TUES AY EVENING JAN. 2, 1883,

FEMALE EMPLOYES How a rew Capable Women Earn Large

ton Letter to the Hartford Courant. x Secretary Boutwell did more to encontage the promotion of women than any of ar cabinet officer has ever done. He put a lady in charge of a division in the pareau of internal revenue who still retains that position, and I think receives the same salary as other chiefs of division. She is a delicate, frail looking tittle woman, with a will and energy excoeding physical strength. But she has fine executive ability, and will wear out, but will hever grow rusty in the harness. In promotions the secretary must rely on hi bureau officers for a knowledge of the efficiency of clerks. Some heads of beneaus are not in favor of promoting women. They cannot separate the woman from the clerk, and think she receives more than she could earn ontside This may be just as true of the head as of the subordinate. He may receive more pay for his work than he could earn outside, but I have yet to meet the bureau officer who thinks his salary too great for his services. Women are rarely ever per mitted to attempt the adjustment of accounts, and yet this is sometimes offered as a reason for not promoting them. The real truth is, that they are not allowed to do such work. It is no more trouble to teach an intelligent woman to do such work than to teach an intelligent man Custom has made accounts almost the exclusive work of men, and because at the beginning women were appointed as copyists, and were not eligible to clerk-But an act of Congress made them eligible to clerkships, and some of them possess the ability to adjust accounts if they were allowed to do so Sunctimes a woman is ambitious, and weald be glad to earn a promotion by doing more difficult work. She has demands upon her as great as a man, and would be glad to work harder to earn more money to ant those dependent upon her She may be a single woman, aiding in the support of parents or sisters, perhaps both, or possibly a widow with children to support. If she is equally as efficient a clerk as a man, why should she not get the same salary, if she can do and is willing to do the same work? I am not prejudiced, but think that stupidity is stupidity, whether masculine or feminine. The only difference is that the government pays more for a stupid man's poor work than for a a stupid woman's work, for there are those who have to be "helped out" on accounts, oven after several years experience and teaching, and a woman would not make a greater failure if allowed to try the same work. But so long as she is not permitted to prove whether she can or cannot do it, it should not be used as an argument against her promotion, be-

A good deal of feminine indignation was aroused by the appointment of so many men to clerkships by the secretary of the interior, who ignored the applications of women. Whatever reason he had for it, it is certain that very few women were appointed. One alleged reason was that the work was of such a nature that women could not perform it. Once upon a time a predecessor of the present secretary appointed a large number of clerks men, and not a few of them sat at deska filling out black eleculars for some time. Women would have been glad to have done such work for the pay of a copyist, but the clerks appointed received not less than $1,000, and many $1,460 per amount. The old adage says, "Turn about is fan play." Secretary Teller might have tound circulars for women to fill out, and appointed some of the many who had writed and hoped for menths to get places. I dare say if he had offered $700 per year they would have been glad of it, and then the chemiar would have cost half as much as they did under the predecessor who paid some men $1,400 for such work. Or the secretary could have promitted a few women who have been in the interior department for a dozen years or more, and in this way made places for new appointments. There are some curious facts about women. many of them seem to be destined by fate for the same vocation in life-that of supporting themselves and frequently others also. This number seems to increase is public opinion makes it more and more he rable for women to work for a living.
