special Correspondence of the Intelligences. The first and grandest object of interest The first and grandest object of interest to the sight-seer in Washington is the capitol, a magnificent structure, conspicuous on entering the city and prominent from every section of the neighboring county for many miles around. It is situated in the eastern portion of the city, and stands on the front of a plateau 90 feet above the level of the low tile water of the Datomag river. This commanding position Potomac river. This commanding position was chosen by George Washington, and the corner stone was laid by him at the outheast corner of the central edifice.

This magnificent fabric, rising over the centre of the whole edifice, was commenced in 1856. This dome, semi-ellipsoidal in form, is built of cast iron, weighs nearly 4,000 tons and rises to a heighth of 228 feet from the basement floor to the lantern, the latter being 52 feet high and 17 feet in diameter. The statue of Liberty, which surmounts the whole, is of bronze, measures 16 feet 6 inches high, and was

The rotunda is the circular room occu-pying the centre of the building. Its floor is paved with freestone. Its walls between he pilasters rising from the floor are decorated with eight large historical paintings, 18 by 12 fcot cach. The oldest of these are the four painted by Colonel John Trumbull, a member of the Continental army, who served on the staff of General Trumbull, a member of the Continental army, who served on the staff of General Washington. These pictures represent the signing of the Declaration of Independence; the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga; the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown; and the resignation of Washington as commander-in-chief of the army in 1783. They possess a peculiar interest and value on account of the portraits they contain the artist having been associated with most of the characters represented. They were ordered by Congress at a cost of $8,000 cach. The remaining pictures are the embarkation of the Pilgrims in the Speedwell at Delft Haven, by Robert W. Weir; the landing of Columbus, by John Vanderlyn; De Soto discovering the Mississippi, by William H. Powell; and the Baptism of Pocohontas, by John Gadsby Chapman. These paintings cost the government from $10,000 to $20,000 each. Just above them in alternate panels are four carvings in bass-relief, representing the head of Columbus, the discoverer of the the Now World: the head of Cabot, the discoverer tradegment the number of this sall but numerous new shades will also be worn in dress material, and this will admit of most striking and elegant combinations. The favorite arrangement will probably be to have the shoulder gloves the same shade exactly as the dress, although soveral stylish girls at recent wedding receptions were the gloves in different shades. The best shoulder loves cost about $10 a pair, and when they match the dress they loom even higher up yet in the X's. Several prominent Philadelphia ladies have had dresses and gloves on this plan imported this fall and more are having similar outfits gotten up in New York. Where Are the Young Men New?

New York Sun. A few years ago, when the Republicans were rolling up majorities in the Western states, a Chicago journal published a no-table article, in which the ground was taken that the future of the Democratic party was far from bright with promise, because the spirited young men of the union must fall naturally into the ranks of the Republicans.

That was the party of success, the party which appealed to the imaginations of youth, and in which young men could hope for the gratification of their political D. B. Hos. 'tier & Son, ambitions. Ever since they had known anything of politics, almost from their birth, Republicanism had been dominant. ambitions. Ever since they had known Its name was associated with the downfall of slavery, and it arrogated to itself the triumph of the union arms in the civil war. The Republican was the party of a glorious and inspiring record, the Democratic was the party of defeat and hope-downfall of the Whigs. And the young vote of the country has had a powerful share in bringing about that result. It refuses to be inspired by the glorious Republican past of which the Chicago Times VISIT TO WASSINGTON, D. C. spoke, but is rather disgusted and outraged by present corruption, extravagance and abuse. The young men have enlisted on the other side.

> Philadelphia Times Society Editor. It is a long time since bare arms prevailed for full dress, to any very general extent, for young unmarried ladies in Philadelphia, but a departure has been taken this season, which may lead to it, although at present the move is only approximate. The fancy in full dress, as well as for recention dress is for the nice. well as for reception dress, is for the pic-turesque, and accordingly the short, full waists, with shoulder-straps and loose, flowing, narrow skirts, are to be greatly in vogue, and with them gloves reaching as near to the shoulder as possible will be worn. Whatever may be said about bare arms, they are comfortable compared with arms that are laced or buttoned up and clasped in tight encasements. It seems to be conceded, however, that the gloved arms are prettiest and there appears to be some compensation in the fact that the beautiful feature of the shoulder. which is shown by this compromise of the glove arrangement, would not be disclosed without them, as few would be brave enough to wear the shoulder-strap waists with bare arms.

One of the beauties of the gloved arm is that colors will be worn even with white, but numerous new shades will also be worn in dress material, and this will adambus, the discoverer of the the New Paris and London. Fortunately for tradesmen the number of this class is very
