Benson's New Remedy, 'Skiw Cura,' is received by the public with great confidence, and it is regarded as a very generous act on the doctor's part to make known and prepare for general use his valu-able and favorite prescription for the treat-ment of skin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treat-ment of akin diseases, after having devoted almost his entire life to the study and treat-ment of nervous and akin diseases, in which he took great delight. He was for a number of years physician in charge of the Maryland infirmaty on Dermatology and anything from his hands is at once accepted as authority and valuable. The remedy is tully the article to attack the disease, both interally, through the 'absorbents, and is the only reliable rationa' mode of treatment. These prepara-tions are only put up for general use, after having been used by the doctor in his private practice for years, with the greatest success and they iu'ly merit the confidence of all classes of sufferers from skin diseases." "Are you then so very romantic, my "Are you then so very romantic, my sweet?" Harold asks, drawing the girl cover to him and kissing her tenderly. "Y.u know I am, darling," the girl rc-plies, tapping with her riding whip the lovely foot that peeps coyly out from the

"An elopement would be very roman tic," says Harold,

The face of the girl lights up with a raidiant smile. "It would be delicious," she exclaims. "To steal away on a beautiful summer night like this, with the moon sheddi g a glory over all the carth, and seek some little ivy crowned chapel where some hooded priest was waiting and there be made the wife of the man you love, would be just too sweet "-and she draws still closer to him.

"It is moonlight to-night," Harold says. "Ycs," replies the girl." "And there is chapel in yonder dell." "I know it," Bertha says. "There is only one thing wanting"-he speaks the words slowly and with a tinge of pathos in his tones. "What is that ?" asks the girl, bend ing forward to catch his every word. "A man to marry," he hisses in hoarse, bitter tones, and flees with a mocking laugh into the tall timber.

How She Won Him

Philadelphia Quiz, I have just heard the most remarkable story of the evenness of female tomper. In fact it seems so surprising to me that I think some record of it should be embalmed in the archives of Quiz. It is a beautiful little fairy story and can appropriately be called "How She Won Him." Indeed it was quite enough to win a far worse man, was duite enough to win a far worse man, if the worse men are ever wob, which I dare say they are not. It happened here in Poiladelphia and is on this wise; You know, or rather you don't know until I tell you (for new should you?), that there was a beautiful dinner given" many years ago," and she szt opposite him and looked ever so charming in a wine-colored silk with a square neck, and otherwise arrayed as never were the lilies in any valley of this poor earth. Well, the idiot of a waiter in handing the soup upset the enwatter to nationing the soup upset the en-tire contents on a plate right in her lap, Just think of it girls! The whole front breadth utterly ruined, and for the world it could not be matched. Well, what did she do? Did she faint? Did she say horrid man? Did she scream? Not at all; she passed the thing off in some witty remark about flery baptism and calmly resumed her dinner. He, of course, delighted, thought her a most remarkable woman, and indeed she was; became attentive to her and finally married her. One evening long alter the event they were sitting before the fire, the children having gone to bed, and were talking, about old times, when he said ;

"My dear, I never told you, I think, the stat how I first thought I would like to marry fect fit.

you, did I "? "Why, gaacious, goodness, no, never." "Well," he said. " do you remember that dinner at Mrs. Simkins's where your dress was spoilt by the soup ?" "Indeed I do," she replied. " I shall never forget it as long as I live." "Well," he continued, "you behaved so well about it that I thought you a per-so well about it that I thought you a per-fect jewel." "Yes,"she answered, "I remember be baving very well about it at the time, but, good land, you should have seen the mark of my teeth on the bedpost that night. Now wasn't that just too perfectly romantic for anything ?
