HOPKINS ON BOSSISM.

HIS MASTERLY SPEECH FOR REFORM.

A Great Deliverance to Philadelphia's Endless Sufferers.—The Arranged the Cameron Machine.

At a great outpouring of Democrats in Philadelphia Saturday night Hon. James H. Hopkins spoke as follows:

I esteem it a pleasure to address the people of Philadelphia in behalf of political reform, said Mr. Hopkins, because I know I shall touch a sympathetic chord in the heart of every citizen. You are your own city seen political fraud reduced to a science; you have seen the creatures of unscrupulous masters boldly defy the law and receive protection for their acts from those who are benefited by the outrageous perpetration of the rights of the people; you have seen them invade the very temples of justice and pollute their innermost sanctuary; you have seen our legislative halls turned into slave markets, where people were bought and sold like cattle—having seen this and felt all its deplorable, feel assured that you yearn for pure government and freedom from the thralldom of political corruptionists. The evils practiced by the unscrupulous in politics are things that all parties recognize. The vast majority of Republicans recognize it; the Democrats recognize it; the Greenback Labor party recognize it; and the Temperance party recognize it. The Stalwarts alone ignore it. [Applause.] Their candidate for governor, General Beaver, has gone over this state from one end to the other, from Lake Erie to the Monongahela, from Delaware to the Ohio, and the spectacle has been a marvel. I have read of Japhet in search of his father, but I have never found anything there or anywhere else to equal General Beaver's search for an issue. [Applause and laughter.] He has tried everything. As a last resort he has brought protection in and is telling the people that free ships and the protection of our home industries can only be had by electing him governor. He has spoken of this so often and urged it upon a hearer so persistently that one would think that his election would float ships up every little stream in the land. One of his arguments was that if Mr. Pattison was elected it would cause New York capitalists to invest in Pennsylvania coal lands. Now I hold that if this is true it follows as a logical sequence that real estate in Pennsylvania must advance in price, so that argument has proved a boomerang. Out in Fulton county, a few days ago, he had another argument which was unique in its way. The people were called to a railroad and he told them that the way to get it was to elect him governor.

General Beaver is always ready to talk to people in any section of the state; he can make a stump speech on the shortest possible notice and more hands shaking than any other candidate. He has plenty to say at all times, but the trouble is the people do not care to listen just now to views on universal regeneration and kindred subjects when there are questions of immediate moment hanging long for their attention. When you are robbed and plundered by a thief, you do not want to stop to discuss the Egyptian question. [Laughter and applause.]

Take up the platform adopted by the last Stalwart state convention and you will see there a confusion of those wrongs wrong from them by the best men of their own party. When, in all the history of human government, has patronage been so perverted? Look at the disgraceful spectacle of the president of the United States bartering away his honor, from Malbone in Virginia to Cameron in Pennsylvania. [Applause.] Who holds office in Pennsylvania to-day who does not owe his position to Cameron? Is there nothing that will rouse our people from this shame and humiliation? Shall the flag you bring to your hundredth anniversary be poisoned by the taint of this corruption which has grown up among us?

The home of Garfield (cheers) has with unmistakable emphasis rebuked the corrupt heap upon his shoulders by his accidental successor. [Demonstrations and applause.] In the state of New York you will find in a few weeks see this corrupt political body buried under a mound. Why were Davis and Knappman and Sullivan removed from their official positions? They were acknowledged to be competent, but they were no badge of official servitude to show that they were owned by a political master. We have seen a so-called Christian soldier and statesman walk snuffing into the White House, though he walked knee-deep—aye, up to the armpits—through forgery, bribery and corruption. [Applause.]

I charge that the leaders of the Republican party have encouraged and promoted the boss system. I believe that General Beaver did say that Cameron was a snuff man, but he hastened to correct the statement and say he was small in a Stalwartian sense. Now I believe that Stewart and Armstrong, the Labor candidate, and the Temperance candidate are all honest and worthy men, but no man will say that they have any chance of election. We present a candidate who has a record; who has fought in the battle for reform, and whose triumphs in the cause were not only his, but his fellow-citizens, so well known. He has no record, but he has a record in no sense a negative question, so far as the state candidates are concerned. Our candidate for congress—a large will ally and faithfully aid in protecting American labor and American industry in which all Americans are interested. [Cheers.] He will aid in abolishing the pernicious lobby and preventing river and harbor bills to improve creeks and frog ponds from receiving any favor with Congress. [Immense applause.]

It was some minutes after the speech of Mr. Hopkins closed before the applause subsided. Robert E. Monaghan, of West Chester, who was also a candidate for Governor with Mr. Hopkins before the Harrisburg convention, made the next speech. His address lasted nearly an hour and was a masterpiece of oratory and logic. He read from a memorandum a statement of the increase in the state debt in the Southern states "after the carpet baggers got into them," and having shown the aggregate increase to be nearly $150,000,000 he asked if it was any wonder that there was a solid South. He said that if the thing kept on much longer there would also be a solid North, and together there would be such a sweep that the office-holding conspiracy, which was responsible for all of it, would be swept out of existence.

Ex-Congressman William S. Stenger, of Chambersburg, was next introduced and congratulated the Democratic party upon "his great awakening." He said the result of the Ohio election was not attributable to him, as the Stalwarts had said, but to the memory of the assassination of Garfield by one who pretended to be a Stalwart of the Stalwarts, and to the recollection of Butterworth's obsequy in the House and to Kniffen's lobby parasites. He cautioned his hearers against the hypocrisy of Stalwart platforms and professions. He thanked the Independents for having locked hands with the Democrats, and told them to stand by Stewart if they must and will, but if they want to strike a heavier blow they should cut across both and strike for Pattison. In conclusion he said:

"You are now to celebrate the Bi-Centennial of Pennsylvania. Two hundred years ago Charles II. exacted from Penn and his followers one-fifth of all the iron and silver found within your state and two beaver skins. The custom has fallen into disuse, but no nothing can better celebrate the occasion of your rejoicing than a grand Beaver hunt on the 7th of November; and all you've got to do to present one Beaver skin and the state will be ransomed."

A remedy resting on the basis of intrinsic worth demands the confidence of all. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is known and used most satisfactorily throughout the land, as it is attested by its great sales. Your druggist keeps it.

A Strange Inscription.
In a certain cemetery is a tomb with this inscription:
"This stone was raised by Sarah's lord, Not Sarah's virtues to record— But she they're well known to all the town— But it was raised to keep Sarah down." We don't know what Sarah was, but we venture to say that she had a very good husband. Her "lord" would not have had the satisfaction of raising a monument to her. Dismisses of the kind, and ordinary citizens keep people down even more effectively than monuments, but Hunt's Remedy is the great health-giver to all who are afflicted with men up to health and vigor. Many a man who is in a fair way to have a monument in some cemetery within a year could like Hekzekiah of old, a new lease of life by taking Hunt's Remedy.

I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, but have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel now as if I were a new man. I am getting much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer and now make my trips regularly. I cannot say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine.
