

Lancaster Intelligencer.

TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 17, 1882.

The Stove and Its Risks.

With the abolition of back-logs and a closing up of the grand old fireplaces, around which our forefathers were wont to assemble, the stove became master of the realm, but between heaters and ranges the cast-iron monarch has been badly driven within the past few years, especially in cities and towns. No one thinks of building a house of any pretensions now-a-days without a range and heater, and the contractor provides for the former even when erecting a row of four-room houses. Of course, there are very many cook stoves in use, but they are losing friends rapidly. The heater has taken possession of our halls, churches, etc., and would make more rapid headway but for two important reasons, expensive construction and well founded doubt as to its healthfulness, especially in the case of invalids, its dry, enervating heat often being very injurious. If the air sent forth was always pure, which, as every one knows, is not the case, and the coal was entirely consumed, or kept within proper channels, this hot air would still subject many to headache, dizziness and general languor. The effective arguments in favor of heating furnaces are, an even temperature through out the building, economy of fuel, where a number of heated rooms are required and safety against fire. But when ill-constructed or placed in damp, ill-ventilated cellars they frequently carry into the household serious illness. This throws us backward half a century, and compels the admission that the only really healthful fire is an open wood fire. It is the best friend of all, the well or ill, the strong or weak. It is a cheerful, inspiring friend, attracting irresistibly and putting every one in the best of humor with themselves and all the world.

If we cannot restore to supremacy the back-log king we can retain the open grate. It is a singular fact that the people of that city famed for smoke-Pittsburgh-suffer less from coal gas than the inhabitants of this or any eastern city, and they use the soft, bituminous coal, too. The secret of their comfort is to be found in their open grates. They pile a half bushel of coal on a few shavings, or bits of wood, apply the match and away it goes, crackling and roaring. Soon there is a cheering glow of heat through out the room; and what is more, every particle of gas and foul air is swiftly carried off up the chimney. Such a fire is not only perfectly safe in the sick room, but has a wonderfully cheering and invigorating effect upon a gloomy patient. You fill up the grate and retire, to watch the fantastic shadows on the ceiling, but the music of the fire soon puts you to sleep, and you rise in the morning with your head as clear as a bell, none of that dizzy, heavy, sickening feeling inseparable from a stove fire. Next to the open grate it is claimed that steam heating is the most healthful. It diffuses a pleasant, moist warmth and has this certain advantage: it does not impoverish the air of its oxygen. But how can it be applied to general use? It has been suggested that the means of heating dwellings will yet be furnished as gas and water are now supplied in all populous towns. Great reservoirs of steam might be provided in central positions sufficient to supply their immediate neighborhoods. If this plan could be made practicable the cost of steam heating would be reduced to a figure within the means of economical households. As American inventive genius is given the credit the world around of being inexhaustible, it ought to take a fresh hold of this problem.

They Have the Right. The Philadelphia Committee of One Hundred has put in nomination its own candidates for sheriff and register, not finding any of the candidates for these offices nominated by the political parties to be just suited to their minds. This is a very proper thing for the One Hundred to do, and if the good citizens of Philadelphia agree with them that neither the Republican nor the Democratic nominees are fit men for the places they seek, the candidates of the One Hundred will be elected provided there are enough of such good citizens, so thinking, to vote for them. The One Hundred are submitting their judgment to the ratification of the Philadelphia voters, and it will be likely to be endorsed just in proportion as it is good or bad. Our opinion is that the extent of the endorsement is not likely to do to flatter to the self-esteem of the One Hundred; because there happens to be some men on the political tickets who are quite sufficiently good to satisfy the sentiment of the voters of their party. The ticket of the One Hundred will not be likely to get many Democratic votes, because the Democratic candidates are believed by the Democrats to be fit men for the offices for which the party has named them. The Republican candidate for register is also believed to be generally acceptable to his party. The Republican candidate for sheriff is justly objectionable to the sentiment for which the One Hundred speak, and he it is against whom they are particularly inclined. They could have most effectively opposed him by endorsing the Democratic candidate. It seemed, however, to be putting too much Democracy in their mixture to support a Democrat for the influential office of sheriff. The stomach of the One Hundred could only endure the moderate dose it took in swallowing the Democratic candidate for judge; and so the support of the Democratic Grim for sheriff is made indirect instead of direct. It may have been wise; the Republican followers of the One Hundred may have refused the prescription of Grim and Arnold presented without disguise. The One Hundred know themselves and theirs. Their performance is all their own; they pay the bills and they are entitled to have it presented according to their liking. The Democracy has no fault to find. It does not care to have its nominees dictated to, and does not desire to dictate those of others.

PHIPPS MUST COME.

THE MAJOR HEAD FOR EXTRADITION.

The decision of the Circuit Court Against the Prisoner—The Next Move On the Case—Legal Chessboard. Major Phipps, the ex-convicted superintendent of the Philadelphia almshouse, was brought from the jail to the court house, in Hamilton, Oct., at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. The decision of Judge Sinclair was not to be rendered until 3 o'clock, and the major and his guard, Captain Henery, had nearly an hour to wait. The major was quite cheerful, and chatted in a lively way. He did not believe that he would have to return to Philadelphia, though he had been advised by his counsel that the decision of Judge Sinclair would probably be adverse to his prospects.

At 3 o'clock Judge Sinclair came into court, and as he walked to the bench every person in the court-room rose and remained standing until he was seated. Edward Martin and Ernest Kitson were present for the prosecution, and Harkins, Oiler, Carcalen and Chaill for Phipps. Mr. Phipps was not present. The judge lost no time, but proceeded to read his written judgment. It was a document fifty-four pages of foolscap, and during its delivery Oiler sat reading a law book. Harkins leaned his chin on his hand and gazed at the judge, while Phipps lay back in his chair and never removed his eyes from the judge's face except now and then to turn them on Harkins and Oiler. His eyes blinked frequently and the corner of his mouth twitched nervously. The opinion of Judge Sinclair was filled with references and authorities in support of his views. After referring to the three detailed charges against the prisoner, viz.: "Forging the signature of Seeds & Fagnola, Walter L. Murphy and A. J. Bellows to receipts for $395, $389 and $377 respectively, the judge found that the prisoner had obtained the warrants for money belonging to these receipts by falsely representing to William Schmidt and authorized to sign. The depositions of Murphy, Seeds and Bellows showed that this statement was wrong. As to the objections raised by Oiler, that the depositions were not in the proper form, the ruling was given in favor of the prosecution, and the case was referred to the grand jury. The judge's decision was that Phipps must come to Philadelphia for extradition, and that the government should procure a warrant for his arrest.

THE CAMPAIGN. Permanent Organization of the Central and County Committees—The Executive Committee—The Finance Committee—The Recording Secretary—Jas. A. McElhenny. Monday evening pursuant to adjournment the Central Democratic club met at headquarters for permanent organization. The following officers were elected: President, C. E. Downey, from the committee appointed for the purpose, reported the following list of permanent officers, who were on motion of Jno. A. Coyle, unanimously elected: President—C. E. Downey, Vice President—J. L. Steinmetz, Geo. B. Wilson, C. A. Oblander, Jacob Pontz, Recording Secretary—Jas. A. McElhenny, Corresponding Secretary—W. A. Schoenberger.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS. A Fair Attendance on Opening Night. The boys' and girls' night schools were opened last night. At the boys' school, corner Duke and German streets, they were crowded to the doors. The principal, Mr. Gable, and the committee at once elected James B. Gable as an assistant to the principal. Mr. Levergood. There is plenty of room in the school for twice as many boys as attended last night, and the school board and the committee are pleased to see the attendance largely increased. Parents should see to it that their sons, who have no opportunity of attending school in day time, avail themselves of the advantages offered by the night schools.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE. Governor Hoyt's Proclamation in regard to the Bi-Centennial. Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation: "Whereas, two hundred years have elapsed since the landing of William Penn and the founding of the colony of Pennsylvania, and it is fitting that the Bi-Centennial of the event should be celebrated by the people of the commonwealth; and whereas, arrangements have been made for such celebration by municipal corporations, organized associations and private citizens in which it is desirable and proper that all persons within our borders should participate."

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. They Name Two Candidates of Their Own. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

is a Republican, but voted for General Hancock for president. Walter E. Rex, the nominee for register of wills, is a young lawyer. He represents the Twenty-second ward in common council, and has been active in the reform movement. In the course of last year he was endorsed by the Democrats of the Twenty-second ward for reelection, and was victorious over the Republican candidate.

New York City Politics. The joint conference committees of the Democratic factions in New York decided that the naming of a sheriff should go to Irving Hall, the county clerkship to the county Democracy, and the two judges of the superior court and the three coroners to Tammany. Sheriff Alex. V. Davidson, and the county Democracy named Patrick H. Keegan for county clerk. The ticket will be submitted to the different conventions to-day for ratification, and the voters will have a narrow margin in their rejection by Tammany and Irving Hall.

THE CAMPAIGN. Permanent Organization of the Central and County Committees—The Executive Committee—The Finance Committee—The Recording Secretary—Jas. A. McElhenny. Monday evening pursuant to adjournment the Central Democratic club met at headquarters for permanent organization. The following officers were elected: President, C. E. Downey, from the committee appointed for the purpose, reported the following list of permanent officers, who were on motion of Jno. A. Coyle, unanimously elected: President—C. E. Downey, Vice President—J. L. Steinmetz, Geo. B. Wilson, C. A. Oblander, Jacob Pontz, Recording Secretary—Jas. A. McElhenny, Corresponding Secretary—W. A. Schoenberger.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS. A Fair Attendance on Opening Night. The boys' and girls' night schools were opened last night. At the boys' school, corner Duke and German streets, they were crowded to the doors. The principal, Mr. Gable, and the committee at once elected James B. Gable as an assistant to the principal. Mr. Levergood. There is plenty of room in the school for twice as many boys as attended last night, and the school board and the committee are pleased to see the attendance largely increased. Parents should see to it that their sons, who have no opportunity of attending school in day time, avail themselves of the advantages offered by the night schools.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE. Governor Hoyt's Proclamation in regard to the Bi-Centennial. Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation: "Whereas, two hundred years have elapsed since the landing of William Penn and the founding of the colony of Pennsylvania, and it is fitting that the Bi-Centennial of the event should be celebrated by the people of the commonwealth; and whereas, arrangements have been made for such celebration by municipal corporations, organized associations and private citizens in which it is desirable and proper that all persons within our borders should participate."

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. They Name Two Candidates of Their Own. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

COLUMBIA NEWS.

OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE.

Events Along the Susquehanna—Items of Interest in the City of Annapolis—Picked Up by the Intelligencer's Reporter. John Manners, of Millin, Pa., is visiting friends here. The "devil" of the Columbia Spy office, Harry Strawbridge, is visiting Philadelphia. Squire George Young left this morning for a few days trip to Wilkes-Barre. Miss Rachel Haines, of Mt. Joy, who has been visiting Miss Gertrude Roberts, has returned home. The people who the Citizens band will serenade to-night should render them liberal assistance.

"Fun in a Boarding House" will be produced to-night at the opera house. The troupe comes well recommended by the press. The "Chimes of Normandy" will be presented here to-morrow evening by the celebrated Italian English opera company. It was decided by Co. C. last evening to leave for the Bi-Centennial celebration in Philadelphia, on October 26th, at 7:30, a. m. o'clock, and return on the following Saturday.

Columbia has seen rough looking men pass through its streets in the afternoon, the worst looking crowd of tramps that has appeared here for many months went through to-day. Fortunately they did not stop in town. A horse on the Runaway. An unmanageable horse kicked in the dasher of the wagon to which it was attached, this morning, on Cherry street. The driver was thrown out, cutting his head as he fell. The animal was quieted before any further damage done.

A Mr. Jacob Smoker has a radish which measures around its sides 18 inches, but the worst looking crowd of tramps that has appeared here for many months went through to-day. Fortunately they did not stop in town. A horse on the Runaway. An unmanageable horse kicked in the dasher of the wagon to which it was attached, this morning, on Cherry street. The driver was thrown out, cutting his head as he fell. The animal was quieted before any further damage done.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS. A Fair Attendance on Opening Night. The boys' and girls' night schools were opened last night. At the boys' school, corner Duke and German streets, they were crowded to the doors. The principal, Mr. Gable, and the committee at once elected James B. Gable as an assistant to the principal. Mr. Levergood. There is plenty of room in the school for twice as many boys as attended last night, and the school board and the committee are pleased to see the attendance largely increased. Parents should see to it that their sons, who have no opportunity of attending school in day time, avail themselves of the advantages offered by the night schools.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE. Governor Hoyt's Proclamation in regard to the Bi-Centennial. Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation: "Whereas, two hundred years have elapsed since the landing of William Penn and the founding of the colony of Pennsylvania, and it is fitting that the Bi-Centennial of the event should be celebrated by the people of the commonwealth; and whereas, arrangements have been made for such celebration by municipal corporations, organized associations and private citizens in which it is desirable and proper that all persons within our borders should participate."

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. They Name Two Candidates of Their Own. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

committee, with discretionary powers to Chief Burgess South, being present, was appointed to attend to the matter of providing keys of the lock up to all the policemen, the latter being responsible for the same. This was done to prevent the escape of prisoners, which has occurred in several instances lately, owing to the insecure manner in which the key has been kept. The property committee was ordered to ask for bids for supplying the opera house with coal. Bills amounting to $5,323.37, were presented, and orders to be paid. There being no other business council adjourned.

OF THE COLUMBIA SPY OFFICE. Harry Strawbridge, is visiting Philadelphia. Squire George Young left this morning for a few days trip to Wilkes-Barre. Miss Rachel Haines, of Mt. Joy, who has been visiting Miss Gertrude Roberts, has returned home. The people who the Citizens band will serenade to-night should render them liberal assistance.

"Fun in a Boarding House" will be produced to-night at the opera house. The troupe comes well recommended by the press. The "Chimes of Normandy" will be presented here to-morrow evening by the celebrated Italian English opera company. It was decided by Co. C. last evening to leave for the Bi-Centennial celebration in Philadelphia, on October 26th, at 7:30, a. m. o'clock, and return on the following Saturday.

Columbia has seen rough looking men pass through its streets in the afternoon, the worst looking crowd of tramps that has appeared here for many months went through to-day. Fortunately they did not stop in town. A horse on the Runaway. An unmanageable horse kicked in the dasher of the wagon to which it was attached, this morning, on Cherry street. The driver was thrown out, cutting his head as he fell. The animal was quieted before any further damage done.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS. A Fair Attendance on Opening Night. The boys' and girls' night schools were opened last night. At the boys' school, corner Duke and German streets, they were crowded to the doors. The principal, Mr. Gable, and the committee at once elected James B. Gable as an assistant to the principal. Mr. Levergood. There is plenty of room in the school for twice as many boys as attended last night, and the school board and the committee are pleased to see the attendance largely increased. Parents should see to it that their sons, who have no opportunity of attending school in day time, avail themselves of the advantages offered by the night schools.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE. Governor Hoyt's Proclamation in regard to the Bi-Centennial. Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation: "Whereas, two hundred years have elapsed since the landing of William Penn and the founding of the colony of Pennsylvania, and it is fitting that the Bi-Centennial of the event should be celebrated by the people of the commonwealth; and whereas, arrangements have been made for such celebration by municipal corporations, organized associations and private citizens in which it is desirable and proper that all persons within our borders should participate."

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. They Name Two Candidates of Their Own. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

Yesterday a man who gave his name as "Thomas Frantz," put an appearance of Pine Grove, Schuylkill county, having with him a fourteen year old girl named Annie Dieble, whom he abandoned after a short stay. Inquiry solicited the fact that she was an orphan, and that she had been sent to the management of the Home for Friendless Children, of this city, to Benj. M. Miller, of Pottsville, Schuylkill county, her indenture bearing date Nov. 25, 1878, at which time she was nine years old, and was bound for the full term of nine years. At first after Frantz abandoned her, she claimed that he was her father, but subsequently admitted that he was not and that he had promised to bring her to Lancaster. Frantz has escaped. The girl will be returned to Pottsville, and the managers of the Home will no doubt make the necessary inquiries into the case.

THE NIGHT SCHOOLS. A Fair Attendance on Opening Night. The boys' and girls' night schools were opened last night. At the boys' school, corner Duke and German streets, they were crowded to the doors. The principal, Mr. Gable, and the committee at once elected James B. Gable as an assistant to the principal. Mr. Levergood. There is plenty of room in the school for twice as many boys as attended last night, and the school board and the committee are pleased to see the attendance largely increased. Parents should see to it that their sons, who have no opportunity of attending school in day time, avail themselves of the advantages offered by the night schools.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE. Governor Hoyt's Proclamation in regard to the Bi-Centennial. Governor Hoyt has issued the following proclamation: "Whereas, two hundred years have elapsed since the landing of William Penn and the founding of the colony of Pennsylvania, and it is fitting that the Bi-Centennial of the event should be celebrated by the people of the commonwealth; and whereas, arrangements have been made for such celebration by municipal corporations, organized associations and private citizens in which it is desirable and proper that all persons within our borders should participate."

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. They Name Two Candidates of Their Own. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.

THE PHILADELPHIA REFORMERS. A third candidate for sheriff of Philadelphia in the person of Brigadier General J. William Hoffman, of the Twenty-ninth ward, was placed in the field Monday afternoon by the Committee of One Hundred. Walter E. Rex, member of our board of council from the Twenty-second ward, was nominated for register of wills, and Michael Arnold, Democratic candidate for judge, endorsed. No action was taken in regard to the candidate for city treasurer. A number of recommendations were made on senatorial and legislative nominations.