THE DIAMOND WEDDING.

A REMARKABLE EVENT RECALLED. The Widow of Don Esteban Santa Croz De Oviedo Married to Col. the Baron

Bodo Von Glumer. There was a wedding in Trinity church in the busiest part of the day-at 11 o'clock in the morning—but not over half a hundred of New York's vast population knew of it. In truth, scarcely the fifth part of that number would have known it had they not strolled through the open doors as idle spectators to gratify their curiosity. There was no show, and rarely, quietly, yet the lady who was led to the altar was in her young womanhood the bride in the most remarkable nuptial ceremony that ever occurred in the metropolis. That affair took place Oct. 13,1859. in St. Patrick's cathedral, in Mott street, and was known as "The Diamond Wed-The contracting parties were Don Esteban Santa Cruz de Oviedo and Fran ces Amelia Bartlett, the daughter of Lient. Washington Bartlett, of the United States army. Since the death of her husband, the rich Don Esteban, 12 years ago, the lady has been known as "The Diamond Widow," but yesterday she lost that title only to win another, that of baroness. The gentleman who took her to be his wife in Trinity church is a German baron and a colonel in the Mexican army. In full his name is Col. le Baron Bedo von Glumer. The story of the bride who, almost 23 years after the diamond wedding, becomes a bride again, reads romantically enough. The tales of the chroniclers of 1859, who made much of the social sensation, tell how great the interest was. Don Este ban was a Cuban and immensely wealthy, while Miss Bartlett was "a belle at Wash ington, Saratoga, and other lands and localities." . In introducing his account of the wedding one writer says : "We hardly need recall to our readers the particulars of the many warm and vehement controversies which have been waged in the leading journals over the personal characteristics of the bridegroom, his age, the size of his whiskers, the amount of his fortune ; over the trosseau of the bride, the number and quality of her robes, the exact value of her jewel." How Don Estebau wooed and won the lady is thus told: While on a visit to this country last January, Don Estebau, following the custom of those by whom he was surrounded, gave himself up to calls and interchanges of seasonable compliments. At this time he met Miss Bartlett. Through the medium of an interpreter he proffered adulations. From the spark of attachment there brought forth a flame arose which terminated in a warmth of affection compelling the relinquishment of the stranger's heart. The course of their true intimacy was smooth and serene until Don Esteban was stricken with fever and ague and underwent the inevitable privations of such a misfortune. Confinement within the walls of the St. Nicholas, did not, however, rend asnuder the ties that had been formed. In his illness the young lady visited and ministered unto him. Her presence mitigated the asperities of ague and her smile dulcified the bitterness of quinire." The wealth of Don Esteban was piaced at every figure from $5,000,000 up, besides 4,000 negroes. He certainly was rich enough to buy his bride $100,000 worth of jewels as a wedding gift. "A broch," said the Jenkins of the day "one living Koh-i-noor mountain, reposed upon the quiet of a satisfied heart." This was "the most unimpeachable single stone in America for beauty and price," were 75 samptuous robes made for the bride by Genin, and there were many others of fine linen. "The linen was of immaculate conception, and liable to melt to the touch or vanish before the softest breeze of summer." The wedding dress was made in Paris and cost $6,000. There was a great crowd at the cathedral and in the streets about it. "The clash of coal carts with carriages, of beer vans with broughams in these perilous defiles was vast, universal and appalling." Of the scene at the church, it was said At 11 o'clock, when the organ sent forth its melodious welcome, the crowd was excessive. Rustling masses of humanity writhed in sinuous motion. Who could withstand those subduing influence of youth and beauty, of glowing througs and mellow atmosphere, of flashing gems and sumptuous circumstances generally? Some ladies could not, it seemed, for, yielding to the pressure, they first bewaled their fractured skirts, then murmured feeble, incoherent appeals for aid, and were borne out in collapse by stalwart policemen." Don Esteban was short, dark, and 55, while his bride was tall, willowy fair, and scarcely out of her girlforth its melodious welcome, the crowd willowy fair, and scarcely out of her girl-hood. He wore an "intricately embroid-ered white waistcoat and cravat." He had adorned the bride maids, six in number, hood. He wore an "intricately embroidadorned the bride maids, six in number, with costly ornaments. Speaking of his generosity, a writer related an incident: 'On giving a ball at the St. Nicholas some time ago he most courteously direc:ed the hair dresser of that establishment to arrange the hair of every lady in the house at his expense." During the cere mony the father wept, but at its conclusion "the bride, turning to the audience, gladdened a thousand eyes with the spec tacle of her unruffled beauty." After the rich Don Esteban died there were many suitors for the hand of the still fair widow, but she repulsed them all.

For the past three years or so she spent a great deal of her time in the city, and has made her home at the Park avenue hotel. Two months ago she sailed from Havana. On the steamer she met Col von Glumer. It was case of love at sight with both. Mme. Oviedo (the lady adopted the Freuch instead of the Spanish prefix) had been a widow 12 years, and Col. von Glumer was widower with two children. It was a short suit with the colonel and easily won. The day was appointed shortly after arriv-in New York, it was said, but the affair was kept almost a secret. No cards were issued, only a dozen friends or so were invited, and few in the hotel knew of the wedding until after it had taken place. The bride came into church on the arm of the groom. She was attired in blue brocaded satin and satin de Lyon, cut walking length, with hat to match, and solitaire diamonds at her cars and throat. The oridegroom wore his dark blue uniform, with red sash and epaulettes, while his sword clanged at his heels. Juan N. Navarro, the Mexican consul general, and Mrs. Bartlet Bradley, a sister of the bride, stood up with the couple. Mrs. Bradley quite strangely gave the bride away, and the Rev. David J. Ayres, the assistant rector, while the tones of the organ filled the church, made them one. William H. Gebhard and Dr. J. G. Adams were the witnesses, and before the spectators fairly GRADUATE IN MEDICINE AND PHAR; witnesses, and before the spectators fairly silver preparations have done. It will change knew it the couple had taken seats in light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful their carriage and were driven off to their glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each their carriage and were driven off to their bottle is warranted. SMITH, KLINE & CU. Knew it the couple had send their carriage and were driven off to their their carriage and were driven off to their hotel. There were no presents and reception. The only ones present, friends of the pair, outside of those mentioned, were ex-Governor Loomis, No. 23 SOUTH FOURTH STREET, al6-lmd* Philadelphia.

Carter, T. B. Bissert, W. K. Stevens, Dr. Augustine Arango, the bride's physician; W. T. Hoyt, W. S. Hoyt, the marquis and their carriage and were driven off to their their carriage and were driven off to their their carriage and were driven off to their hotel. E. M. Munoz, the Mexican chancellor Mrs. G. H. Shelburne Hull and daughter Miss Gussie; Rear-Admiral and Mrs. Walke, the Misses Walke, and Miss S

Howell. A lunch was spread for a small company at the Park avenue hotel, and at 3:30 the bride and groom left for Saratoga Their intention was to proceed from thence to Niagara Falls and back to New York, to remain until December, when they ex-pected to go to Cuba and Moxico and later to Europe. When the couple left the colonel was dressed in a traveling suit of pepper and salt, with a straw hat on his head, while the baroness wore a closefitting dress of striped brown and cream satin, with a small black bonnet. Both are approaching 50. The baroness' blonde hair is streaked with gray, but her eyes are bright and her complexion clear. The colonel has a Bismarckian face, which tells that he is a German. Some might call his hair, which is short and inclined to curl, carroty, but it certainly become his complexion, which is fair. The ends of his mustache are twisted and waxed like a Frenchman's. He speaks Spanish like a native, as does also the baroness. Very little is known of the colonel. He came to this country as the bearer of dis patches from his own government and to see the United States. He is said to come of a good family. The friends of both will doubtless be surprised to learn of the wedding, as certainly neither came to this country to marry.

The baroness still retains the diamonds and other gems in their original settings, given her by the rich Don, and much o her estate near Itavana.

A MAYOR'S WEDDING.

Carter Harrison, of Chicago, Crosses the Raging Main to Find a Bride. On the 22d of last month there was a quiet wedding in the city of London, England, the contracting parties being Carter H. Harrison, mayor of Chicago, and Miss Maggie Stearns, daughter of Marcus C. Stearns, a well-known business man of the same city. Mr. Stearns, accompanied by his wife and daughter, went to Europe last May, and it was undoubtedly with the intention of marrying Miss Steams in England, that the mayor was in such a hurry to cross the ocean. The lady was well known in society and is very handsome. A year or so ago she anpeared in amateur theatricals at the West Side opera house and made a great hit. The mayor's daughter, Miss Lina Harrison, was also in the cast. It is believed that Mayor Harrison and his bride went to Ireland on their wedding trip, as the dispatches this morning gave an extended account of the banquet given in his honor by the Lord Mayor of Dublin. It is expected that the happy couple will sail for home in a few days.

ASIATIC CHOLERA AT NEWPORT.

A Young Son of Henry A. Auchineless, of New York, Dies of the Disease. A case of Asiatic cholera, it is reported, years old child of Henry B. Auchincloss, of New York, having died of the disease. The mayor has called an extraordinary meeting of the board of aldermen, and the city physician has been summoned. The parents of the child were away at the time of its death, but are now on the way from New York to Newport. The child's remains were placed in the upper story of the mayor's cottage, which the Auchincloss family are occupying. It is said for some time back there has been a sanitary defect in the mayor's cottage, but the statement is not verified.

Thievery at a Fire. A large amount of silverware and other articles were stolen from the Ocean house at Swampscott during the fire there. A colored water at the hotel rescued two children who were sleeping in one of the rooms. The Blaney cottage was set on fire in four places, and there were evidences in the lower portion showing that previous attempts had been made to fire the cottage. Mr. Blaney's loss will amount to $8,000. The Ocean house furniture was valued at $15,000.

malady which not even the most talented physicians are able to fathom. Its cause is most frequently ascribed to local surroundings, and there is very little question, but this opinion is substantiated by facts. Malaria does not necessarily mean chills and fever while these troubles usually accompany it. It often affects the sufferer with general lassitude, accompanied by loss of appetite, sleepless ness, a tired feeling and a high fever the person afflicted growing weaker and weaker, loses flesh day after day, until he becomes a mere skeleton, a shadow of his former self.

> Malaria once having laid its hold upon the human frame, the door of the systen is thrown open to nervous diseases. The body weak and enfeebled absorbs no nourishment, but subsisting upon itself the digestive organs no longer perform their functions; the liver becomes torpid, and other organ failing to do their routine work, dissolution and death are art to
