OUR HOME COLLEGE.

AID FOR FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL.

The Centennial of Franklin College and the Semi-Centennial of Marshall College in 1887—A Forward Movement. Reformed Church Mess nger.

A movement was started in the Alumni Association of Franklin and Marshall college several years ago, looking towards the celebration above named in 1887. The committee having the matter in charge have made several reports, and the subject has engaged their careful consideration. Several projects have already been proposed, such as the completion of the endowment of the Alumni professorship of English literature; the preparation of a history of Franklin college; of Marshall college, and of Franklin and Marshall, formed by their union, etc. Other measures will be reported from time to time, and plans suggested for carrying them out, so that the celebration may be not a mere jubilee, but the culmination of solid work accomplished, and also a stimulus to still greater work in the future.

Meanwhile the committee will be glad to see the friends of the college moving at once in any proper measure looking to the progress of the college. Under the wise and prudent management of the Board of Trustees, in its financial condition is entirely free of debt and is able to defray its current expenses. The number of students has been steadily increasing, and the order and spirit that prevail are of the most encouraging character. There is in the judgment of the project which might properly engage attention at once. We refer to the building of an astronomical observatory, and the purchase of such instruments as may be required to place the department of mathematics in good working order.

The observatory itself need not be an expensive building; it only requires to be substantial and solid, having a firm foundation. A friend of the college only the other day, without solicitation, sent in $20 towards procuring the needed instruments. He was prompted to this, as he says, by seeing the notice of Prof. Kershner's invitation to assist in making observations of the transit of Venus at the Yale college observatory.

Should not this unselfish and unswerving support to the young project, and to the college, be made the occasion for starting at once a movement towards the creation of an observatory, and supplying it with the necessary instruments? There are doubtless some honored men in the church who are ready to hold of this matter. It will sooner or later be done; of this we have no doubt. Why then should it not be done without delay? The professor is abundantly prepared to turn to the best account such an observatory with immediate practical results. Prof. Waldo, of Yale college, said to the president of our college recently "Prof. Kershner has a future before him if some of your honored men will provide him with the necessary instruments."

Prof. Kershner is one of our own graduates. He has done no mathematical talent. He has not only a theoretical knowledge of his department, but he has practical skill; is an efficient teacher, and withal of a modest, unpretentious spirit and manner. He should therefore be liberally supported. If the college were to erect an observatory, it would be a point of merit in which we excel.

But attention may be directed to one thing at a time, and we therefore take the liberty of presenting at present the immediate wants of the department of mathematics.

These wants are: 1. A good telescope. The cost of a good instrument ranges from $1,800 to $5,000. A very good instrument could be had for $2,500 or $3,000. A transit instrument for measuring time cost $300. 2. A clock, $400. 3. A chronometer, $100. In all say $3,800. The observatory or building for these instruments could be erected for about $2,000. This would give a cost for the whole of $5,800. If this amount could be raised, Prof. Kershner would be supplied with all that is necessary for his department.

There is one other instrument that would be an important benefit, viz., a Heliotrope, which would cost $3,000. There is only one of these in this country, the one recently donated to Yale college. Prof. Kershner assisted in making observations of the transit of Venus with this instrument. It has advantages over our ordinary telescopes. At the Yale observatory the object was not, as with the time of the entrance and exit of the planet, but in the use of the heliotrope, to get measurements of the distance between the centre of the planet and the centre of the sun at different points during the transit, with a view of tracing the chord made by the planet in crossing the sun. One hundred such measurements were obtained, and Prof. Kershner will now make the calculation on the basis of these measurements. A party of astronomers from Bonn in Germany, made observations with a similar instrument at Hartford. Prof. K. spent several days with this party, and they in turn made a visit to the Yale observatory.

The whole matter, then, resolves itself to this: "Can the $5,800 be raised in order to place the mathematical department of Franklin and Marshall in excellent working condition? This will be sufficient. If then, some liberal friend can be found who would present the college with a Heliotrope, at a cost of $3,000, it would give Franklin and Marshall the prestige of being the second college in the United States provided with such an instrument. Prof. Kershner would take full charge of such an Observatory and employ these instruments without any additional cost to the college. The assistance he might need he would get by teaching a student the use of the instruments. He has had experience as an observer, and possesses more than ordinary practical skill.

We present this measure as of great importance for the college. There is no need of large sums expended in brick and mortar. What is needed is to give the best efficiency to the several departments of study, and especially at this time in the department of science. The college is in a prosperous condition. It has the warm attachment of the students. But it must keep abreast with the times, and to do so it should now make a forward movement.

With the matter thus definitely presented, is there some friend who will name this Observatory? If not one, will a number of our honored men put their heads together and say, "The thing shall be done!"

A Quarrel That Led to a Wife's Suicide. When Mrs. Charles Herriok of Pleasant street, Beverly, Mass., awoke the other morning she asked her husband to build a fire, which he refused to do, saying she was as well able to do this as he was. She then tried to kindle the fire, but found the material badly prepared, and her husband finally assisted her. A lady neighbor who called is alleged to have added to the discord. At the breakfast table Mr. Herriok told his wife that she would be all right but for her ungovernable temper. Directly after this remark she went into another room and wrote a note saying she was going to kill herself, and asked that the cause of death might be given as pneumonia. She then went down to the coal bin and cut her throat, inflicting a fatal wound.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Useful Hints From the Germantown Telegraph.

An anonymous article we notice is being reprinted in many of our contemporaries, and way to gather the same, and the method of hauling it out over the farm. Among the arrangements are the solid built, water tight cistern, the drains leading into it, the drawing-out apparatus, the filling of a large tank upon a drag, built specially to carry it out, and the manner of sprinkling it over the land. The expense of all this is not given, nor the value of the application after it is made. But if the case should be, and the latter would be the folly of the whole business, could some be assisted in regard to liquid manure, and predicted for Mr. Mechi, the great farmer of "Triptree Hall" at that time, the very result which followed his extensive and expensive experiments with this description of fertilizer. In some equally wild and ruinous, caused his bankruptcy, having squandered a large estate upon his steam plowing, sub-soil plowing, liquid manuring with various products, costly live stock, &c.

Liquid manure from a barnyard, used upon a garden, close at hand, where it might be applied on vegetable beds at a very little expense, would give good results; but we are clearly of the opinion, fortified by extensive experiments, particularly of wealthy English farmers, as we have already referred to, that it would prove a leak to the purse that nothing except its abandonment would ever close up.

Pork as Food.

The question is again raised as to whether pork is a wholesome article, or some people declaiming against it warily as an article of food, &c., though they offer no solid reasons for their opinion or belief. Now, so far as our information and experience go, we can regard such views as without the shadow of a foundation. The carcasses of the pig, as a source of food, will not cause any disease of the population of the civilized world, will not cause any disease, for all persons of active habits, pork is just as wholesome as anything else and far more sustaining. It is true that it is much of it is eaten at times—in other words, if people will make "hog's" of themselves—they will have to suffer for it as for an over-meat of almost any other food. To die of pork would be to die of one of the main items going into our diet. "What would be the result of the army and navy, of our merchant marine, of in a word, the great mass of our population, if pork were to be thrown overboard? The idea is superlatively absurd—the abolition of this flesh as a prime article of food would be in a measure a calamity, and a disaster, and a calamity, among whom we number ourselves, with a craving stomach; but to eat or boil your ham, pickles your sides, cabbage and crust your chilies, souse your pig's feet, and enjoy yourself upon swine's meat to your heart's content, is a different matter; and the great, patient, thankful pig, who anticipates his fate with pleasure which he cannot express in words, but which he equals to meet with the best possible grace. He may not laugh; it is true, but he goes on fat with content, and the profit of his friend who liberally bestows upon him the wherewithal to fare sumptuously every day.

We shall stand by the pig. He is the patron of man. If he is generously treated it is because he is expected to return the compliment four fold. If he is lazy it is because we give him nothing to do but eat, grunt and sleep, having in view not the good of the animal a title as much as the hope of an abundant reproduction for all our kindred. Pork, among all the articles of food, is the most nutritious, and the most easily digested, and the most palatable. It is the only article of food which is not only palatable, but which is also easily digested, and the most palatable. It is the only article of food which is not only palatable, but which is also easily digested, and the most palatable.

As the doctor turns sadly away from the patient who he had treated, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, he said: "It beats me every time."

It is better he were by the misfortune of others than by your own. Take warning in time. Avoid quarrels, and avoid quarrels by a liberal and generous spirit. Use only such remedies as are demonstrated above, and you will be free from all diseases. Price $1. For sale by H. B. Cochran, druggist, 127 and 129 North Queen St.

MEDICAL.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS.

Brown's Iron Bitters is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whisky, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

Brown's Iron Bitters is guaranteed to be a non-intoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whisky and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. Rice, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron Bitters:

Cin. O., Nov. 15, 1881. Genl.—The foolish wasting of vital force in business, pleasure, and vicious indulgence of our people, makes your preparation a necessity; and if applied, will save hundreds who resort to saloons for temporary recuperation.

Brown's Iron Bitters has been thoroughly tested for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, weakness, debility, overwork, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption, liver complaints, kidney troubles, &c., and it never fails to render speedy and permanent relief.

DRY GOODS.

Wanamaker's.

Silk novelties innumerable and indescribable. Everything that ladies or dressmakers have occasion for in matching, decorating, combining. What we are remarkable for, more than for anything else in silks, is variety; or, at least, we are reputed so. You hear it said by everybody: "If you want to match anything, or find a rare silk, even an unexpected one, go to Wanamaker's."

The other peculiarity that everybody expects to find here is less pleasant to speak of; lower prices. We put it second, because there are people who don't credit us with lower prices. Still, we imagine that, if one should assert the contrary, almost everybody in Philadelphia would believe it.

Often we speak of other aspects of our trade; aspects less obvious or less recognized. It is well occasionally to give old news.

Next-door circle, south entrance to main building.

Warm skirts for ladies, and leggings for ladies, girls and little girls. The warm skirts are satin, satin-and-cloth, satin-and-felt, satin-and-Italian-cloth, and Italian, all quilted; cloth, flannel and felt prettily trimmed, not quilted, warm enough without. The leggings are all sorts; one very useful and fairly pretty sort, woven, at two-thirds value, 25 to 65 cents.

West of south entrance to main building.

Furs have to be thought of. We're busy enough as to making. If we advertise at all, we ought to say what will not oppress us with too much making. Perhaps this is. A great many seal coats and fur-lined circulars are ready-made. More sizes are ready-made here than anybody expects; especially the unexpected sizes. Ready-made work we can make in July. Why shouldn't we make all the shapes and sizes ready-made? 1200 Chestnut.

Black satin rhademaes and satin de Lyons, 25 to 35 cents below our own recent prices, of all grades from $1 to $2; and we guess our prices haven't been very high; have they?

Next-door circle, south entrance to main building.

Wool serge embroidered with silk dots that ought to sell for $1.50—no that isn't the way to put it; it ought to sell according to our theory, for just as little as we can afford; and that is 75 cents.

Look out for such now. It's time for over-buying and all sorts of mistakes to show themselves. We try to keep ready to turn other folk's mistakes to account for ourselves and for you.
