

DID MR. STYAL THINK?

More About Mooney Alias Smith. When the drunken man who gave his name as John H. Mooney was arrested, he first told the officer his name was Henry Smith.

He was searched and a large quantity of opium was found in his possession and he said they belonged to a man in Mt. Joy.

On searching further a red wallet or diary (the officer did not examine it closely) was found in his pocket.

The fly leaf of which was written "John H. Mooney." On being asked how it happened to have it in his possession, the prisoner said that it was his own, and that his right name was John H. Mooney.

The officer now supposes that Smith, or whatever else the prisoner's name may be, stole the property from Mr. Mooney, and then assumed his name to avoid being charged with larceny.

He died of his injuries. Paul Solomon, who was so badly squeezed by the cars at the Penn iron works siding, on Thursday morning, died from the effects of his injuries to-day.

He was 66 years of age and leaves a wife but no children.

He was injured. Daniel Erb, 12 years of age, son of Jos. Erb, of Gordonville, fell in the barn while playing and was cut about the head.
