A Question Answered. PRNN, Pa., Oct. 31, 1882. Editors Lancaster INTELLIGENCER.

Kind Sirs : Do you think that Cameron is behind Mr. Collins, our candidate for state senator, of our district? If so, le me know, for I will not support him should it be so, and many other Democrats besides myself. Hon. Kauffman is going through our district, and by his talk we might understand that something was wrong. Have the kindness to let me know and oblige yours, JACOB H. MACE. We have to say to our correspondent that we do not think anything of the kind. Mr. Collins is a lifelong Democrat of unblemished reputation, and very fit for the nomination which has been given him by the Democratic convention of his district, every Democratic vote in which should be cast for him. There is no room at all for charging him with being instigated in his candidacy by Mr. Cameron, for, unless the Democracy of the district are open to that charge, certainly Mr. Collins is not. He has been entrusted with their nomination, and it is right that he should uphold their nomination as long as they desire it to be maintained. It is to be presumed that their desire is that he shall uphold it until the election. If they desire otherwise they need to say so through their representatives. If circumstances have occurred since the nomination of Mr. Collins which cause the Democracy of his district to desire his withdrawal from the canvass they may express that desire through delegates chosen to declare it in a convention called by the regular authority of the party. We know of no other way in which Mr. Collins may be asked properly to withdraw.

Our own opinion is that the Democracy of the Northern district do not desire Mr. Collins' withdrawal. We do not believe that there is anything in the Independent Republican candidacy of Mr. Kauffman to cause them to desire Mr. Collins' withdrawal. Mr. Kauffman is making his canvass as a Republican, and Mr. Stehman is making his as a Republican. Just so are Mr. Stewart and Mr. Beaver candidates for governor as Republicans. Mr. Pattison is a candidate as a Democrat. Mr. Collins is a candidate as a Demacrat. Mr. Collins has the same reason to maintain his candidacy that Mr. Pattison has. Both maintain it because they are Democratic candidates for a political office. Mr. Pattison would remain as the Democratic candidate, whatever his prospect of election. He holds in his hand the standard of his party and cannot lay it down. Mr. Stewart is a fitter man for governor than Mr. Beaver ; so also Mr. Kauffman would make a better senator than Mr. Stehman; but both are running as Republicans and neither has any claim for Democratic support for the political office of senator.

Mr. Kauffman wants Democratic votes, no doubt, and it seems that he is asking Democratic voters of his district for their support because he is opposed to Mr. Cameron. But the Democracy are opposed both to Mr. Cameron's part of the Republican party and to Mr. Blaine's part; and it is none of their business to draw the chestnuts out of the fire for either. There are a good many time-serving people, who have no distinct idea of political principles nor any sound notions of the proper duties and responsibilities of political parties, who are disand jump Jim Crow" whenever they see a chance to combine with anybody or party or thing to secure a bone. The editor of the Philadelphia Times is a distinguished example of such political acrobats. He has no political moorings and is always ready for an outing when he thinks he can smell game anywhere in the field. He would have the Democrats of the northern district to vote for Kauffman. It is his idea that Cameron has a Democratic candidate, as well as for but few days remain in which they a Republican, in the district. He finds can exhibit their pretty uniforms. It is that the "Cameron Democratic contin- bayond peradventure that they will not be gent that masquerades in the Lancaster given a chance to parade after the elec-Democracy," aided by " a sprinkling of tion, unless they join the Pattison cohort. Bourbon Democratic stupidity," has caused the failure of a movement to put Kauffman, instead of Collins, on the Democratic senatorial ticket. Col. McClure will never while he lives be able to appreciate and understand a simple straightforward course of political action. Such seems to him to be stupid. But it may be that it is not stupid to be honest and to vote for principles and candidates that you approve even if you do not elect them. The man who deserts his convictions because he is in a minority is not the strong man nor the worthy citizen.

fire, and it is again in order for the newspapers to talk about the necessity of having fire-proof play houses. Many times have theatres burned, and many times has this been said. The necessity of greater safety from fire in public halls is apparent, but notwithstanding we do not have them. The reason is that the public does not demand them nor the law require them. A theatre draws no greater audience if it is well than if it is ill built. People will pay nothing for safety. If theatre managers found that they profited by the greater security of their buildings they would make them safe. They certainly can be built so as to run less danger from fire : but it costs a great deal more to so build them. The people can protect themselves, but they will not. The law, too, could protect

They have no particular interest in so building as to defeat fire; for a fire is not their loss. They could not get the additional rent which a fire-proof erection would necessitate. If there was a demand for fire. proof buildings they would construct years after his death. And still it is loaned him for business purposes, argued them without the requirement of a law. them without the requirement of a law. In Europe fires are very much less fre-

them, by requiring places of assembly to be built safely; but the people do not seem to care enough about it to impress quent than they are in this country. European sentiment requires fire-proof structures and they are built. There are especial difficulties about securing theatres from the flames and probably it is impracticable to make them entirely safe; but it is not impossible to prevent them burning down in a moment, as this last New York tinder box was burned; if indestructible materials were used wherever possible there would be at least time given for the audience to get out of danger. When people conclude that it is better to stay out of theatres than to enter them at the the cost of their lives, theatre managers will find it expedient to demand fire-proof structures and theatre owners will provide them. The public will have to pay the additional cost of the security they require, but there should be no hesitation in paying for safety in our amusements.

Ir was a magnificent reception the Fayette..... Democracy of Lancaster accorded Controller Pattison, and it will go down in the political history of the city as one of Greene..... the most remarkable demonstrations of the kind ever witnessed here. Such an outburst of popular feeling tells the direction in which the current is running that is Lawrence to sweep over the state next week. The speeches of Mr. Pattison and the other Luzerne gentlemen who addressed the listening multitude in the court house are in the same vein that has distinguished all the Democratic uttrances upon the stump in this campaign. They are bold and aggressive. They present the issues involved in this struggle in a clear and forcible manner, and no one who heard them or reads the accounts as furnished in our columns today, and then compares them with Mr. Pattison's course in the Philadelphia controller's office, need feel any doubt as to just what will happen when the brave young reformer shall be called up

VICTORY was in the air last night.

THE trumpet call to arms was heard along the line last night and the echoes of the response have not yet died away.

THEY have elected a circus rider to the Italian Parliament. But then it is no uncommon thing in this country to elect men who can ride several horses at once.

"I'm not making any predictions," said Democratic Chairman Hensel yesterday: "but I'll be vory glad to see my friends on November 8."

THE enthusiasm manifested by Lancaster's Democracy last night will only be sarpassed next Tuesday when the news comes that proclaims Pattison's election.

THOSE fellows who have been sitting on the fence had better get down pretty sudden. After such an indication of popular sentiment as that afforded by last night's demonstration they shouldn't longer question which way the cat's going to jump. Lancaster's greeting to the next governor was simply a specimen of what they have been doing all over the state.

But even this small boon is denied him. An interview reported in the Harrisburg Patriot represents the governor as saying: "No man can preserve his self-respect and submit to the methods of a national administration whose principosed "to leap about and turn about pal business is office-brokerage." As Beaver represents the administration which Hoyt condemns, the logical inference is that Hoyt is not for Beaver.

"Go back and tell him, by St. George, I'll unfrock him." So too, shall have so long disregarded the voice of the Pattison's Stewardship.

Never has there been such spontaneous ovations as that which has everywhere greeted the standard bearer of the party. Robert E. Pattison. I wish to draw a brief parallel between the two men who are now before the people asking their suffrages. I speak not only to the Democracy, but also to the earnest Republicans who are in search of truth. During the five years of Controller Pattison's administration of the finances of Philadelphia, the decrease of the city's debt amounted to $5,000.000, while the decrease in the annual expenditures reached the enormous sum of $1,500,000. The tax rate fell from $2.25 to $1.85, for every $100 of valuation, and there now remains after all expenses $2,000,000 in the city treasury. Compare with this stainless record Beaver's betrayal of his constituents at Chicago. He was elected a delegate to represent the wishes of a people who were almost a unit in their support of a certain man for the presidency. He knew the sentiments of the people who had elected him to voice their feelings, and yet he deliberately violated their known wishes and voted for a third term for General Grant. And the voice of these same people whom he then be-trayed is now loudest in his condemna-

Beaver as an Executive Officer. When first I took my seat in the Senate of the state in January, 1880, a report from a committee of investigation of the conduct of the State Agricultural college was submitted in which General Beaver was gravely cen sured for his extravagant and profligate mismanagement. Since that time and in anticipation of his nomination another commutee of investigation was appointed, but that committee will not report until after the election. His friends on that committee do not wish to expose his shortcomings to the people. He has been twice tried and found wanting. Shall he be given another chance to prove his incapacity? [Cries of "No, No."] Who ever heard of a committee passing on the work of Controller Pattison? He needs no cestificates. The 25,000 Republicans who voted for him in 1880 in the heat of a presidential campaign is his sufficient guarantee.

Out of His Own Mouth. As our distinguished candidate fer governor has said "By their fruits ye know them." SO shall "Out of his own mouth will I condemn him." Last Saturday night three weeks ago, a speech was written by General Beaver and printed in the Philadelphia Press, which was never delivered. Written as it was it expresses the caudidates, real convictions, and in that speech, with a degree of frankness that is commendable, he in substance denies the necessity of reform in our state government. He is willing to let well enough alone. He is willing to permit the Senate Librarian Delaney to persist in his efforts to debauch the ballot in Luzerne and Lackawanna counties. To let a machine dependent remain in the Record er's office, an office framed to pension off politicians, at an annual cost to the people of $50,000. To let the delinquent tax office remain in existence and the legislative rolls be filled with the names of men who never carned an honest dollar from the government. The Republican candidate speaks of semi confidences which forbid comment. Does he refer to the semi-confidences imparted to him by Cooper when they attended church together at Media? Or to the semi-confidences with M. S. Quay concerning the iniquitous Recorder's office? Unfortunate man, whose confidences will not bear the clear light of day. Our candidate needs no such screen. He tells you what reforms he will inaugurate if you honor him with your suffrages. Out of his own mouth will I condemn him." Everywhere that our standard-bearer has gone, crowds such as I see here tonight have flocked to see him. His regeneration of Philadelphia is a sufficient guarantee that when elected he will redeem the state. Will you try General Beaver a third time when he has been twice found wanting? With Pattison as governor the rogues will fly from Capitol Hill as they did from Philadelphia. He will meet all our expectations, lift us from the slough of bossism, and restore to its aucient purity the shield of our state with its grand old legend : "Virtue, Liberty and Independence."

nir. Heusel's Speech. Loud and continued calls were then made for Mr. Hensel, who, upon being introduced by the chairman, spoke as follows: I confess to an unexpected feeling of clation in finding myself in this situation. I feel to-night as one who comes home, and, after long months of labor in giving to the campaign in all parts of the state my best efforts, I feel that no portion or people of Pennsylvania can hold so near and dear a place to my heart as the city and Democracy of Lancaster. They say that this is merely good book-keeping; I say that it is good housekeeping. Six years ago there was in every department of Philadelphia peculation and every wrong imaginable was com mitted. The exposure of these disgraceful deeds has been releutlessly made. As an instance of this the speaker cited the almshouse, and the stealings and escape of Mr. Phipps, who, he said, after taking articles of every value, stole the roof off the almshouse, and had actually been getting ready to steal the cellar, too. ed political meetings and church fairs, has shown himself in Sunday schools and county fairs; in short, he has been an indefatigable traveller, and yet we have the first time to hear of him supporting any portion of the Republican platform. In severe terms Mr. Heusel arraigned the inconsistency of General Beaver and the evils committed by the bosses, and said, nowhere, at any time has General Beaver dared to raise his voice to redeem the pledges he made at the outset of the present campaign. And though he was justly honored for losing a leg in the war, it would have been far better if he would not have lost his honor in Chicago. Mr. Hensel then spoke of the part the Democrats had taken in the war of the rebellion, showed how unjust was the assertion made by Republicans that they alone saved the nation, and said that when in that great time of danger people did not stand on the corner as soldiers filed past and pointing with finger of scorn, say "that fellow is a copperhead," should not hear it now.

Bright Prospects

The people of this state have long suffered the ills of bad government, and they orders from the bosses. The bosses have heretofore controlling the elections of this state, but this year 400,000 Democrats and 100,000 Independent Republican are going to have something to say about them. The speaker then showed how insignificant was the capital made out of the charges against Mr. Pattison of being young, of having been born, without his connivance, outside the state, and of having no executive ability. He characterized any change, made no matter by whom, against the character and actions of the gentlemen on the Democratic ticket as wholly false and vindictive. Mr. Hensel at the time, The fireman escaped uninthen closed his speech, which at frequent jured, but Christopher lost his life in the intervals was punctuated with great applause, by assuring the Democracy that the prospects for success were most encouraging, urged the Democrats of Lancaster county and city to turn out in force on election day, and asserted that it is only a question of Democratic majority, as Mr. Pattison's election is most certain.

her, Carrigan Speaks, The final speech of the evening was made by C. M. Carrigan, esq., of Philadelphia. He said: I never pass by Lancaster or come within its corporate limits without lifting my hat almost involuntarily in memory of the illustrious dead who lie buried here. It gives me great pleasure to meet the gallant Democracy of this city, for no Democrats are more worthy of the name than those who reside in mi nority counties. This magnificent recep tion is but a repetition of what has been going on from one end of the state to the The people are arising in their might to dethrone the bosses who have so long fattened on their ill-gotten spoils. We need have no fears that the man who has regenerated Philadelphia will not be equal to the task of saving the honor of our grand old state. I know not by what tricks the opposition are claiming their candidate's success, unless it be in the way in which a committee reported the washing away of a mill in a Connecticut town, The committee reported that "they had found the dam by the mill site, but not the mill by a d-d sight." The people of Peansylvania are determined to drive the bosses from the temples of power. From every portion of the state our candidate has been given God-speed. The remarkable enthusiasm with which he has been received recalls the days when Jackson was president, and Simon Sayder, the Democratic governor of Pennsylvania. They already see the handwriting on the wall, and like Belshazzar they have neglected repeated warnings until it is now too late. Richard talisman than that which Robert E. Pattison now possesses in his fight for the cause of the people. He will give us what we have been long denied-an equal and exact execution of the laws of the commonwealth.

Ohio has already spoken and Indiana will soon be heard in thunder tones answering her sister state. The Empire state, that peerless champion of Democratic reform, with her millions of population, is also with us. And the grand old commonwealth, founded by Penn, and made sacred by the adoption of the Declaration of Independence and the Federal Constitution within her borders, will not be found wanting. The people will, on the 7th of November next, plant the standard of reform on the citadel of the state, and carry into the gubernatorial chair the young man whom we have brought from Philadelphia.

At the termination of Mr. Carrigan's remarks the meeting broke up with tumultous cheers for Pattison and the whole ticket. Subsequently there was a reception at the Heister house, which was the headquarters of the party, and to which the people flocked by hundreds and kept Mr. Pattison busy shaking hands for over an hour. The City band, the Quarryville band and the Good Will (colored) band kept playing almost constantly and the excitement on the streets continued until long after midnight.

A notable feature of the occasion wa the presence of a large number of people from the rural districts, all of whom reported the same intense enthusiasm and party loyalty as was so unmistakably shown by the city Democrats.

During the evening a magnificent floral horseshoe was presented to Mr. Pattison. It was a beautiful tribute and received by the candidate with manifest pleasure. Controller Pattison and party returned to Philadelphia at 5 o'clock this morning.

A MOTHER'S CRIMES.

HORRID DEED OF A CRAZY WOMAN. The Wife of a Prominent New York Physician Bundfolds Her Babes and Blows Out Their Brains, Mrs. Seguin, aged 26 years, the wife of Dr. Edward C. Seguin, a noted specialist on diseases of the brain, shot and killed her three young children and then killed herself at No. 41 West Twentieth street, New York. There is no other cause known for the terrible act than insanity in the mother. The children were Edward D. aged 6 years; John Van Duyan, aged 5 years, and Jeannette, aged 4 years. They were all shot through the head and killed. The mother's death was as sudden and probably as painless as theirs.

The frightful feature of the tragedy is laugh, yet I am certain you will not have the manner of the murder. Mrs. Seguin these wrongs continued, and if you do took the children to an empty spare room, your duty, the prisons will be crowded at the top of the five-story house, in the absence of her husband and when the get the toothache." | Mr. Hensel then servants were engaged in the basement, and locked herself in with them. The servants believed they had gone out for a walk. What happened in the room will never be known, but when Dr. Amidon, The Republican candidate for governor Mrs. Seguin's brother, called at 5 o'clock, has gone all over the state, he has attendand with his suspicions aroused at the long absence of the family made a search of the house, mother and children were found dead, all shot through the head The children's hands were tied behind their backs with whipcord; they were blindfolded with handkerchiefs and from all appearances they must have been shot while playing "blindmen's buff" with their destroyer. They had been dead for at least an hour and a half and were quite cold. Three pistols were found in the room, all of large callibre, and all had been used.

It is in evidence that Mrs. Seguin had been despondent from physical causes for some time, but she had shown no symptoms of insanity. She was a small, slim woman of nervous temperament. Her domestic life was very happy, and there was no family trouble. Dr. Seguin returned home about 7 o'clock, and upon hearing the dreadful news was utterly prostrated. He is in a state of great men tal distress and under the care of a physician. Ilis wife was the daughter of a No ; you did not hear it then, and you | Massachusetts farmer. Wednesday Morning-In the case of Com'th vs. John Overholtzer, charged with fornication and bastardy with Emma Brubaker, late of Mt. Joy township but now a resident of this city, a verdict of not guilty was taken, the parties having arranged the case themselves.

A verdict of not guilty was taken in the case of Hugh M. Collins and John M. Swisher, supervisors of Colerain township, charged with neglect of duty, the road having been repaired before the indictment was found.

In the case of Israel Wenger, charged with false pretense, a demurrer was filed to the indictment. Com'th, vs. Mary Swayne. The defendant who is the wife of James Swayne, of this city, was charged with having committed adultery with John Albert, in August 1881. It was shown that the two had been together at a picnic on the day in question and upon that evening at the house of defendant's husband; other parties were with them but they were in different apartments. Albert has pleaded guilty to the charge of fornication with this woman and sentenced.

Solemn Religious Services. The feast of All Saints' Day, one of the most solemn in the ritual, was celebrated to-day in the Catholic, Episcopalian and Lutheran churches with marked ceremony. Vespers for the dead will be recited at 7 o'clock this evening at St. Mary's church. To-morrow will be All Souls' Day in the Catholic churches, when public prayers will be offered up for all those who are still undergoing the pains of purgatory. In St. Mary's church a requiem mass will be celebrated at 8 o'clock, at which the children of the parochial school and academy will attend in a body.

HYMEN'S DOINGS.

The Davis-Gundaker Suptlats.

Hymen's torch burned brightly amid a most brilliant scene at the residence of Mrs. Harry Gundaker, No. 143 North Queen street, on Tuesday evening. the happy occasion being the marriage of Miss Margie Gundaker, her niece, and John W. Davis, of Philadelphia, brother of Drs. S. T. and M. L. Davis, of this city. The ceremony was performed at 7 o'clock by the Rev. J. B. Shumaker, of St. Paul's Reformed church, only the immediate families of the contracting parties being present, after which a reception was held from 8 to 10 p. m., during which time the elegant parlors were filled by a brilliant throng of friends, many of them coming from a distance. The bride looked exquisitively lovely in a cream albatross cloth and surrah satin suit, en train, with Spanish lace sleeves and trimming, the skirt being also beautifully embroidered. Miss Annie Gundaker, sister of the bride, as first bridesmaid wore pale blue cashmere and surrah satin, trimmed with Spanish lace, while the second lady, Miss Ellie Gundaker, cousin of the bride, was most becomingly attired in lavender cashmere and brocade silk, elegantly embroidered. The groomsmen, Messrs. Williard L. Headley and Cyrus Moffett, of Philadelphia, wore the conventional black. The ushers were Dr. S. B. McCleery and John H. Schrum, of this city. The newlymade man and wife were the recipients of many warm, good wishes, as also of something more substantial, in the shape of a very large and varied assortment of both useful and recherche presents. Of course the refreshment of the many guests was not forgotten, and under the supervision of the well known caterer, Jos. Lebar, the sumptuously laden tables were a sight to see. The young couple, thus made one under such happy auspices, left on the 1:50 a. m. traia for Petersburg, Huntingdon county, where they will spend a few days, and afterwards take up their residence in Ph.ladelphia.

Campbett-Huber. Last evening Mr. C. Howard Campbell, of this city, was married to Miss Ida C. Huber, daughter of Mr. Bernard Huber. The ceremony took place at the residence of the bride's parents, North Queen street, above Chestnut, Rev. W. C. Robinson, of the Duke street M. E. church, being the officiating clergyman. The bride was made the recipient of many useful and valuable presents. After the wedding the happy couple received the congratulations of a very large party of friends, who were most hospitably entertained, a bounteous set-out being spread in the dining room. We extend the young people our best wishes for uninterrupted happiness.

EAST PENNSYLVANIA SYNOD The Harrisburg Conference in Session at

The Harrisburg conference of East Pennsylvania synod of the Evangeheal Lutheran church met on Monday evening in Bethany Lutheran church of Millers.

The opening sermon was preached by Rev. C. Reimensnyder, of Laneaster, president of the conference during the ast year, from the words, Acts 6:5-'And they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Ghost.'

The speaker said that the prosecution and martyrdom of Stephen in the early church was the result of his faithfulness and earnest and determined devotion to the cause of Christ. Stephen was an admirable imitation of the spirit and obedience of the Divine Master to the cause of religion and humanity. His call was a testimony of the inward power of the Holy Ghost to sonetify and of the outward good judgment of the aportles in choosing him to the office of deacop. He was an illustration of the importance of lay workmen in the church and the great results and good that is accomplished through bumble instrumentalities by the influence of the grace of

OBITUARY.

Beath of Dr. George A. Borting. Dr. George A. Horting, the well-known dental surgeon, died at his residence corner North Queen and Orango streets this morning, in the 45th year of his age. Dr. Horting, who was never a robust man, had been in impaired health for some months past, but his illness was not considered serious until about three weeks ago, when he was compelled to relinquish practice and take to his bed. He cent med to sick and died at the time above stated from consumption of the stomach.

Dr. Horting was a native of Ephrata, but came with his fathers family to Lancaster when a boy. He studied dentistry with the late Dr. Whiteside, with whom he remained in partnership for several years, practising his profession in East King street. Subsequently the partnership was dissolved and Dr. Horting removed his office and residence to the corner of North Queen and Orange streets, where he practised successfully for many vears. He was a pleasant, well educated gontleman, and was regarded as a skillful surgeon, an expert mechanic, and careful operator. He leaves a wife, formerly a Miss Gorgas, and five children-one son and four daughters.

Surprising a Minister. A pleasant surprise party took place at Marietta on Monday evening. A large number of citizens made a raid on the house of Rev. James Wood, of the M. E. Church, ; sectarianism was ignored and Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Methodists and Catholics partook, each carrying with them tokens of good will in an abundant supply of provisions. Tables and chairs were loaded and the floor of the dining room partly covered with bags and baskets of edibles, and to the honor of the raiders they left without eating all up that they brought. A pleasant hour was spent in social converse, when all left. The pleas ant time had and good feeling shown is a hint, or should be, to the batchelor ministers of the Presbyterian, Episcopalian and Reformed churches of the place.
