken up for jury trial this morning, and court adjourned until 21 o'clock this afternoon. At the meeting of the court on Saturday afternoon, considerable current business of minor importance was transacted, and a notion for a new trial was made in the lochley will case, tried some days ago. The Girvin-Mussleman water right case will be taken up again by Judge Livingston in the morning.

The Moravian Church Re-opened. The Moravian church, Rev. J. Max Hark, pastor, which has been closed for several weeks past, was re-opened yester day. The pulpit, altar, memorial tablets and other parts of the church were exquisitely decorated with potted and cut flowers and foliage plants—including floral crosses, anchors, and other appropriate designs. The congregation in the morning was very large. The services consisted to a service whether the literature of the literature of a service whether the literature of the lit of a sermon by the pastor, the litany, and some good church music, of which the gem was a solo by Prof. Wm. B. Hall, eader of the choir. There was a full attendance at the Sunday school services in the afternoon. In the evening the holy communion was served. Upset Caused by the Cars Shortly before noon to-day two daughters of John A. Arnold, of South Duke street, were driving along North Prince street, below Lemon. When they neared the railroad their horse frightened at the cars and quickly turned around, upsetting the carriage, throwing both ladies out and falling himself. The ladies were picked up and taken to a house near by, when it up and taken to a house near by, when it was found that they were terribly frighttened, but their injuries consisted of but a few slight bruises. The wagon was badly wrecked, the top and dasher being broken entirely off, and the wheels, coupling pole, &c., badly damaged. The horse was not injured.
