MONDAY EVENING NOV. 13, 1882,

Kicked to Death.

Congressman Barr, who has been re elected by the skin of his teeth, is of the opinion that the Republican party is beyond hope of resurrection and that it has been done to death by the stupidity of its managers. There never was such an aggravated instance, he thinks. of self-destruction in a party. In both these views Mr. Barr is confirmed by general public opinion, but it hardly lies in his mouth to proclaim them unless he aims to pillory himself as one of the de strovers of his party. Mr. Barr can hardly mean to claim for himself any very superior power as a politician, in view of the very narrow escape he had from defeat in a strong Republican district. If he, however, intends to frankly expose himself to public criticism as one of the very stupid political managers he rails against he will not find many to say him nay and to assure him that, whatever the culpability of other Republicans, his skirts are clear. Mr. Barr is not a very great man himself, but in that he does not differ from the average of the men he has been associated with in the Republican party of Pennsylvania, who have been its ruling element. They have been a very common lot of fellows, indeed, from Senator Cameron down or up. There is hardly one among them who is esteemed as of more than ordinary mental capacity. That such a set of managers should bring their party to its present state of humiliation was: matter of certainty in course of time. The party was destroyed in the moment when it put itself in their hands. They probably do not think so; no doubt Mr. Barr, when he proclaims the self-destruction of his party regards his friends as the only saviours it had. Probably his idea is that of Simon Cameron, the head of the faction that has so long swung the party, that it has finally come to grief, not by reason of its having been so long and selfishly administered in the interest of the few who had it by the throat, but because they became alarmed at the opposition howl they raised and timidly threw themselves open to defeat by consenting to parley with their foes. Simon Cameron is of those who believe that even in a democracy a majority may be always compelled with a strong hand. The old man had so much success at playing the game that he thinks it will always win; but he left it to men who had not his velvety hand; and he fails to understand that it is possible for the most submissive men

To Mr. Wm. F. Harrity, chairman of the Democratic city executive committee of Philadelphia, and his assistants, the Democratic party of the state owes a debt of gratitude. The confidence which his integrity and capacity for organization inspired had much to do with creating the conditions of harmony in that betroubled city, which made Mr. Pattison's nomination possible. 'At the Harrisburg convention he was no less potential for Philadelphia's candidate, and when he became the nominee for that have not been felt in the politics of that city for many years. He was able to command for the party resources that had hitherto failed it; he allowed no division of responsibility nor of authority in the city organization and he knew every weak place in the line. The aggregate vote polled attests the measure of his fitness for his place, and, considering the desperate onset made in Phila delphia during the last ten days of the campaign, the fact that Beaver came out of it with a small plurality attests most forcibly the efficiency of the Democratic organization there.

hands Mr. Cameron's party has had the life kicked out of it.

THERE seems to be a universal acquiescence in the belief that the Democratic party has come into power to stay for a long term, " provided it behaves itself in an acceptable manner." The Republicans feel confident it will blunder, many of its members fear while they hope it will not. It must be admitted that the hungriness for office, which'some of its own people are already manifesting, is neither to their credit nor calculated to help the elect of the party to freedom from embarrassment in awarding the patronage which falls to them to

As usual people are nominating them selves for office. This is not a good slart. Men who are conspicuously fit for place will be singled out by popular appreciation, and those who are blatant in their own praise or in behalf of their own tion in Ireland. "claims" only advertise their own defects.

We sincerely trust that those who have the appointing power will take time and will be given some freedom in the selection of their appointees-for upon this the following devout aspiration: "I first step of Democratic administration depends largely the success or failure ty which shall lead me, in any sphere of that is to attend it.

GEN. BUTLER has in times past done a great many things for which he has deservedly received the severe condemnation of the Democratic party. He has, nevertheless, somewhat rehabilitated himself in popular esteem and confidence by a courageous attack upon Republican abuses, and his election as governor of Massachusetts has caused quite a refused to pay for. A man named Michquaking among the dry bones there. The Democracy certainly can put him forward with pardonable pride in the comparison of him with such sniveling hypocrites as Geo. F. Hoar, and in Butler's old days, rich and independent as he is, he has no incentive to give Massachusetts anything less than good government. If he does this be will earn the confidence which the Demogracy have exhibited by electing him, and the fervor with which he has promised it gives reasonable hope of fulfillment. Nevertheless there is no foundation in reason for the chatter about him being a presidential nominee.

THE Harrisburg Telegraph urges Hoyt o resign. This is an original idea.

THE Democrats have brought out their torches since the election is over. The brass band sounds more melodoius since the returns are in.

SAM F. BARR thinks there is no future for the Republican party. Certainly there is no use for his part of it except to furnish a subject for the coroner.

A TRAMP in this state, chagrined at the tion as leeches on the body politic is now left him 11,105 in the minority.

THE flowers are still in bloom that greover the garden walls of politics. At Gen Beaver's home on Saturday night a Demo cratic jollification meeting headed by Democratic county chairman adjourned to serenade the Republican candidate for gov ernor. It was a courtly compliment from the victors to the vanquished.

That veteran humbug Wm. D. Kelly steps to the front to say that his part deserved the chastisement and "on the whole the change in Pennsylvania wil prove beneficial. It is to be hoped tha it has put an end forever to boss rule which was really the curse of the state The Democrats elected from Pennsylvania are as good protectionists as you will fine anywhere. There is a good deal of buncombe about this free trade cry." Which is all true, and nobody indulges in this 'buncombe" more freely than Kelly.

Since the close of the term of Wm. F Packer, last Democratic governor of Penn sylvania, elected in 1857, the people of the state have had bitter experience of Repub lican rule, with its leaders favoring the most extreme power that could be attain ed by any one man. The battle for re form has long been going on, and reached its consummation at last Tuesday's election in the choice of Governor Pattison who will well serve the people of the commonwealth by raising the standard o public duty and honest reform. It is no easy task, for he needs to expose and eradicate the abuses of over twenty years with fearless and impartial deter

THE Hon, Amos Townsend, present member of Congress from the Cleveland district, is being urged by his friends as the strongest man who could be nominated for governor of Ohio by the Republicaus but Mr. Townsend says in his opinion Ber Butterworth is the strongest man available for the position. It is not known whether the morals of Ohioaus are very greatly re to become in time tired of being kicked, laxed; but it is justly feared that the un and ambitious to be the kickers. Among savory frankness of Butterworth might go a great way in corrupting the morals of a state. It will no doubt be decided, in the event of his nomination, to print, as a postscript upon bills announcing that he will speak, an carnest request that the ladies will please not come to hear him,

THE Philadelphia Eccning News appears to believe that Gen. Beaver would make a successful candidate for the vice presidency in 1884. The News would, of course, give him its full support, but if it follows the Stalwart style of campaign literature and continues its attacks upon the Independent movement it is likely the state, Mr. Harrity applied himself that its words will be welcomed rather to the organization of the party in Phil- more by the Democrats than anyone clse. adelphia with a skill and faithfulness Just now the News is venting its spleen upon the Independents, whom it charac terizes as "all weak, cowardly souls, who whine about what might have been done if the party had only listened to them and followed their wise counsels." The words very much flavor of Gen. Beaver's style of speaking, which did not tend to increase anybody's respect for the Stalwart candidate.

At Lawrence, Mass., Saturday afternoon Thomas Kennedy and two other men entered a saloon on Chestnut street and called for liquor, which they received, but ael Douahy, who was sitting in the place, remonstrated with them, when the trio attacked him. He drew a knife, and in the row Kennedy was stabbed in the back and abdomen. The latter wound is pronounced fatal. Donahy was arrested.

THE OFFICIAL VOTE OF THE STATE A Comparison with the Figures of 1881-Pattison's Plurality 39,497. Official returns showing the total vote of the election last week have been received from all but one county, Forest, whose vote is so light that it will not, when received, materially change the figures given below. General Beaver had 310,460 of the votes cast for governor; Mr. Pattison, 350.155 and Mr. Stewart 48,602, a total of 709,217. This is an increase of 136,096 over the vote for state treasurer a year wholesale defeat of the Republican party, ago, and an almost corresponding decrease ended his life by suicide. His example from the presidential vote of 1880. Democratic Jolitfications. The Democrats of Bethlehem and South Bethlehem had a jollification parade Saturday evening. From 500 to 600 men, with banners and transparencies, falsefaces and mottoes, traversed the streets. At Lehigh river a steamer, manned by a living efligy of George M. Robeson and conferees, were waiting to escort the Republicans up to the highwaters of Salt river and bring the Democrats down. As a funny pageant the affair was a saccess. Good feeling on all sides prevailed. The Democrats at Pottstown had an immense jo:lification. All the prominent Dem oc:ats had their houses illuminated and during the parade there were fireworks. The transparencies were numerous and bore very appropriate inscription.

DEATH OF A HERO OF THE WAR.

llo is Killed Upon the Cathroad Track by Preight Train. Charles H. Vansant, of Bucks county around whose name history has wreathed a garland for heriosm during the late war, was killed at Cornwall station on the New York-division of the Pennsylvania railroad Friday night by a freight train. Vansant was the man who at the battle of Ball's Bluff displayed consumate bravery by six times rescuing the colors of his regiment from the rebels. He was a colorbearer in Colonel E. D. Baker's California regiment, and at Balls' Bluff, during a charge, Colonel Baker was shot. Notwithstanding the bullets fell like hail, Vansant gallantly bore his wounded commander from the field, and returning rescued the colors from the enemy. They were captured by the Confederates and regained five different times afterward by Vansant in a hand to hand combat, and the heroic Pennsylvanian finally succeeded in getting away with them by running. He was closely pursued by the rebels, and as they gained upon him he jumped into the Potomac and buried the flag in six feet ef water. Then swimming the river to the opposite shore, he took refuge in the Federal lines. After the engagement Vansant again returned to the spot in the Poto-mae where he had buried the stars and stripes, with a company of Northern soldiers, dived for the flag, brought it up and burried it on the river bank under a stone. After the war be returned to Pennsylvania and has since cultivated a little strip of land near Cornwall station, in Bucks county. His house overlooks the railroad, and is within a short distance of it. He has recently been addicted to drink and spent a great deal of his time about the station conversing with the employees of the railroad company. Last Friday night he was seen standing on the railroad track near a freight train, and a few minutes after the station master was startled by a cry. He ran out to see from whence it came, and discovered that the train had moved up the switch and in its passage it had run over Vansant and cut him in two. The man who exhibited such daring courage at Ball's Bluff was dead and his body was taken into the station. The deputy coroner of Bristol began an inquest into the circumstances surrounding his death, but in the absence of certain witnesses the inquiry was adjourned. Vansant was fifty years old, and leaves a wife and several children. His heroic conduct at Ball's Bluff is the subject of special reference in the histories of the late war.

The next morning a Gatling gun was placed on the beach and a force landed and destroyed all the canoes. The Indians fled to the woods and the village was shelled, the huts that remained standing after the shelling being looted and burned. Several warriors who ventured out of shelter were killed. This severe lesson was necessary, as the tribe has been guilty of many acts of cruelty to that Indians had taken possession of one of the American fur trading company's stations and held all the employees prisoners, Commander Healy went to their relief and found the Indians very hostile. He shelled their village and released all the prisoners. The village was totally

W. U. Henset, Esq.

DEAR SIR: In appreciation of your services, and recognizing the fact of your zealous and telling work for the success of the Democratic party as its chairman during the late campaign, we invite you to a public reception at your old home at this place at such a time as you may suggest. Your old neighbors and friends, J. M. Deaver, James McCallough, Jas. Montgomery, John M. Witmer, H. E. Raub, Jas. K. Alexander, W. B. Curley, Ezra B. Fritz, Sanders Edwards, Robert Evans, B. F. Worth, Wm. H. Kincer, S. Milton Hess, W. F. Gaul, H. G. Oram Phillips, W. S. Hastings. MR. HENSEL'S ACCEPTANCE. LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 13, 1882. GENTLEMEN: I have observed with pleasure the disposition of the Democrats of Penusylvania to celebrate in a moderate but emphatic manner, the deliverance of their commonwealth from boss rule. I believe that our opponents expect nothing less from us, and that many who have hitherto acted with them will be glad to join in our festivities. I am unable to accept the many invitationt to attend these celebrations which come to me from all parts of the state, but the call from my old home and from the friends of my boyhood, who have never ceased to be my riends, is one that I feel it a duty no less than a pleasure to heed. I will be with you on next Saturday evening. Very respectfully, yours, W. U. HENSEL.

Messrs, J. M. Deaver, Jas. McCullough, H. E. Raub, and others.

The Same Old Coon. One of the funniest animals in town is a coon which is owned by Copeland & Weise, of the Spreeher house. They purchased the annimal on market and he is very tame. There are two dogs at the saloon and they roll around the floor with the coon and play with him like kittens. They never bite each other and it is a happy family. On Tuesday night after the news of the election came in the coon disappeared and he was not found for two days. He was so disgusted with the returns that he took refuge in the ground. With the some courtesy which was manifested to Gen. Beaver by his Democratic neighbors the other night, a Democratic rooster has invited this coon to attend the parade tomorrow night and he has accepted the

MOUNT. JOY MATTERS.

A PREACHER ON THE COURTS.

surprised at "the Rabbie Reveling in Repulsive Proceedings"-Late Happenings About the Borough

-An Accident.

Last evening Rev. Charles Roads, pastor of the M. E. church, Mount Joy, preached a sermon on the theme, "Some ssons taught in the Lancaster court house." The reverend gentleman is sectary of the Law and Order league of that borough. As an executive officer of the association he has a suit against two hotel keepers, for selling liquor to minors, pend ing in the court. During the late session he attended court several days. In his discourse last night he presented pictures of his impressions of that institution, the people who go there out of euriosity, and a justification of his course in the prosecution. If is remarks were based on Acts xxv., 11: "For if I be an offender, or bave committed anything worthy o' death, I refuse not to die; but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Casar." These were the words of Paul who stood before Festus accused by the Jews. Paul called on the civil authority for protection, and the speaker referred to the fact as a precedent for Christians. The church has an important mission to perform. It needs to expand its scope. It is now per-forming a glorious work—the saving of souls. But what is the use of having laws unenforced? They are some of the results of Christianity, and it is the duty of Christians to have the law enforced. He was surprised to see the rabble who attend the court to drink in and revel in the repulsive proceedings. He was favorably impressed with the case exercised in the trial of the criminals, and commended the way in which justice was dealt out. In the jury system he saw much good ; it impressed the jurors with the majesty of the law. He felt a Christian influence in the proceedings and much confidence in their right results. He spoke earnestly. impressing one that he, as a Christian and a member of the league, is performing a conscientious duty in the reformation which has been commenced and is meeting with a strong opposition.

Kaltrond Accident. On Saturday morning Lancaster accommodation, eastward bound, struck the hind part of a wagon crossing the road at the passenger station at Florin. John Welsh, aged 75 years, of Mount Joy, was knocked out of the wagon and thrown a distance of thirty-five feet. He was badly bruised by the fall, but it is thought that he will recover. The two horses ran several miles before they were caught, the Methodist church, has gone to Phila and one of them is badly cut. The wagon is a complete wreck.

The Borough Budget. The prospects for a new church for the Rev. C. B. Whitcomb are good. His followers have formed themselves into a congregation, and they hear him preach every Sunday morning and evening in Odd Fellows' hall. A largely attended Sunday school meet at the same place every Sunday West Main and Market streets, has been purchased, and we have it on good authority that that is to be the site for the new The third lecture of the course in the M. D. church, was delivered on Friday evening by Dr. Milburn.
