MAKE! A SPEECH TO HIS TOWNSMEN. A Multitude's Wild Welcome-An Ovation Pronounced the Most Remarkable for

Many Years in Philadelphia. Men who have been attending political meetings in Philadelphia for years declare that they recollect no crush so great as that caused in Horticultural hall Saturday night by the throng awaiting the appearance of City Controller Pattison to make his first speech in Philadelphia since his nomination for the governorship. Pressing hard against the front of the platform and thereby burying the reporters, choking not only the passages in the body of the hall, but also those in the galleries, stretching out to the middle of Broad street and far up and down the sidewalk, was an applauding multitude that would have afforded an exceptionally inspiring subject for the pencil of a pictorial artist. The pressure made it impossible to open the doors leading to the back of the stage and had not the platform been so high the several hundred men who were the several hundred men who were packed together up there would hardly have felt safe. Many ladies who had tickets for the stage were obliged either to stand behind the wings or leave the building, and they wished that they had gone with the scores of other ladies who were down in the hall, where the opportunity to see the candidate appeared to satisfy them for the injury done to their hands to the resignation, and they were down in the hall, where the opportunity to see the candidate appeared to satisfy them for the injury done to their ladies. The bonnets and dresses in the crush. The crowd that could not get into the hall Harrisburg to settle up my accounts. waited for nearly an hour before it dispersed with murmurs of disappointment. Chairman Harrity called the meeting to order, and the cheering that welcomed him was repeated when ex-Mayor Fox was called to preside. The multitude was informed that Mr. Pattison could not get back from the Conshohocken and Norris

"The letter to Mr. Chandler," he added, back from the Conshohocken and Norristown meetings until shortly after nine o'clock. Meantime they were kept in a day I received a number of commissions state of high enthusiasm by speeches from ex-Mayor Fox, ex-Senator Yerkes, ex-District Attorney James, of Northamp informed Mr. Chandler of my resignation, ton, and S. Davis Page. References to Governor Hoyt's broadside against boss-ism were wildly applauded. Ex-Senator Yerkes struck a sympathetic chord when prised at the character of his letter. At he spoke of "Pattison the clerk," as he this late day his action will neither benefit said the Stalwarts called the candidate.

"That's the kind of a clerk we want." was shouted from the rear of the hall, making the throng cheer. "Yes," continued Mr. Yerkes, "and when he gets his hands on things in Harrisburg, what will he find?"

"Give us an easy one," cried another man, and the crowd laughed and cheered Ex-District Attorney James' reference to Messrs Randall and Wallace as cham-next president of the United States." The cheers were given lustily. Mr. Page, whose appearance caused an uproar in which shouts of "our next city treasurer!" were heard, was addressing the throng upon the evils that "rings had brought upon the city when he was suddenly and unaccountably interrupted by shouting as wild as an Indian warwhoop. The controller had arrived, with State Senator Gordon, from his trip to Montgomery county, and men near the stage caught a glimpse of the candidate's face before he stepped out from behind

When he did appear, tall, dark, handsome, keen eyed, aggressive-looking and vigorous, the tumultuous climax was Every person in the hall was standing and cheering. Four thousand voices joined in one mighty shout that made the building shake. This was only the beginning. Cheers, three times three, mingled with shouts of the candidates name, a thundering clatter of hands, canes and feet, cries of "death to bosses," "Down with rings," and "No more plun-dering contractors," were some of the things that could be distinguished in the tumultuous demonstration of welcome. In vain did Chairman Fox and the smiling candidate himself wave their hands for silence. Even grave men and gentle women appeared to be completely carried away by the enthusiasm. The uproar, according to old gentlemen who spoke of it afterwards, was unparalleled in all their experience. It lasted more than five minutes, and throughout Mr. Pattison's earnest and dignified speech there were equally enthusiastic demonstrations of shorter contin-Mr. Pattison's speech was in the same earnest aggressive vein that has distinguished all of his campaign utterances, and at times the controller could not proceed on account of the wild applause that

W. U. Hensel, chairman of the Democratic state committee, followed Mr. Pattison in a fifteen minute speech. On the front row of seats a lady of apparently sixty years was noticeable from the frequency and vigor with which she applauded the speech of Pattison and Hensel. At the conclusion of the Democratic state chairman's remarks the old lady arose, and walking to the edge of the platform, had a moment's conversation with the chairman of the evening, who led Mr. Pattison to the front of the stage and intro duced him to the lady, amid the thunders of applause from the vast audience. The lady was Mrs. Earle, widow of the late Thomas Earle, who figured as prime mover in obtaining the reform constitution of Pennsylvania in 1837. She is also the mother of George H. Earle, one of the leading reformers of Philadelphia. Mr. Pattison spoke for a moment with her and, after shaking hands, retired to his seat on the platform, the applause meanwhile continuing from the audience, who going on.

had risen on tip-toe to see what was John Cadwallader, the candidate for Congress in opposition to General H. H. Bingham; John L. Grim, the Democratic candidate for sheriff; Walter E. Rex, the fusion candidate for register of wills, and W. Wurts-Dundas, the opponent of Chas.
O'Neill for Congress, made speeches, after which Chairman Fox declared the meeting adjourned. People in their anxiety to shake hands with Mr. Pattison at the close of the meeting climbed over tables and chairs in their hurry to reach the platform. After enduring several moments of the crush Mr. Pattison quietly made his exit by a side entrance and, accompanied by a few friends, started for home, while a large crowd waited in vain at the front entrance to the hall to welcome him.

Patt son in Montgomery County. Controller Pattison accompanied State Senator Gordon, John R. Read and others, left the city at 4 o'clock 5 afternoon. He stopped in Conshocken, and at the depot, where the greater part of the population of the town had gath-ered to welcome him at the very time General Beaver had a small audience in Washita hall, a few squares distant. He was introduced to the multitude by Henry Tracy, of the Philadelphia bar and a resident of Conshohocken. Mr. Pattison made a shor; speech. The crowd was extremely enthusiastic. SECRETARY QUAY RESIGNS.

The Result of Governor Hoyt's Letter-Col. Governor Hoyt's letter espousing the cause of the Independent Republicans has borne fruit in the resignation of Colonel Matthew S. Quay, secretary of the commonwealth. Although the resguation was telegraphed to Harrisburg on Friday af ternoon the first intimation of its existence came to Philadelphia Saturday in the shape of a telegram from Harrisburg announcing that B. F. Chandeler, assistant secretary of the commonwealth, had received, over the signature of Col. Quay, the following telegram:

"Governor Hoyt received my resignation by telegraph at 6:30 yesterday even-ing and I am no longer secretary of the commonwealth. I presume he will consult Stewart and Pattison and appoint a successor shortly, who will attend to the unsigned commissions.'

Wm. M. Bunn late last night followed Colonel Quay's example. In a letter to Adjutant General Latta he tenders his resignation as assistant commissary general of the state militia and requests his immediate accep'ance. A second letter he addressed to Governor Hoyt, saying :

"Your recent open letter to that eminent and distinguished banker, journalist and statesman, Wharton Barker, esq., upon whose Atlantean shoulders securely rests pions of protection to the industries of the fabric of the social, civil, religious and Pennsylvania was warmly applauded, the political worlds, has convinced me it would mention of Mr. Randall's name prompting be utterly impossible for me to remain an somebody to propose three cheers for "the officer upon your staff without, possibly, periling the harmonious and mutually pleasant relations the efficiency of the service demands."

An Infant Beheaded by its Mother. A dispatch from Virginia City, Nev. says: The wife of Daniel Glassett, a miner, left her here in a fit of iusanity on Thursday night, taking her babe and two small children. She returned yesterday with the two older children, having been in the mountains all the previous night in heavy snow storm. When questioned about the babe she explained that it had annoyed her by crying and she had cut its head off with a hatchet. Her statement broved true, the officers finding the body of the child with the head severed from it. The woman has been locked up as insane." A boy named Robinson, in alighting from a street car in Chicago, fell in front of a cable car and had his head severed from his body. A Mother and Daughter Massacred. Charles McCarthy, colored, found his mother in her room on Rampart street, New Orleans, with a deep cut across her neck and unable to speak. He went to inform her sister on Marias street, and found her dead, with her throat cut. Mrs. McCarthy is not expected to recover, but has given information that she was cut by Peter Johnson. It is believed that he also cut Ellen's throat. The murderer escaped. Jealousy is supposed to have prompted the crime.

Mysterious Disappearance Explained. Henry L. Clapp, of the firm of Fair-banks & Co., New York, whose disappearance has greatly alarmed his frends has cabled his safe arrival in Europe. He went to see a friend off by steamer and concluded to accompany him down the bay and return by the pilot boat. The boat left suddenly, while he was talking with his friend in the saloon, and he was obliged to continue his voyage. He will return next week.
