MOTHER EGIPT. BY JOAQUIN MILLER. Dark-browed she broods with weary lids Beside her Sphynx and Pyramids.

With low and never litted head. If she be dead, respect the dead; If she be weeping, let her weep; if she be sleeping, let her sleep; For lo, this woman named the stars ! She suckled at her tawny dugs Your Moses while you recked in wars And prowled your woods, nude, painte

Then back, brave England, back in peace To Christian Isles of fat increase Go back ! Else bid your high priests take Your great bronze Christs and connon make Take down their cross from proud St. Pani And coin it into cannon balls ! You tent not far from Nazareth.

Your camp spreads where His child-ted strayed. It Christ had seen this work of death !

If Christ had seen those ships invade ! I think the patient Christ had said, "Goback, brave men! Take up your dea Drawdown your great ships to the seas ; Repass the gates of Hercule Go back to wife with babe at breast,

And leave lorn Egypt to her rest," is Christ then dead as Egypt is? Ah, Mother Egypt, torn in twain ! There's something grimly wrong in this-Some like some gray, sail woman slain,

What would you have your mother do?

Hath she not done enough for you ? Go back! And when you learn to read Come read this obelisk. Her deed Like yonder awful forchead is Disdainful silence like to this, What lessons have you raised in stone To passing nations that shall stand? Like years to hers will leave you lone

And level as you yellow sand.

St. George, your Hons, whence are they? From awful, silent Africa. This Egypt is the lion's lair ; Boware, young Albion, beware! I know the very Nile shall rice To drive you from this sacrifice. And if the seven plauges should come, The red seas swallow sword and steed, Lo! Christian lands stand mute and dumb To see thy more than Moslem deed.

LUKLINE AND HER LOVER. Why Berwyck Hertherington Wished the Dog Tied at Eight O'Clock Sharp.

Chicago Tribune. Night in St. Louis. scated in the parlor of her father's magnificent residence, Lurline Loosehair allowed her taper fingers to wander idly over the keys of the piano, and, obedient to her delicate touch, there floated forth upon the air the strains of that beautiful "Since Papa Tore His Pants." And as she sat there, absorbed in the sad reflections to which the music gave rise, the door opened softly and Berwyck Hetherington entered the room. Lurline, all the sensez of her passionate nature absorbed in the music, continued to play, not knowing that the man she loved, and to win whose pocketbook in return she would have hustled around with dread earnestness, was standing by her side. But at last Berwyck placed his hand tly on her shoulder, and by that in definable sense that tells us of a human presence, although we see it not, she knew that somebody was around. Turning quickly she saw Mr. Hetherington.

"I did not know you were here," she said, a blush flooding the face that such a little time ago was pale and calm, "or I should not have played so confidently." "Can you not favor me with something more?" he said. The blush grows deeper and more vivid now and the drooping eyes are moist with toars. But in an instant she recovers her self-possession, and looks at him in the frank, houest way in which Cincinnati girls ask for more pie.

"I cannot play any other piece," she says, half sadly, half defiantly.
"Are you sure of this, Lurline?" Berwyck asks, bending over her in a loving way. "Think well before you speak," he pend the future happiness of two young

"I am quite sure," she says. "Then you must be my wife." And as he speaks these words Berwick Hether ington's face lights up with a rapturous, Schuyler Colfax smile. "Do you love me?" he asks.

For answer, she put her arms around his neck, kisses him coldly behind the left ear, and then a great falls upon them.

Presently Berwick rises to go "You will come again to-morrow evening?" she "Yes," he replies, "you may tio the dog at 8."

"And you will not regret your choice?" "Never," he says, in clear, steady tones. "I have spent the best years of my life looking for a girl who could play only one tune on the piano."

BATTLESNAUES AS PETS.

A Jefferson County Man Playing with Reptiles at the Zoo.

"Rattlesnake Joe," otherwise Joseph Hoffman, the snake charmer, from Jefferson county, whose feats in handling poisonous reptiles have gained him a wide reputation, was a frequent visitor to the Philadelphia Zoological Garden last week. He came to the city with a number of rattlesnakes, which he contributed to the collection now in the garden. The reptiles retained their poisonous fangs, but this did not prevent Joe from lifting the snakes out of their cages and coiling them about his neck and shoulders like hempen ropes. The charmer places no reliance in satety by removing a serpent's fangs. He says that they grow again in a week's time, and are as dangerous as before. Hoffman is accustomed to handling snakes just from the mountains with reckless freedom. He is not afraid to approach the fiercest rattlers that haunt the wilder ness and to seize the reptiles by the neck. Indeed, whenever he wants any specimens Hoffman goes to the mountains, bag in hand, and, cautiously approaching the crevices where the snakes bask in the sun so as not to disturb them, he deftly grasps the serpent by the neck and puts it into the bag. He says that he uses no precautions, finding that coolness and a steady nerve are all that is required to conquer a serpent. He has been accompanied on these collecting trips by his brothers and a neighbor, all of whom possess the requisite coolness and steadiness for engaging in the capture with comparative safety. Hoffman disclaims using any charms to conquer snakes. He does not believe the so-called charmers use mesmeric power to influence the snakes they handle, declaring that for himself he has only found it necessary to handle the reptiles with extreme carefulness, so as not to arouse their anger. Hoffman has been accustomed to play with rattlesnakes for several years past, and has not yet suffered any accident. He admits that it is very dangerous sport, and may yet cause his death. He has found it quite profitable to exhibit these raptiles, noted for the deadliness of their venom, at county fairs and other gatherings, always toying with them in the most familiar manner. DELEVAN, Wig., Sep. 21, 1878. GENTS—I have taken not quite one bottle of the Hop Sitters. I was a feetle old man of 78 when I got it. To-day I am as active and feel 28 well as I did at 30. I see a great many that need such a medicine.

A Baptist Minister's Experience.

I am a Baptist Minister, and before I even thought of being a clergyman, I graduated in medicine, but left a lucrative practice for my present profession, 49 years ago. I was for many years a sufferer from quinsy: "Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured me." I was also troubled with hoarseness, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil always relieved me. My wife and child had diphtheria, and "Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured them," and if taken in time it will cure seven out of ten. I am confident it is a cure for the most obstinate cold or cough, and if any one will take a small teaspoon and half fill it with the Oil, and then piace the end of the spoon in one nostril and draw the Oil out of the spoon into the head by sniffing as hard as they can, until the Oil falls over into the throat, and practice that twice a week, I don't care how offensive their head may be, it will clean it out and cure their catarrh. For deainess and carache it has done wonders to my certain knowledge. It is the only medicine dubbed patent medicine that I have ever felt like recommending, and I am very anxions to see it in every place, for I tell you that I would not be without it in my house for any consideration. I am now suffering with a pain like rheumatism in my right limb, and nothing relieves me like Thomas' Eclectric Oil.
