A large double-oared boat was rowed from the lock at this place to Chiquis, yesterday, by two boys in 30 minutes.

This is good time considering the fact that the course was through the Falls.

The late residence of Mr. John Fibert, on Locust street, now the property of Mr. A. J. Musser, is having extensive improvements made upon it.

Mr. Musser will occupy it himself as soon as it is ready for occupancy.

Columbia is not large enough to give all sufficient patronage.

Turner Still at Large. Bill Turner, the negro who escaped from the lockup on Tuesday, has not yet been recaptured. He has had some experience with the law and knows how to get out.

He will remain away until he thinks the affair has blown over, and will then return. We promise Billy that the affair shall not blow over this time. The public shall know if the law is not enforced when he returns, which he must assuredly do and very soon.

The heavy train then proceeding prevented the forward train from being seen. Eight freight cars and one passenger, the latter attached to the rear end of engine No. 314, were wrecked. The south track was cleared.

A GREAT TEMPLE PARADE. The Part the Knights Will Take in the Bicentennial Demonstration.

The committee is composed of representatives from all the commanderies stationed in Philadelphia and the grand commandery of Pennsylvania. John C. Kelly is chairman, Charles Cary, secretary, and George W. Kendrick, jr., treasurer.

The committee, it was stated, has received acceptance to their invitations from New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Virginia, District of Columbia, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Chicago and the Great Prior of England. It is expected that the demonstration will be the largest Knights Templar display ever seen in the United States.

The hall will be fitted up and decorated in a manner appropriate to the occasion. The Academy of Music and Horticultural hall have also been secured for a grand tourney on Thursday night, after the parade. The two buildings will be connected by a bridge. A DENIAL.

The Fidelity Beneficial Society Claims It Is Not a Graveyard Company.

In reference to a paragraph which appeared in this paper to the effect that Mr. Slonaker had entered suit against a "graveyard insurance company," W. A. Wilson, esq., counsel for the defendant company, states that the Fidelity beneficial society, the organization referred to, is not a graveyard company, and adds:

"The officers and directors of the society comprise some of the most respectable citizens of Elizabethtown borough. H. Bronsman is president; S. R. Hackenberger is secretary; and Aaron Dissinger, treasurer. In that locality these names are a sufficient guaranty of honesty and fidelity.

About the merits of Mr. Slonaker's claim we have nothing to say now, except that the statement furnished your reporter abounds in errors. I cannot more fittingly characterize it than by quoting a line from Tennyson: 'That a lie which is half a truth is ever the blackest of lies.' But you would hardly give your columns to a discussion of the controversy. The civil courts were open to this gentleman if he had a just claim. He has chosen to adopt a criminal proceeding for that purpose; with what success we shall see hereafter."

Distinguished Democrat in Town. Mr. Channoy F. Black, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, arrived in Lancaster on York at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and was followed an hour later by Mortimer F. Elliott, candidate for congressman-at-large, and ex-congressman Wm. S. Stenger, who came from Reading, where they spoke last night; the distinguished trio registered at the Hotel House, and will address the meeting on Friday evening at eight. W. U. Hensel, chairman of the Democratic state committee, is also in this city to-day.

Held for Court. This morning James Melville had a hearing before Alderman Spurrier of the complaint charging him with stealing two mules, the property of J. B. Rowe, of New Providence, the particulars of which have been already published in these columns. The larceny was fully made out, and in default of bail Melville was committed to answer at court. It is believed the accused is an old horse thief, and that Melville is an assumed name.

Home Again from a Foreign Shore. James M. Burke, esq., who spent the summer in Ireland, arrived in New York on the White Star steamer Germanic last Saturday afternoon. He had been in that city for a few days, he did not reach Lancaster until late last night. To-day he is kept busy shaking hands with friends and acquaintances congratulating him on his safe journey. Mr. Burke states that the homeward voyage was a very rough one, while going out the weather was delightful.

A Fine Cotton Plant. A very large and fine cotton plant may be seen in the window of Levy's new shoe store, No. 3 East King street. The plant is 7 1/2 feet in height and contains sixty-five bolls of cotton, several of them being full blown. The plant was raised by Richard Avant, familiarly known as the farmer Henry Clark, Monon Court House, S. C., and was brought to this city by Mr. George Hoffman, Mr. Levy's father-in-law.

A Tight Squamos. This forenoon as Paul Solomon was engaged in gathering coal along the railroad in front of the Penn iron works he was caught between the cars and the stone wall along the railroad at that point and very badly squeezed, having two ribs broken and receiving several internal injuries. He was taken to his home, corner of Low and Freiburg streets, and receives attendance by Dr. Muhlenberg.

A Disagreeable Doze. A little son of Isaac Leaman, residing at No. 732 East Chestnut street, got hold of the oil can yesterday afternoon and swallowed a mouthful of the petroleum fluid. Discussed with his experiment, he yelled lustily alarming the family. Dr. C. H. Brown, who was called, gave the child an emetic, emptied his aching stomach, and it is to-day getting along nicely.

A Little Boy named Silas Stewart, only 21 months old, strayed away from the Sorrel Horse Hotel, King street, about 10 o'clock this morning, since which time nothing has been heard of him. He wore a blue gingham dress, straw hat and patent leather shoes. Any information of whereabouts may be left at the Sorrel Horse hotel.

Finger Crushed. On Tuesday evening at Mrs. Lydia Gumpf, wife of Wm. Gumpf, 108 East King street, was engaged in pressing grapes the little finger of her right hand was caught in the cog wheels of the wine-press and was crushed, the flesh being lacerated and the bones splintered. Amputation may be necessary, and if not else will at least have a stiff finger.

They were found by a keeper who returned them.

Amusements. Mlle. Rhea has a treat in store for them next Saturday evening, when the talented French actress, Mlle. Rhea, will appear in the Fidelity opera house. The play is a beautiful play of "Incomart." The press of the country have been unanimous in their verdict of approval of the great actress, and her visit to our country has been one continuous series of ovations. The press of Lancaster and Cumble are said by some critics to be fully equal to the impersonations of the Parisian star. She will not doubt be greeted with a large audience on her first appearance in Lancaster.

CAMPAIGN COINCIDENCES. Similarity Between Pattison and Cleveland. NEW YORK Herald.

The circumstances of Judge Folger's nomination have brought the independent voters of New York face to face with the same grave issues which confronted the Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania after the nomination of Beaver. The machine methods which packed the convention at Saratoga were the same as the means by which Senator Cameron controlled the convention at Harrisburg, and both were alike a suppression of the free voice of the party. In each case the machine, for its purposes, put in nomination a candidate of high character, but the election of either, as is generally admitted, will mean a supply of general utility of the machine power. The United States machine puts that power as much the same in New York as in Pennsylvania, and are alike abhorrent to the better sense of the party. To overthrow the machine the Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania should do the desperate exploit of an open revolt, the immediate result of which will be a victory for the opposite political organization, but the ultimate effect, as they hope, the purification and greater strength of their own party.

There are other coincidences in the issue presented to the Republicans of New York and Pennsylvania. The Democratic candidates in both states are men of unimpeachable integrity, at whose hands an honest and able administration of state affairs may be expected with absolute confidence. The Democratic candidate for governor in each state is a man who had not recommended himself by partisan or other political service, but by firm and effectual opposition to a corrupt municipal ring, and by the support of the Democratic party of Pennsylvania. The Democratic candidate for mayor of Buffalo were put in office by a combination of honest citizens of both parties, and have since received the active support of Republicans no less than Democrats. The Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania feel secure in placing Robert Pattison in the governor's chair and consider that result of a Democratic victory a small price to pay for the consequent overthrow of a Republican ring which is ruling the party to its ruin.

Apparently a very large body of influential voters of New York take the same view of the consequences which will follow the election of Governor Cleveland.

There is another coincidence in the political contest in New York and Pennsylvania. As by the nomination of Robert H. B. Hays for congressman-at-large the machine hoped to placate independent sentiment in New York, so Tom Marshall was chosen for the same place by the Cameron convention with the same hope. But he declined, as has Mr. Marshall, to be the same reason, that the convention was unsatisfactory in its methods to a great body of sincere Republicans in the state. Mr. Marshall has since given the influence of his rare oratorical ability to the cause represented by Senator Stewart and his associates.
