A STRANGE EPISODE.

WAS THE SUICIDE'S SPIRIT THERE?

What a German Lady Heard in the Apartments of a Frenchman at Rome When He Died. London Spectator.

In the summer of 1875 there was staying in Rome a M. Paul Herisson, second secretary to the French legation, a very fashionable young gentleman, and living in very good style. At the end of May be was promoted to be first secretary of the French legation at Athens, and had to leave Rome in consequence. I was at the time living in Rome with a very handsome and years along a Common lady. and very clever German lady, who had for me a sort of filial regard, and kindly took upon herself all the trouble af my house arrangements. She happened to hear of M. Paul Herisson's removal, and that his suite of 100ms were to be disposed of, went to look at them, and finding them very neat and in a capital position took them at once.

Shortly before the middle of June, when we went to the new house, not to be in the way of Mrs. G 1 left for Florence, whence I returned some days after at about 6 o'clock in the morning. I had hardly entered my bedroom when, to my astonishment, seeing she never rose before 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning, Mrs. G-came in looking pale and haggard, and in a hur ried manner told me she was not going to stay another day in that house, as it was haunted. ("Es spukt im hause," said she.) As it may be supposed, I was rather taken aback, and asked what had happened, when she told me that the night before, the first she passed in the new house, at about 2 o'clock in the morning, she had hardly been in bed more than two hours and had not been able yet to sleep a wink, when she heard the furniture in the room cracking most horribly, and then a loud groan, followed by others weaker and weaker, as if somebody had been expiring in the room; that after that she had fallen into a perspiration through terror, and not felt able to put her hands from under the bedcover to light a candle. (She was usually not at all easily frightened, and I had seen her, in other circumstances, showing more courage than most individuals of the stronger sex.) She added that humor, and answered rather grufly, that if she suffered from bad dreams I could not help it; that the house was taken and paid for, and for the moment I felt tired and should be much obliged if she least variation in her former statement, and assuring me that it certainly was not a dream, as she had been then and during the entire night just as wide awake as at the moment she was speaking. The same day, after dinner, when I looked into the Italic of that evening (a French newspaper published in Rome), I found a few lines as follows: to-day a telegram from Paris saying that last night about 1 o'clock M. Paul Herisson committed suicide by blowing out his brains. It appears that M. P. Herrisson bad been sufficient lately from forms. That is a great climate down there is a great climate down We regret to state that we have received had been suffering lately from frequent attacks of nervous headache, that made his existence intolerable. M. P. Herisson was well known in Roman society, having resided here some years as second secretary to the French legation, and will be, we have no doubt, very much regretted by his numerous friends." Now, as between Paris and Rome there is a difference of forty-four minutes, there is an exact coincidence between the moment when M. Herisson died and when Mrs. G---- heard the groans in her bedroom, which was the very department where M.

Herisson used to sleep when living in that house. I showed Mrs. G——— the telegraph in the Ralie. It had the effect of making her considerably easier in mind, and further, by what train of reasoning I do not know, she gave up her intention of leaving the house. Never anything similar was heard in it again.

I may add that Mrs. G—— was in perfect health at the time, had never, either before or afterward, been subject te hailucinations or anything of the sort, has since committed matrimony, and is now staying in Florence with husband ready, if requested, to confirm to the last word what I have narrated.

WHAT TEN BBIDES WORE.

Some Notable Dresses at Hymen's Altar. At the marriage of Miss E. H. Smith to Mr. Tolle, in Cincinnati, on Wednesday, the bride was attired in "simple traveling costume of electric-blue cloth, with no other ornaments than natural flowers."

Mr. Haldemau's bride, Miss Ada Sherman Moulton, at Glendale, Ohio, on Wednesday, was clad in white tulle embroidered in pearl beads, with diamonds as orna-ments. Her maids wore tarletan, with roses at the belts.

Miss Preston, who was married to Mr. Van Voorhis in New York, on Wednesday, wore white satin en traine, trimmed with point lace, the front of the skirt being elaborately draped with the same lace. The corsage was cut square and filled in with point lace. The veil was of tulle, caught at the hair with orange blossoms. Treasurer Gilfillan's daughter, Miss May, was married to Clarence Duvall in Washington on Wednesday. The bride, who is a brunette, was attired in a princess en traine, shirred white satin front and moire antique back, draped with a long bridal veil, the whole relieved with natural flowers and sparkling diamond ornaments. When Miss Ross became the wife of Mr. Holden in Brooklyn on Wednesday, she was dressed in a garnet satin traveling custom, the front of which was of brocade. Her bonnet was of garnet plush, ornamen-ted with ostrich tips. She wore diamonds, the gift of the bridegroom, as ornaments and carried a boquet of Marechal Neil At the marriage of Miss Roe to Mr. Child, in New York, on Wednesday, the bride wore a white satin dress en traine, high in the neck and with long sleeves. The bride also wore an elaborate tulle veil, which was fastened to her tresses with diamonds and orange blossoms. She wore diamond ornaments which have been in possession of the family for years and were

On Wednesday Miss Brandreth, of Sing Sing, became the bride of Mr. Robinson. At the altar she wore white brocade velvet, full round train, edged with shell ruching. The corsage was cut square and was filled in with point lace. The dress was made with a because the front dress was made with a basque, the front being of white satin trimmed with point lace. The veil was of tulle, caught at the hair with orange blossoms. She wore a diamond crescent brooch, the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The customs worn at the wedding of Miss Morris and Mr. Osborne, in Cleveland, on Wednesday, were described as "very elegant." The bride was dressed in a white gros grain silk, trimmed with point lace. She wore a tulle veil, fastened with white lilacs, with diamond and pearl ornaments. The customs of the bridesmaids were similar to each other, being of whith satin and lace. Each carried a basket of roses. The mother of the bride wore a dress of black gros grain silk and crepe. The mother of the groom wore silk with garnitures of silk.

A NEVADA MAN'S STORY.

How Senator Jones Started a Summer Resort and What Came of It.

From the Carson City (Nev.) Appeal. "Sine" Rarnes tells a racy story of his experience at Santa Monica, the new summer resort at Southern California. "I was down in that section a few months ago," of the situation and told me he could give me a job. "I want a let of men to keep in the water all day to show visitors how de lightful surf bathing is. You see the people from the East have acquired a sort of prejudice against the Pacific ocean, and I want to counteract the feeling. I want you to boss eight men and keep 'em tumb ling around in the billows, the sport of the laughing sea, in striped costumes—men who can run out on the beach every ten minutes and tell how warm the water is.'

"Well, I caught the idea and agreed to as soon as she caught a glimpse of daylight she had got up and gone to the drawing room, and when the servant had told her of my arrival she had come to tell me that most decidedly she could not think of staying in that house any longer. I of staying in that house any longer. I and blue striped suit, with the flag of the received her statement not in the best union across the stomach, and rushed about would allow me to take some rest. Later three quit, but Jones didn't miss 'em, and in the day more than once she returned to I kept even financially. Then two froze the subject, repeating all the circum- to death right on the beach, and I had to stances of the night's event, without the get a coroner's jury to and a verdict from overheating in the water. The balance of the gang left, and I had to go it alone. got so inured with the cold that I could rush out of the water, skip up to the English tourists and tell them it was just lovely and keep my teeth still all the while. I got my $20 every night, and spent it all for warm drinks. Then I quit, as my constitution was giving way. When I left he had eight Irishmen off the railroad doing the health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, and taking it regularly according to directions, > Mansfield, Ohio, Nov. 28, 1861. Gentlemen: -I have suffered with pain in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medieines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well-pain in side and back all gone-soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines. JOHN K. ALLENDER.

Brown's Iron Bitters is composed of Iron in soluble form; Cinchona the great tonic, together with other standard remedies, making a remark-able non-alcoholic tonic, which will cure dyspepsia, Indigestion, Malaria, Weakness, and relieve all Lung and Kidney diseases.
