THE NEW ESOP.

The Chicago Man Strikes a New Vein of Natrative—A Tale For the Toddlers. Chicago Tribune.

One day Lucy and her brother were Going to the Place where the ice-cream was kept. Lucy was Trotting Along, holding Charlie's hand, She heard a Strange Noise in the street near them. Looking, she saw two boys with a little ecru Dog. One boy had Tied a String to the poor little dog's tail, and on the Other End of the string was a deserted Oyster

Can.
"Oh, brother," said Lucy, "see what the Wicked Boys are doing."
And then the tears filled her eyes, because she felt Sorry for the dog. Then Charles asked the boys to let the dog go. They would not do this, but said they would Sell him the dog for Twentyfive Cents. "If we Buy the dog, Lucy, you can Have no Ice Cream, for I have only Twenty-five Cents in my Pecket," said

Then Lucy was very sad, for she Loved ice-cream dearly, but still she knew it was her Duty to prevent the dog from Suf-

So for a moment she was Silent, and then Looking Up to her brother she said in her pretty way: "You Kick in the Ribs of the boys, dear brother, and I will Hustle the Pap up the Alley."

And so Lucy Had her Ice Cream after Lucy's Facetious Father. From the Chicago Tribune.

After Lucy, about whose kindness to the little ecru dog with the can on his tail you read the other day, had grown up to be a Young Lady she was quite good look ing, and wore a great many nice clothes. She had been to Boarding School, and when she came home again had forgotten how to do any Work. But she could play the "Maiden's Prayer" and the "Battle of Prague" on the piano very Nicely while her Mother was hanging out clothes in the back yard Monday afternoons. But although Lucy could do all this, her Papa did not seem to be satisfied, for he was a person of no Culture, who said girls ought to know how to Cook and be of some Earthly Account around the house. He would say the e Cruel Words to Lucy some times, and then she would go up stairs three steps at a time, Slam the door of her room and Weep Bitterly. But before evening came and it was time for her young man to Show Up the tears would all be gone and she would put powder on her face and go down into the parior about 8 o'clock looking Pretty Stick. And when the Young Man came she would run to the door with a Radiant Smile and have such an ingenue look on her face that the Young Man would never suspect her of sometimes getting ver, Angry and slamming things around. And after Lucy and the Young Man had sat in the parlor about three hours and Whiled Away the Evening he would start for home, and she would go with him to the door and kiss him On the

One evening while Lucy was waiting for the Young Man her father came into the room. Just then she began to sing a song called "Will My Darling Come Again?"
When she has finished her Father looked at her steadily for a moment, and then said, "I don't think he will if he ever Drops on your Warble."

Little Charlie's Blind Pool.

Charles was a little boy who loved his Mother dearly, and whenever she told him anything he was very careful to obey. Onc day in the Spring, when the birds were singing and the buds on the apple trees almost ready to burst into beautiful white blossoms, Charles asked his mother for Ten Cents to buy Marbles, for the ground was getting dry and the other boys were beginning to enjoy their favorite sport. "You can have the money, my son," sail the mother, "but you must promise me not to play for Keeps, and every night that you can come home and tell me truthfully that you have not disobeyed your Mamma I will give you a large Red Apple." And then she kissed him Fondly and he went gayly away to School.

But before Charles had gone very far he met Thomas Tough, who was a Bad boy. Charles told Thomas about the Ten Cents that his Mother had given him to buy Marbles with, and also told him that he could not play for Keeps, unless he was willing to go without the Red Apple. When Thomas heard this he said: "Give me the Marbles you are going to buy and I will play with them for Keeps, and after School is out we will Divide what I have won, for I am a Superior Player. Then you can truthfully tell your Mother that you have not been playing for Keeps, and will receive the Red Apple." So Charles gave his Marbles to Thomas and after School was out asked him how many Marbles he had Wen. "I did not Win," replied Thomas. "I struck a Hard Crowd and lost." Then Charles was sad, for he was a pretty Tight-Fisted little boy, and began to Cry. But presently he said to Thomas: "You are a naughty boy and I hate you Very Much." And then Thomas bit Charles in the Nose and threw him down in the dirt, making his new panties look very bad indeed. So when Charles reached home he told his Papa all about his troubles. When he had finished his Papa said to him : " You don't know as much as Thompson's Colt and I am going to Take a Crack at you myself." Then he gave Charles a good Licking and sent him to bed without any Supper. And when Charles had lain on his Stomach for awhile, because he felt more Comfortable that way, he said to himself : " No more Blind Pool for me." Do you not think he had a Great Head, children? I do.

There is hardly an adult person living but is sometimes troubled with kidney difficulty, which is the most prolific and dangerous cause of all diseases. There is no sort of need to have any form of kidney or urinary trouble if Hop Bitters are taken occasionally. 015-2wd & w
